

Figures

2.1	Hypothesized national policy styles	16
2.2	Research design: country selection and hypothesized national policy styles	19
4.1	Apparent steel consumption in France, 1970–98	53
4.2	Employment in the steel industry in France, 1953, 1963 and 1969–98	54
4.3	Employment in the steel industry, selected EC countries, 1974 and 1993–8	55
4.4	Employment in the steel industry in France, regional breakdown, 1974–86	56
4.5	Subsidies in the crisis years, 1975–85	57
4.6	Crude steel production in France and share of production through continuous casting, 1970–98	58
4.7	Man-hours per tonne of crude steel produced, 1953, 1963 and 1973–92	58
4.8	Usinor and Sacilor (up to 1987), Usinor Sacilor (1987–97) and Usinor (1997–8): profits and losses	60
4.9	Financial performance of some European steel firms, 1987–93	60
14.1	Percentage of population covered by the reformed primary care network	247
20.1	Dutch financial system	365
26.1	Direction and intensity of control relationships among the actors involved in HIV and blood in Germany between 1982 and 1986	502
31.1	Managing decline and restructuring in the steel sector: an integrated assessment	600
31.2	Managing decline and restructuring in the steel industry: national policy styles	602
31.3	Managing reform of the medical profession: an integrated assessment	611
31.4	Managing reform of the medical profession: national policy styles	613
31.5	Managing innovation in the financial sector: an integrated assessment	622

31.6	Managing innovation in the financial sector: national policy styles	623
31.7	Managing crisis in HIV and the blood supply: an integrated assessment	635
31.8	Managing crises in HIV and the blood supply: national policy styles	636