

Preface and acknowledgements

This book contains chapters written by a team of researchers working on Project Number P96-6159-R sponsored by the European Commission's PHARE (ACE) programme. We are very grateful to the European Union for the financial support provided.

The team was led by Professor Maxwell J. Fry (Business School, University of Birmingham), who, due to severe illness, was unable to join us at the workshop in Jurmala, Latvia (July 1998) or the Conference in Bordeaux (April 1999) at which the papers were presented. Energetic as ever, however, Max was able to make a substantial contribution to this volume.

The workshop was excellently organized by Inna Šteinbuka (Department of Economics, University of Latvia).

The conference was a great success, for which we thank the organizers, Sandrine Robert (Department of Economics, University of Montesquieu, Bordeaux) and Eric Girardin (ex Bordeaux, now CEDERS, Université de la Méditerranée, Aix-Marseille 2).

Finally, thanks are due to Jo Quarry, Samantha McCauley and Margaret Ball (Department of Economics Office, University of Birmingham) who helped at various stages to prepare the typescript for submission, and to the invaluable assistance provided by the editors and the rest of the team at the publishers, Edward Elgar.

Regretfully, Max did not live long enough to see this volume in print. We dedicate this volume to his memory.
