

Contents

List of figures	vii
List of tables	ix
List of contributors	xi
Foreword	xii
Thijs ten Raa and Ronald Schettkat
PART I THE AMAZING VIGOUR OF THE SERVICES
1 Paradox of the services: exploding costs, persistent demand	3
William J. Baumol
2 Potential explanations of the real share maintenance of the services	29
Thijs ten Raa and Ronald Schettkat
PART II SUPPLY-SIDE REASONS FOR EMPLOYMENT SHIFTS
3 Employment growth, structural change and capital accumulation	45
Esra Erdem and Andrew Glyn
4 Technology and international skill demand	67
Stephen Machin
PART III THE COST DISEASE OF THE SERVICES
5 Will the new information economy cure the cost disease in the USA?	87
Joe P. Matthey
6 Productivity trends and employment across industries in Canada	105
Pierre Mohnen and Thijs ten Raa
PART IV DEMAND-SIDE REASONS FOR SERVICES PERSISTENCE
7 Are prices unimportant? The changing structure of the industrialized economies	121
Eileen Appelbaum and Ronald Schettkat

8	Structural economic dynamics and the final product concept Giovanni Russo and Ronald Schettkat	132
9	Income and price elasticities in different sectors of the economy: an analysis of structural change for Germany, the UK and the USA Joachim Möller	167
PART V CONCLUSIONS
10	Light on the mystery of service sector growth: some stylized facts Thijs ten Raa and Ronald Schettkat	211
	Index	219