Contributors

Jim Bell is Professor of International Business Entrepreneurship at the University of Ulster, Magee College. He lectures in international marketing and has research interests in the internationalization of knowledge-based SMEs, and international marketing and business education. He has published widely in this area.

Maureen Berry is Founder and Managing Director of The Strategy Business Ltd. During the writing of this chapter she was a Senior Lecturer at the University of Strathclyde. Her research interests are focused on globalization of smaller firms, entrepreneurship and strategic management in smaller firms, and strategic management of technology. She has published in Long-Range Planning, Research Policy and Technovation, among others.

Dev K. Boojihawon is Lecturer at the Open University. His research interests include international entrepreneurship, international strategy and management in service industries. He recently completed his PhD on international strategy in professional service industries.

Gabrielle A. Brenner is Associate Professor of Economics at the École des Hautes Études Commerciales (Business School of the University of Montreal). She has published widely, has participated in numerous conferences and participated in programmes to develop entrepreneurship in West Africa. She has served as consultant to numerous organizations including UNIDO, the World Bank and CIDA.

Wendy Brown is Researcher in Entrepreneurship Education at the University of Strathclyde. Her research interests include entrepreneurship education, and women in business. She has published in the International Journal of Entrepreneurship and Innovation, and Education and Training, among others. She is a co-author of the Scottish Global Entrepreneurship Monitor Report 2002.

Sara Carter is Professor of Small Business and Entrepreneurship at the Hunter Centre for Entrepreneurship, University of Strathclyde. She has undertaken a number of research studies into the small firms sector, focusing on business growth and portfolio entrepreneurship, rural entrepreneurship and women’s business ownership.

Dave Crick is Professor of Marketing and International Entrepreneurship at the Business School, University of Central England. He has published widely in the area of international business involving numerous conference papers, and in journals such as Entrepreneurship and Regional Development, International Business Review, Journal of Business Venturing, Journal of International Marketing, Journal of Small Business Management and Small Business Economics.

Léo-Paul Dana is Senior Advisor to the World Association for Small and Medium Enterprises, and currently based at the University of Canterbury. He formerly served as Deputy Director of the Nanyang Business School International Business MBA Programme in Singapore, and Visiting Professor of Entrepreneurship at INSEAD. He is Founder of the Journal of International Entrepreneurship and the author of 100 articles. His reference volume Entrepreneurship in Pacific Asia: Past Present and Future has been on the best-seller list for over two years.

Pavlos Dimitratos is Lecturer at the Athens University of Economics and Business, and Visiting Research Fellow at the University of Strathclyde. His research interests include international entrepreneurship, and international business strategy and management. He has published in European Management Journal, International Business Review and Journal of International Entrepreneurship, among others.

Hamid Etemad is Associate Professor of International Business and Marketing at the Faculty of Management, McGill University. His current research spans a wide range from economic development, electronic marketing, industrial strategy, globalization of small firms, management of intellectual property, knowledge and technology, network of strategic alliances to multinational enterprise-host country relations. He has published widely and has edited, or guest-edited, numerous books and scholarly journals. He is the Co-founder and Convener of the McGill International Entrepreneurship Conference Series and the Series Editor of the McGill International Entrepreneurship Series of books published by Edward Elgar Publishing.

Louis Jacques Filion is Rogers-J.-A.-Bombardier Professor of Entrepreneurship at HEC, the University of Montreal Business School. His research is concerned with the activity systems of entrepreneurs and the self-employed, small business strategy, epistemology, administrative science research methodologies and entrepreneurial vision. He has more than 100 publications to his credit.

Richard Fletcher is Professor and Chair of the School of Marketing and International Business at the University of Western Sydney. He had over 25 years public-policy experience with the Australian government prior to becoming an academic. He teaches international marketing and e-marketing and has published in the areas of countertrade and government export promotion.

Laura Galloway lectures in various areas of entrepreneurship for the Scottish Institute for Enterprise at Heriot-Watt University. Her research interests include entrepreneurship education, rural enterprise and the emergence and application of Internet technologies for business. She has published in the Journal of Small Business and Enterprise Development, and the International Journal of Entrepreneurship and Innovation, among others. She is a co-author of the Scottish Global Entrepreneurship Monitor Report 2000–2002.

Ioannis Georganas is Doctoral Researcher at the University of Glasgow. His research interests include export marketing, e-commerce and export performance.

Leila Hurmerinta-Peltomäki is Assistant Professor in marketing at Turku School of Economics and Business Administration. Her research interests include international entrepreneurship, time and experience in internationalization and methodological issues. She has published in Academy of Entrepreneurship Journal, International Small Business Journal and Journal of International Entrepreneurship, among others.

Marian V. Jones is Senior Lecturer in Business and Management and the Programme Director for the MSc in Management Research at the University of Glasgow. Her main research interests include the internationalization of small firms, the international competitiveness of small high-technology firms, export performance and information use, and growth and development of new technology-based firms. She has published in the Journal of International Marketing, Journal of International Management and International Marketing Review, among others.

Jonathan Levy is Director of the Hunter Centre for Entrepreneurship at the University of Strathclyde. His main research interests are comparative entre-

Marian V. Jones and Pavlos Dimitratos - 9781845420635
Downloaded from Elgar Online at 04/25/2019 02:47:40AM via free access
Emerging paradigms in international entrepreneurship entrepreneurial strategies, the evolution of young firms, the environment for entrepreneurship, and the nature of interaction between entrepreneurs and resource providers.

Sharon Loane is Lecturer in Business Economics at the University of Ulster. She is currently investigating internet-enabled small enterprise internationalization. She has almost 20 years experience with small and large international firms.

Ivan M. Manev is Associate Professor of Management at the University of Maine. His research interests include networks in the multinational enterprise, organizations in the transforming economies of the former communist bloc, and international entrepreneurship. He has published in the Journal of International Business Studies, Journal of International Management, and Journal of Business Communication, among others. He is the author of The Managerial Network in a Multinational Enterprise, published in 2001 by Edwin Mellen Press.

Tatiana S. Manolova is Assistant Professor of Management at Suffolk University. Her current research interests include international entrepreneurship, competitive strategies for small multinationals, and organizational formation and transformation in transitional economies. Recent articles were published in the International Small Business Journal and the Journal of Small Business Strategy.

Teresa V. Menzies is Associate Professor in the Faculty of Business, Brock University, St Catharine’s, Ontario, and teaches entrepreneurship and family business. Her research interests include entrepreneurship education, ethnic and minority entrepreneurship, and the process of new firm creation. She has published in academic journals on entrepreneurship, work commitment and burnout, and her research has also appeared as chapters in edited books.

Rasha Mostafa is Lecturer in the Business Administration Department in the Faculty of Commerce, Ain Shams University, Cairo, Egypt. Her research deals with the impact of the Internet on the internationalization of small firms and international entrepreneurship.

Niina Nummela is Assistant Professor in International Business at the Turku School of Economics and Business Administration. Her research interests include international entrepreneurship, and small business management and interfirm cooperation. She has published in the *Journal of Informational Marketing, Market Research, International Small Business Journal, Interna-
Contributors

Thandiwe Phiri is Doctoral Researcher at the University of Strathclyde. Her research interests include small business internationalization, exporting, networking, export market information use, small high-technology firms and entrepreneurship, among others.

Shameen Prashantham is Doctoral Researcher at the University of Strathclyde. His research deals with the impact of the Internet on the internationalization of small knowledge-intensive firms in a developing economy context. He has served as an Internet Editor of International Marketing Review.

Monder Ram is Professor of Small Business at De Montfort University, and coordinator of the Small Business and Enterprise Research Group. He is author of Managing to Survive – Working Lives in Small Firms and Ethnic Minorities in Business (with T. Jones).

Charles Ramangalahy is Assistant Professor at the Montreal University School of Library and Information Science where he teaches entrepreneurship and research method. He has special interest on absorptive capacity, competitiveness and performance. He has been involved in research projects focused on small and medium-sized business owners-managers’ roles, among others.

Fred Scharf is Senior Lecturer lecturing in International Marketing and International Business at the University of Ulster. His main research is in the areas of international marketing education, international entrepreneurship and public policy in support of exporting.

Tiia Vissak is Senior Researcher at the University of Tartu, where she also teaches International Economics. Her research interests include international entrepreneurship, internationalization, business networks, strategic alliances, foreign direct investments and transition economies. She has published in Transformations in Business and Economics, chapters in edited texts on foreign direct investments in the Estonian economy and papers in conference proceedings.

Colin Wheeler is Senior Lecturer at the University of Strathclyde. His research interests include international marketing strategy and regulation in the food and drink industries, and export marketing strategy and performance. He has a wide range of publications and has recently co-edited a book.

Richard W. Wright holds the E. Claiborne Robins Distinguished University Chair in the Robins School of Business, University of Richmond. He has authored or edited twelve books, including Globalization and Emerging Businesses: Strategies for the 21st Century (1999) and Internationalization of Small Businesses (2003). He has contributed further to the emerging field of international entrepreneurship as co-organizer of the McGill conferences, integrating international business and small business/entrepreneurship, and as guest editor of several special journal issues on the subject.