I would like to thank the Board of Trustees of Bard College for sponsoring the Levy Economics Institute's ongoing research project on the Reconstitution of the Financial Structure conceived by my late colleague Hyman P. Minsky in 1990. As part of this project, many distinguished scholars, policymakers and business leaders visit the Institute and participate in seminars and conferences aimed at finding policy options to pressing economic problems. I want to thank most sincerely Esther Minsky, Diana Minsky and Alan Minsky for sharing many precious moments of their life with Hy. We all miss him terribly. Finally I am indebted to my assistant Deborah C. Treadway, for her skill, loyalty and devotion, without which this book would not have been possible.

To her, my warm and sincere thanks.
