

Acknowledgements

---

This book has its origin in the ECSPC/CIDEI first conference held on 17–19 May 2001, under the auspices of the Italian Economic Association (SIE).

The European Center for the Study of Public Choice (ECSPC), based at the University of Rome ‘La Sapienza’, is an institution that since its inception in 1999 has been eager to face European constitutional/institutional issues.

The idea of having a publication with selected papers emerged quite naturally out of a conference that brought together academics and officials actively engaged in the institutions around which the conference was organized. It is the breadth of the subjects relevant to the European institutions that is the justification of this volume.

The conference was made possible through funding generously provided to ECSPC by the Italian National Research Council (CNR), the University of Rome ‘La Sapienza’, the Bank of Italy, CREDIOP, the Province of Rome, the Representation in Italy of the European Commission.

Our thanks are due to Philip Jones, Lars P. Feld and Alan Hamlin for kindly and swiftly serving as outside referees.

A very special note of appreciation is due to Maria Delle Grotti for her conscientious work in every stage of the editing process of this volume.

Dymphna Evans, Publisher at Edward Elgar, efficiently provided us with her editorial advice and support. Matthew Pitman, Editor and Karen McCarthy, Senior Desk Editor, were unfailingly helpful in checking out the manuscript and in tracking down those bits that suffered convoluted prose. We are grateful for this help.

Giuseppe Eusepi
University of Rome ‘La Sapienza’
Friedrich Schneider
Johannes Kepler University of Linz