Acknowledgements

Damian would like to thank Maher Khaled for co-authoring Chapter 6 of this book and working closely with him in developing the important underlying concepts upon which the chapter is based. He would also like to thank Nicky Milsom for co-authoring Chapter 3 of the book. Special thanks for their input on both general and specific ideas go to Dr Ross Barnard, Mr Greg Orders and Dr Andrew Griffiths. Also thanks to Ms Micaela Buckley and Mr Paul Curwell for some excellent ideas that helped cement concepts in specific chapters.

John would like to thank his professional development mentors Professor David Wyatt and Mr Mel Bridges who have guided him through a successful career in the biotechnology industry. Thanks also go to Dr Craig Belcher for his support and motivation through the development of the book. John's learning and writing achievements would not have been fulfilled without the creative inspiration of Dr Ross Barnard, Dr Graeme Barnett and Mr Gerry Arkouzis.

The understanding and support of our families, though sometimes taken for granted, was absolutely critical to the successful completion of this book. For this Damian gives love and thanks to his wife Jo-Anne. John would like to thank his wife Sophie for the personal inspiration that is needed on a day-to-day basis when undertaking a significant project such as writing a book.

This book is dedicated to Amelia, Miranda, Isabella, Joanna and Peter.
