

Acknowledgments

This book is the outgrowth of work that was undertaken in the context of a two-year research project conducted by the Economic and Social Research Institute (ESRI), Cabinet Office, Government of Japan, entitled 'A Study on Sustainable Economic and Social Structure in the Twenty-first Century'. I would like to express my sincere gratitude to all staff members of the Institute for their support throughout the project and during several conferences held in Osaka and Tokyo, among others. I thank in particular Koichi Hamada, Hiromi Kato and Mitsuo Hosen of ESRI for their continuous encouragement and suggestions during the course of this research project.

The book contains ten of the large number of studies presented to the project, and concentrates on the subject of Social Security in Japan. Following the introduction, the chapters fall into two groups: the first selected from the Social Safety Net in Japan project under the direction of Toshiaki Tachibanaki, and the second from other projects. I am grateful to all the authors for their contributions.
