

Contributors

Roger Brownsword is Professor of Law at King's College London and Honorary Professor of Law at the University of Sheffield (where he was one of the founding members of the Sheffield Institute of Biotechnological Law and Ethics). He co-authored books with Professor Deryck Beyleveld, including (1986), Law as a Moral Judgment, Sweet & Maxwell and (2001), Human Dignity in Bioethics and Biolaw, Oxford University Press. He co-edited with Professor Cornish and Dr Llewelyn (1998), Law and Human Genetics: Regulating a Revolution, Hart. Supported by a Leverhulme Trust Fellowship, he recently started work on a new book for OUP entitled Rights, Regulation, and the Technological Revolution.

Professor Brownsword acted as a specialist adviser to the House of Lords Select Committee on Stem Cells and his recent journal papers in this general area include: (2002), 'Stem Cells, Superman, and the Report of the Select Committee', Modern Law Review; (2003), 'Bioethics Today, Bioethics Tomorrow: Stem Cell Research and the "Dignitarian Alliance"', University of Notre Dame Journal of Law, Ethics and Public Policy; (2003), 'An Interest in Human Dignity as the Basis for Genomic Torts', Washburn Law Journal; (2004), 'Regulating Human Genetics: Dilemmas of Form and Substance, Doctrine and Design', Medical Law Review; and (2004), 'Reproductive Opportunities and Regulatory Challenges', Modern Law Review.

In addition to his interest in law, ethics and technology, Professor Brownsword has written extensively about the law of contract and he is co-editor of a four-volume set on Global Governance and the Quest for Justice, Hart, 2004.

Justine Burley is Adjunct Associate Professor at the National University of Singapore. She obtained post-graduate degrees in both political philosophy and in neuroscience from the University of Oxford, where she was a Lecturer from 1993–2002. She also held a Simon Fellowship (1998–2002), and was a Fellow of the Institute of Medicine, Law and Bioethics (1996–98), at the University of Manchester. She is the editor of (2004), Ronald Dworkin and His Critics, Blackwell; (1999), The Genetic Revolution and Human Rights, Oxford University Press; and the co-editor (with John Harris) of (2000), A Companion to Genetics, Blackwell and (2004) A Companion to the Ethics of Genetics, Blackwell. Her first monograph, entitled Genetic Justice, is forthcoming.

Graham Dutfield is Herchel Smith Senior Research Fellow at Queen Mary Intellectual Property Research Institute, Queen Mary University of London. He was formerly Academic Director of the UNCTAD–ICTSD Capacity-building Project on Intellectual Property Rights and Development. He has published three books: (2003), Intellectual Property Rights and the Life Science Industries: A Twentieth Century History, Ashgate; (2002), Intellectual Property Rights, Trade and Biodiversity: Seeds and Plant Varieties, Earthscan, and (2004), Intellectual Property, Traditional Knowledge and Biogenetic Resources, Earthscan. He has served as consultant or commissioned report author for numerous organizations.

Mary E. Footer was Deputy Director of the Amsterdam Center for International Law (ACIL) until 2005. She is currently Professor of Law at Nottingham University. Her published books include: (2005), An Institutional and Normative Analysis of the World Trade Organization, Martinus Nijhoff; with Julio Faundez and Joseph J. Norton (eds) (2000), Governance, Development and Globalization, Blackstone Press Ltd; with Joseph J. Norton and Mads Andenas (eds) (1998), The Changing World of International Law in the Twenty-First Century, Kluwer Law International. Professor Footer has also published numerous articles and chapters about agricultural biotechnology, including ‘Agricultural Biotechnology, Food Security and Human Rights’, in Francesco Francioni and Tullio Scovazzi (eds) (forthcoming, 2006), Biotechnology and International Law; ‘Our Agricultural Heritage: Agricultural Sustainability, Common Heritage and Intergenerational Equity’, in Nico Schrijver and Friedl Weiss (eds) (2004), International Law and Sustainable Development: Principle and Practice, Martinus Nijhoff.

Neil Gunningham is an interdisciplinary social scientist who specializes in environmental policy and regulatory design. He currently holds Professorial Research appointments in the Regulatory Institutions Network, Research School of Social Sciences, and in the School of Resources, Environment and Society, at the Australian National University. His books include: with Kagan and Thornton (2003), Shades of Green: Business, Regulation and Environment, Stanford; with Sinclair (2002), Leaders and Laggards: Next Generation Environment Regulation, Greenleaf; and with Grabosky (1998), Smart Regulation: Designing Environmental Policy, Oxford University Press. He was previously Foundation Director of the Australian Centre for Environmental Law (1992–2001), Visiting Research Fellow at the London

School of Economics (2001), Visiting and Senior Fulbright Scholar at the Center for the Study of Law and Society, University of California, Berkeley and Research Fellow at the American Bar Foundation, Chicago. He has also been consultant to the OECD on compliance and regulatory design, and to the United Nations Environment Programme on management systems and regulatory reform.

Graeme Laurie is Professor in Law at the University of Edinburgh and Co-director of the Arts and Humanities Research Board (AHRB) Research Centre for Studies in Intellectual Property and Technology Law. His research interests include the role of law in promoting and regulating science, medicine and technology. He has provided advice to, and been consulted by, a number of bodies on matters of technology and law. These include the House of Commons Science and Technology Committee (1995), the Governments of Lesotho (1997) and the Faroe Islands (1999), the Massachusetts State Legislature (1999), the World Health Organization (WHO) (2000), and the Human Genetics Commission (2001). In 2001 he convened a WHO Working Group that produced international guidelines on the establishment and maintenance of genetic databases. He is a member of the Interim Advisory Group on Ethics and Governance for Biobank UK and the Privacy Advisory Committee for Scotland, and serves as an Associate Editor (Law) on the Journal of Medical Ethics. His publications include the monograph (2002), Genetic Privacy: A Challenge to Medico-legal Norms, Cambridge University Press.

Sara Poli is Research and Teaching Fellow in EC Law and EC Environmental Law, University of Trieste. Her articles include (2004), 'Adoption of International Food Standards within the Codex Alimentarius Commission', European Law Journal; (2004), 'The Overhaul of the European Legislation on GMOs, Genetically Modified Food and Feed: Mission Accomplished. What now?', Maastricht Journal of European and Comparative Law and with Nicola Notaro (2004), 'Environmental Law', in Piet Eeckhout and Takis Tridimas (eds), Yearbook of European Law, Oxford: Clarendon Press.

Colin Scott is Professor of EU Regulation and Governance at University College Dublin. Between 2001 and 2003 he was Senior Fellow in Public Law at the Law Program and Regulatory Institutions Network, Research School of Social Sciences, Australian National University. His analytic interests are in regulation and control, and accountability. He has substantive interests in regulation of government, communications regulation and consumer protection. His books include (co-edited) (2004), Regulating

Law, Oxford University Press and (co-authored) (1999), Regulation Inside Government, Oxford University Press. He has published widely in international journals and books in socio-legal studies and public administration, among others: (2001), 'Analysing Regulatory Space: Fragmented Resources and Institutional Design', Public Law, and (2004), 'Regulation in Age of Governance: The Rise of the Post-Regulatory State', in Jacint Jordana and David Levi-Faur (eds), The Politics of Regulation, Edward Elgar.

Paul Street is Lecturer of Law at Nottingham University since 2002, before which he taught in the Law Department at the University of Wales, Aberystwyth and the School of Law at the University of Warwick, from where he also holds a PhD in Law. He writes and researches on a range of issues relating to globalization and the international trading system particularly as they relate to biodiversity; sustainable agriculture; food security; biotechnology; land rights; and international development, focussing predominantly on the impacts that transnational legal developments in these areas pose for the countries and peoples of the 'two-thirds world'. He published a monograph (2005) entitled, Regulating Global Trade and the Environment, Routledge, and many articles including (2001), 'Trading in Risk: The Biosafety Protocol, Genetically Modified Organisms and The World Trade Organization', Environmental Law Review.

Wolfgang van den Daele, studied law and philosophy in Hamburg, Tuebingen and Munich. He is currently Director of the research unit Standard-setting and Environment at the Social Science Research Center Berlin (WZB), and Professor of Sociology at the Free University of Berlin, Germany. From 1985 to 1987 he was a member of the German Federal Parliament's Select Committee on the Opportunities and Risks of Genetic Engineering. At present, Wolfgang van den Daele is a member of the National Board of Ethics for the Federal Republic of Germany.

Publications in the areas of scientific research, technology assessment and environmental sociology include: with Alfred Pühler and Herbert Sukopp (1997), 'Grüne Gentechnik im Widerstreit', Agrarwirtschaft: Zeitschrift für Betriebswirtschaft und Marktforschung; with Friedhelm Neidhardt (eds) (1996), Kommunikation und Entscheidung WZB-Jahrbuch, Edition Sigma; and (2001), 'Von moralischer Kommunikation zur Kommunikation über Moral. Reflexive Distanz in diskursiven Verfahren', Zeitschrift für Soziologie; with R. Döbert (2004), 'Imaginierte Gemeinschaften. Forderungen und Mechanismen transnationaler Solidarität beim Zugang zu patentgeschützten Medikamenten', in Dieter Gosewinkel, D. Rucht, W. van den Daele and J. Kocka (eds), Zivilgesellschaft – National und Transnational, WZB-Jahrbuch, Edition Sigma.

Bernd van der Meulen is Professor in Law and Governance at Wageningen University (Netherlands), and Director of the European Institute for Food Law. He is President and co-founder of the Dutch Food Law Association. He recently published (2004), The Right to Adequate Food: Food Law Between the Market and Human Rights, Elsevier and with Menno van der Velde (2004), Food Safety in the European Union: an Introduction, Wageningen University Press. He has published extensively on food law in Dutch journals.

Geertrui Van Overwalle is Professor at the Centre for Intellectual Property Rights (CIR) of the Catholic University of Leuven and the Catholic University of Brussels (Belgium). She teaches Patent Law and Intellectual Property Rights in the Biomedical Sciences in Leuven and 'Plant Breeder's Rights and Biotechnology in Brussels. She has been Visiting Professor at the United Nations University (2000–03), the University of Ruhuna, Matara, Sri Lanka (2000), the Renmin University of China (2001) and Monash University, Melbourne (2003). She was recently appointed a member of the European Commission's Expert Group on Biotechnological Inventions.

She has published numerous articles and monographs relating to patent law and biotechnology including (1997), The Legal Protection of Biotechnological Inventions in Europe and in the United States. Current Framework and Future Developments, Leuven University Press and (2002), Study on the Patenting of Inventions Related to Human Stem Cell Research, European Communities. More recently she wrote (amongst others) (2005), 'Legal and Ethical Aspects of Bio-patenting: Critical Analysis of the EU Biotechnology Directive', in Peter Drahos (ed.), Death of a Patent System, Law Text Publishing, as well as (2005), 'Experience on the Patentability of Human Stem Cells and Stem Cells Derived from Them', in The Ethics of Patenting Human Genes and Stem Cells, Copenhagen: Council of Ethics and (2005), 'Protecting and Sharing Biodiversity and Traditional Knowledge: Holder and User Tools', Ecological Economics.