Index

absolute employment, and high-growth firms 163–8 absolute growth
  in comparing growth measures 71–80, 183
definition 190
and firm size 54–5, 59, 68, 183
  in high-growth firms 190, 191, 197–208 and relative growth 54–5, 59, 68, 71–80, 183 absolute organic employment growth, and high-growth firms 190, 191, 198 absolute sales growth, and high-growth firms 190, 191, 198 absolute total employment growth, and high-growth firms 190, 191, 198 acquisition growers 198–200, 202–3, 204, 205, 206, 207 acquisition growth
  and concept of firm 43
  employment 169–70
  and entrepreneurship 31
  high-growth achievement 14, 196, 200, 204, 205, 206, 207 high-growth firms’ contribution to employment 169–70, 171, 173–4 large firms 6, 30, 57, 170, 186–7
old firms 6, 30, 57, 170, 186–7 versus organic growth 13, 30, 57, 173–4, 186–7 resource-based view 30
small firms 4
activities
  in configuration perspective on firm growth 47, 48 and ease-of-use in empirical analysis 51, 52 and firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs 90, 91, 98, 100, 101–2, 103 in motivation perspective on firm growth 47, 48 relevance for different research disciplines 50 relevance for different user groups 49
in resource-based perspective on firm growth 46, 48
in strategic adaptation perspective on firm growth 47 unit of analysis of firms 45, 46, 47, 48, 50, 53–4, 58
see also new economic activity actual growth, in studies of small firm growth 41 affective responses, in attitude theory 111, 112 affiliation
  in high-growth firm achievement 206, 207 and firm growth theories 187 and high-growth firms’ contribution to employment 161, 162, 163, 166–7, 168, 169–70, 172 age, firm see firm age age, of entrepreneur, in expectancy-value approach towards growth 119, 120, 122, 124–5, 128 Ajzen, I. 111–12, 117, 121
Ardishvili, A. 39, 46, 183 arriving at the high-growth firm study discussion 208–11 executive summary 179–81
introduction 181–2
literature review 182–8
method
  growth variables 192–6
  method of analysis 196–7
  sample 188–92
overview 14
results
  cluster analysis 197–204
demographic contrasts 204–8
growth variables 192–6
assets, as growth indicator 52–4, 55, 57, 65, 66, 145, 183–4 atmosphere 132, 133
attitudes 110–113
see also expectancy-value approach towards growth study Babson Conference 10, 21
Barker, R.G. 132
Barkham, R. 52, 145
Barney, J.B. 30
Baucus, D.A. 186
behavior 25, 26, 111–13 beliefs 109, 110, 111, 112–13
see also expectancy-value approach towards growth study bias 64, 88, 141, 210
Birch, D.L. 156
Blixt, L. 161–2, 163, 186
business concept, in new venture creation 90 business cycles 11, 13, 125, 164, 173 business goals, of nascent entrepreneurs 10, 89, 90, 91, 97, 100, 101–2, 103, 104 capital availability, and performance 148–9, 151
Carter, N.M. 94
case studies 40, 52
cash flow, and financial performance 147, 151 causality 41, 210
Chandler, G.N. 65, 186
change 7, 41–5
close-downs, firms 41, 156–7, 158–9, 210 cross-sectional designs 4, 9, 40, 41
Crozier, L.M. 117
Dahlqvist, J. 11
data analyses
common method variance 133
in Continued Entrepreneurship and Small Firm Growth (Davidsson) 2 correlation 73–5
longitudinal designs 56–7, 96–9, 149–150
meta-analysis, in growth measurement 71, 79
partial least squares (PLS) 2, 3 regression analysis 2, 9, 41, 73, 96–104, 122–30, 149–50, 186 significance tests 70–71, 79, 122, 123, 150 skewed distributions 68–9, 76, 78, 123
data collection
interviews see interviews in longitudinal designs 50–51, 52, 92–4, 146, 158–9 retrospective data 88
secondary data 40
service sector 53
in firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs study 91, 98, 99–100, 101–2, 103–4, 105 Continued Entrepreneurship and Small Firm Growth (Davidsson) 1–3, 9 correlation, in expectancy-value approach towards growth 114, 115, 117, 121, 124–5, 126, 127–9, 131, 133 Cooper, A.C. 148
creation of new economic activity see new economic activity creation of new enterprise 24, 25, 31 creation of new organizations, in definitions of entrepreneurship 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29 creation of new products and services see new products and services crisis survival ability, and growth motivation 114, 116, 117, 121, 124–5, 126, 127–9, 131 cross-sectional designs 4, 9, 40, 41
Index

and unit of analysis 50–51, 52
Davidsson, Per 1–3, 6, 9, 10–11, 13, 22, 28–9, 39, 40, 57, 156, 167
Davis, S.J. 156
decision making 3, 4, 89–90 Delmar, Frédéric 3–4, 6, 7, 9, 10–11, 22, 39, 40, 55, 57, 72, 183 demand, as growth indicator 66 Dess, G.G. 141, 148
discovery, in definitions of entrepreneurship 25, 26, 31, 32 D’Souza, D.E. 52, 145
dynamic decision making 89–90
early growth 88
economic activity see activities; new economic activity economic progress, in definitions of entrepreneurship 24, 25 economics 1, 50, 64, 68 evergence 6, 24, 29
see also new economic activity; new enterprise; new organizations; new products and services; new venture creation emotions, in attitude theory 111 employee well-being, and growth motivation 11, 114, 115, 117, 121, 124–9, 131–2, 133
employment
definitions of employment contribution 157 as growth indicator 8–9, 52, 53–4, 80, 94–6, 145, 183, 184
in arriving at the high-growth firm study 14, 189–90, 190, 191, 193–6, 200–201, 202, 204, 206, 207 in firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs study see firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs study in high-growth firms’ contribution to employment study see high-growth firms’ contribution to employment study in measuring growth study 65, 66–7, 70–71, 72–3, 74, 75
in sustainability of entrepreneurial orientation-performance relationship study 147, 152
in modeling growth rates 55, 56, 57
small firms 164
see also absolute employment; firm size; job creation; job losses employment growers 198–201, 202–3, 206, 207 entactment 89, 90
enterprise, new 24, 25, 31 Entrepreneurial Behavior and Business Performance (Delmar) 3–4 entrepreneurial orientation (EO) 4, 5, 12, 141–2 see also sustainability of entrepreneurial orientation-performance relationship study entrepreneurial teams 45, 50–51 entrepreneurs 24, 45, 50, 88, 125, 127
see also individuals; nascent entrepreneurs entrepreneurship
definitions 6, 23–8, 32 normative bias towards 141 research 21
research questions 34–5 role 24–6
and unit of analysis 6–7, 50, 58
as type of growth 28–32 Entrepreneurship Theory and Practice 11, 12, 21, 22, 63 environmental context, in firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs 10, 91, 98, 99–100, 101–2, 103–4, 105 environmental dynamism, and performance 5, 148, 150 Ericsson group 51
erratic one-shot growers 198–200, 202–3, 206, 207 expectancy-value approach towards growth study belief identification 113–17 conclusions and implications 133
discussion
explaining growth attitudes 129–30 importance of beliefs 131–2 limitations and future research 132–3 hypotheses 114–16
method 118–23

Downloaded from Elgar Online at 09/13/2019 08:28:23PM via free access
overview 10–11
results 123–9
expectancy-value model of attitude 112–13, 120, 130 expected growth, in firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs study see firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs study expected start size, in firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs study see firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs study exploitation 25, 26, 31, 32 factors of growth studies 46 failures, firms 41, 156–7, 158–9, 210 family-owned businesses 24 female entrepreneurs 125, 127 financial capital availability, and performance of small firms 148, 151 financial performance indicators 13, 145 firm age
in arriving at the high-growth firm study 205, 206, 207, 208
in expectancy-value approach towards growth study 119, 120, 122, 124–5, 128 and growth 30, 187
in measuring growth study 72, 76–8
and relative 54–5, 59, 68, 183
and resource based view 30
firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs study and growth rate 187
and growth rate modeling 55–7, 68
in measuring growth study 72, 76–8
and relative 54–5, 59, 68, 183
firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs study and business concept 90 conclusions 104–6
decision making in new venture creation 89–90 environmental and organizational context 91, 98, 99–100, 101–2, 103–4, 105 gestation activities 91, 98, 100, 101–2, 103 individual human capital 90–91
method
analysis 96–9
dependent variables 94–6
design 92
explanatory variables 96
sample 92–4
overview 9–10
personal and business goals 89, 90, 91, 97, 100, 101–2, 103, 104
results
combined models 103–4
separate models 99–103
time and stage 90, 98
firms
close-downs 41, 156–7, 158–9, 210 conceptual problems in growth research studies 41–5, 58 theories 45–6
index
Per Davidsson, Frédéric Delmar and Johan Wiklund - 9781781009949
Downloaded from Elgar Online at 09/13/2019 08:28:23PM via free access see also first-mover firms; high-growth firms (HGFs); high-technology firms; knowledge-intensive firms; large firms; manufacturing firms; medium-sized enterprises; new venture creation; old firms; retailing firms; service sector firms; small and medium-sized firms; start-ups; young firms first-mover firms 143–4 Fishbein, M. 112, 113, 117, 121

Flamholtz, E.G. 117, 145
founders see entrepreneurs future goods and services, in definitions of entrepreneurship 25, 26, 31 future growth 41
Gartner, W.B. 21, 22, 24, 26–7, 29, 32, 89, 94 gender, of manager, and growth motivation 125, 127 generalization, in studies of small firm growth 40 geographic affiliation, in firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs 98, 99, 100 gestation activities, of nascent entrepreneurs 91, 98, 100, 101–2, 103

see also new economic activity
Gibrat’s Law 55, 68, 187
Gimeno-Gascon, F.J. 148 goals, of nascent entrepreneurs 89, 90, 91, 97, 100, 101–2, 103, 104 goods and services see products and services governance structures
in arriving at the high-growth firm study 206
in configuration perspective on firm growth 47, 48 ease-of-use in empirical analysis 51, 52 in high-growth firms’ contribution to employment study 161, 162, 163, 166–7, 168, 169–70, 171, 172, 173
indicators of growth 53
in motivation perspective on firm growth 53, 58

relevance for user groups 49
and research discipline 50
in resource-based perspective on firm growth 46–7, 48
in strategic adaptation perspective on firm growth 47, 48 and survival 161
unit of analysis 45, 46–7, 48, 58
Govindarajan, V. 65
gross profit margin, and financial performance 147 growth
attitudes towards 109–10, 112
see also expectancy-value approach towards growth study in definitions of entrepreneurship 23, 24, 26, 27, 28 and financial performance 145
heterogeneity 5
high-growth firms 159–60
see also arriving at the high-growth firm study; high-growth firms’ contribution to employment study indicators see growth indicators in sustainability of entrepreneurial orientation-performance relationship study 144–5, 147, 148, 151–2 types, as entrepreneurship 28 young firms, survival 28 see also absolute growth; acquisition growth; early growth; future growth; organic employment growth; organic growth; relative growth; total growth growth expectations see firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs study growth indicators
choice 7, 9, 80, 94, 179–80, 181–2, 183–84 competitor comparisons 145
in growth measurement 52–4, 59, 80
in measuring growth study 65, 66–7, 72–3, 79
objectivity and subjectivity 65–6 productivity 73

Govindarajan, V. 65

profit

growth 47, 48

Index
satisfaction measures of growth and performance 65–6 service sector firms 67, 145
turnover 65, 66, 67
see also activities; assets;
employment; governance
structures; individuals;
multiple indicators; new economic activity; sales growth measurement
absolute growth 54, 55
and firm size 54–5
growth literature study see measuring growth study: growth literature heterogeneous nature 5, 7, 8, 80, 179–80, 181–2, 183, 185, 208–9
indicators see growth indicators
relative growth 54, 55
in studies of small firm growth 41 growth motivation 3–4, 9 growth process 46, 47
growth rate modeling see modeling
growth
growth research studies
acquisition growth 57, 59
challenges 39–40
conceptual problems in defining
firms 41–5, 58
organic growth 57, 59
research designs 39, 40–41, 58
theories 1, 3, 6, 46–7
unit of analysis 7, 45–9
growth willingness, in studies of small firm growth 41
growth research studies
in arriving at the high-growth firm study; high-growth firms’
contribution to employment
study
high-growth firms’ contribution to employment study
discussion and conclusions implications 173–4
limitation 174
major results 171–3
method
definition of high-growth firm (HGF) 159–60
descriptor variables 160–61
sample 158–9
overview 13–14
results
categorical affiliations of high-growth firms 161–3
contributions of high-growth firms to absolute employment 163–8
organic employment growth in
high-growth firms 168–71
high-growth small and medium-sized enterprises (SMES) 157
high-technology firms 64, 72, 184, 206 hindsight bias, in retrospective data 88 historical growth, in studies of small firm growth 41
Hoy, F. 52, 145
Hubbard, R. 118
Human, S.L. 10
human capital 7, 90–91, 97, 100 income, personal, and growth motivation 114, 115, 117, 121, 124–5, 126, 127–9, 133
independence
in arriving at the high-growth firm
study 206, 207
in expectancy-value approach towards growth study 114, 115, 117, 121, 124–5, 126, 127–9, 131, 133
and firm growth 187–8
in high-growth firms’ contribution to employment study 161, 162, 163, 166–7, 168, 169, 171
and opportunity identification 188
heterogeneity
in growth measurement 5, 7, 8, 80, 179–80, 181–2, 183, 208–9 infirm demographics 187–8 multiple growth indicators 184–5, 208, 209
organic growth versus acquisition
growth 186–7
regularity of growth time 185–6
high-growth small and medium-sized
enterprises (SMES) 157
high-growth firms (HGFs) 157, 159–60 see also arriving at the high-growth firm study; high-growth firms’
contribution to employment
study
high-growth firms’ contribution to
employment study
hindsight bias, in retrospective data 88 indicators, growth see growth indicators indicators, performance 8, 12–13, 144–5 individual human capital, in firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs 10, 90–91, 97, 100 individuals
in firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs study 90–91, 97, 100, 101–2, 103
in motivation perspective on firm growth 47, 48
relevance for user groups 49
and research discipline 50
in resource-based perspective on firm growth 46–7, 48
in strategic adaptation perspective on firm growth 46–7, 48
unit of analysis of firms 7, 45, 46–7, 48, 50–51, 58 see also entrepreneurs; managers; nascent entrepreneurs; owners industry sector
in arriving at the high-growth firm study 188–9, 205–6, 207, 208
in expectancy-value approach towards growth study 119, 120, 122
in high-growth firms’ contribution to employment study 159, 160, 161–2, 165–6, 169, 172 see also high-technology firms; knowledge-intensive firms; manufacturing firms; retailing firms; service sector firms; young industries inflation 67, 184
initial size see start size innovation
in definitions of entrepreneurship 26–7, 28
empirical analysis 51
and entrepreneurial orientation (EO) 142, 143
and organic growth 30
intention theories 112
interaction 89, 90
interviews
in expectancy-value approach towards growth study 116, 119, 139
in firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs study 92–4
in measuring growth study 72
in sustainability of entrepreneurial orientation-performance relationship study 146 Jarillo, J.C. 25, 26, 31
job creation
in high-growth firms’ contribution to employment study 164, 165, 166, 167, 168–71
and organic growth 169–71, 186
small and medium-sized firms 156–7
small firms 164
job losses, from high-growth firms 164, 165, 166, 167, 168, 171
Journal of Business Venturing 14, 21, 22, 63
Katz, J. 29
Kauffman Foundation 21
Kirzner, I. 28
knowledge-intensive firms 14, 206, 207
large firms
absolute growth 54, 59, 68, 183
acquisition growth 6, 30, 57, 170, 186–7
in arriving at the high-growth firm study 205, 207, 208, 210 start-up size and expected growth 99, 103, 104 learning, of nascent entrepreneurs in new venture creation 89 legal structure, and firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs 98, 99–100, 103
Little, E.L. 118
Livesay, H.C. 21
logarithms, in calculation of growth measure 68–9, 73, 74–5, 76, 77 logistic regression, in firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs study 96–100 longitudinal designs 4–5, 6, 39, 40–41, 50–51, 56–7, 58, 92, 146, 156–7 see also sustainability of entrepreneurial orientation-performance relationship study Low, M.B. 24, 25, 31, 33
Lumpkin, G.T. 141, 148
MacMillan, I. C. 24, 25, 33
management research 1, 50 managers 23–4, 49, 109, 110, 133 see also entrepreneurs; expectancy-value approach towards growth study; individuals manufacturing firms
in arriving at the high-growth firm study 189, 206, 207, 210
in expectancy-value approach towards growth study 119, 120
as growth indicator 67
in high-growth firms’ contribution to employment study 159, 160, 166, 167, 169
in measuring growth study 8, 64, 67, 72
market growth 148
market share 65, 66, 147, 183
market value 147
Markides, C.C. 30
Matthews, C.H. 10
McDougall, P.P. 52, 145
measuring growth study
empirical test of growth measures 73–8
analysis 73
dependent variables 72–3
sample 72
growth literature
choice of calculation of growth measure 67–9 comparability of growth studies 7–8, 70–71, 78–9 conclusions and discussion 78–80
growth indicators 8, 65–7, 79
measurement period 8, 69–70, 79 sample and procedure 63 sample characteristics 64–6, 82–4
overview 7–8
medium-sized enterprises 159, 171 see also small and medium-sized firms mergers 4
see also acquisition growth
meta-analysis, in growth measurement 71, 79
Miller, D. 4, 142–3, 147 modeling growth
choice of indicator 80, 179–80, 181–2, 183–5
in Continued Entrepreneurship and Small Firm Growth (Davidsson) 2
and firm size 55–7, 68
in measuring growth study 68–9 with more than two size observations 56–7, 59 problems 55, 59
in small and medium-sized firms 75–8 with two size observations 55–6, 59 motivation
in firm growth studies 3–4, 9, 47, 48
in firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs study 9, 103, 106 of small business managers towards growth 109, 110, 133
see also expectancy-value approach towards growth study
theories 110–11
multiple indicators
in growth measurement 9, 54, 67, 79, 184–5, 208, 209
in measuring growth study 67, 70–71, 73, 74, 75, 77 multiple linear regression 122–30, 149–50 Muthén, B. 57
nascent entrepreneurs 89–91, 97, 100 see also firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs study need, and firm growth 2–3 networks 64, 88
new economic activity
in definitions of entrepreneurship 6, 24, 27–8
gestation activities of nascent entrepreneurs 91, 98, 100, 101–2, 103
and organic growth 98, 111–12

Index

as unit of analysis 33, 34–5 and wealth creation 25, 33
new enterprise 24, 25, 31 new organizations 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29 see also new venture creation; start-ups new products and services 6, 27, 30, 143–4 new venture creation 88–91 see also new organizations; start-ups non-financial gains 11, 131–2, 133 objectivity, of growth indicators 65, 66
old firms
acquisition growth 6, 30, 57, 170, 186–7
in arriving at the high-growth firm study 207, 208
in high-growth firms’ contribution to employment study 172–3, 174
in measuring growth study 76 opportunity 2, 5, 25–6, 31, 143, 188 organic employment growth 168–71, 172–4, 190, 191, 206, 208
organic growth
versus acquisition growth 13, 186–7
in arriving at the high-growth firm study 14, 190, 191, 195–6, 198 and creation of new products and services 30
definition 190
and entrepreneurship 30–31
and firm age 170, 171
in firm growth studies 57, 59
and firm size 170–71
and future goods and services 31
in high-growth firms’ contribution to employment study 14, 168–71, 172–4 and job creation 169–71, 186 and new economic activity 30, 31, 32
resource-based view 30
small firms 6, 30, 57, 170–71, 186–7
and strategic management 32–3, 34
in sustainability of entrepreneurial orientation-performance relationship study 147 young firms 6, 30, 57, 170, 186–7 organizational context, in firm size entrepreneurs 91, 98, 99–100, 101–2, 103–4, 105 organizations, new 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29 owners 23–4, 49
see also expectancy-value approach towards growth study panel data 146
partial least squares (PLS) 2, 3 Penrose, E. 30, 186–7
perceived ability 3–4
performance 3–4, 12, 65–6, 141–2, 148, 150, 165 see also sustainability of entrepreneurial orientation-performance relationship study personal characteristics, of entrepreneurs 24, 88, 90–91, 97 personal goals, of nascent entrepreneurs 10, 89, 90, 91, 97, 100, 101–2, 103, 104 personal income, and growth motivation 114, 115, 117, 121, 124–5, 126, 127–9, 133 personality theories 111 planned behavior theory 9, 112 policy-makers, relevance of units of analysis 49 positive selection bias, in retrospective data 88 preferences, of nascent entrepreneurs 89 proactiveness, and entrepreneurial orientation (EO) 142, 143–4 product life-cycles, in configuration perspective on firm growth 47 productivity, as growth indicator 73 products and services demand 66
future goods and services, in definitions of entrepreneurship 25, 26, 31 new 6, 27, 30, 143–4 effect of quality on growth motivation 114, 116, 117, 121, 124–5, 126, 128–9 unit of analysis of firms 45 profits 144, 147, 151, 184 psychological theories 1, 3, 7, 47, 64, quality, of discovery and exploitation 31, 32 radical discovery, and entrepreneurship 31 reasoned action theory 112 recession 14, 164, 165, 168, 174 Regional Studies 63
regression analysis 2, 9, 41, 73, 96–104, 122–30, 149–50, 186
relative growth
and absolute growth 54–5, 59, 68, 71–80, 183
in comparing growth measures 71–80, 183 high-growth firm achievement 190, 191, 197–208
and firm size 54–5, 59, 68, 183
in measuring growth study 73, 74, 75, 77, 78 relative organic employment growth, in high-growth firms 190, 191, 198 relative sales growth, in high-growth firms 190, 191, 198 relative total employment growth, in high-growth firms 190, 191, 198 replication design, in expectancy-value approach towards growth study 11, 118–19, 122
research designs
and bias 64, 88, 141, 210
and causality 41, 210
cross-sectional designs 4, 9, 40, 41
firm growth studies 39, 40–41, 58, 208–9 longitudinal designs 4–5, 6, 39, 40–41, 41, 50–51, 56–7, 58, 92, 146, 156–7 replication designs 11, 118–19, 122
in sustainability of entrepreneurial orientation-performance relationship study 146
resource-based view 30, 46–7, 48, 184 resources 14, 25, 28, 188 retailing firms 119, 120, 159
retrospective data 88
Reynolds, P.D. 94, 95
risk, and entrepreneurship 142 sales as growth indicator 8–9, 52, 53, 54, 59, 80, 94, 145, 174, 183, 184
in arriving at the high-growth firm study 14, 189–90, 191, 193–6, 200, 201, 202, 204, 205, 206, 207, 210
in measuring growth study 65, 66, 67, 70–71, 72–3, 74, 76, 77
in modeling growth rates 55, 56, 57
in sustainability of entrepreneurial orientation-performance relationship study 147, 152 samples
in arriving at the high-growth firm study 188–92
in expectancy-value approach towards growth study 119
in firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs study 92–4
in high-growth firms’ contribution to employment study 158–9
in measuring growth study 63, 64–5, 72, 82–4
in sustainability of entrepreneurial orientation-performance relationship study 146 and units of analysis 50, 51, 52 satisfaction measures of growth and performance, as growth indicator 65–6 Schuh, S. 156
Schumpeter, J. 26, 27, 28
service sector firms
in arriving at the high-growth firm study 189, 206, 207
data collection 53
in expectancy-value approach towards growth study 119, 120
growth indicators 67, 145
in high-growth firms’ contribution to employment study 159, 160, 166, 167, 169, 172
in measuring growth study 64, 67, 72
services and products see products and services Seth, A. 45–6
sex, of manager, and growth motivation 125–27, 128

shared reality, in enactment 90

Shepherd, D. 9

significance tests 70–71, 79, 122, 123, 150

size, firm see firm size

skewed distributions 68–9, 76, 78, 123

Slevin, D.P. 4, 141, 142–3 small, owner-managed businesses, in definitions of entrepreneurship 23–4 small and medium-sized firms 14, 156–7, 165, 205, 207 see also measuring growth study

Small Business Economics 63

small business managers, growth motivation 109, 110, 133
see also expectancy-value approach towards growth study

Small Firm Growth and Performance (Wiklund) 4–5

small firms
absolute growth 54

in arriving at the high-growth firm study 208

capital availability 148

in definitions entrepreneurship 23–4 effect of entrepreneurial orientation (EO) on performance 143

growth research studies 1–3, 4–5, 39–40

in high-growth firms’ contribution to employment study 164, 165, 166, 170–71, 172, 173

job creation 164

non-economic gains 131–2, 133

organic growth 6, 30, 57, 170–71, 186–7

performance indicators 13

relative growth 68, 183

small start-ups, job creation 156 social wealth, and new economic activity 25, 33 start size

and firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs 94–5, 96

and high-growth firms’ contribution to employment 160, 163, 165, 166, 167, 168–170

start-ups
in high-growth firms’ contribution to employment study 159, 160, 162, 163, 164, 167, 172

indicators of growth 184

job creation 156

lack of growth 29
see also new organizations; new venture creation

Statistics Sweden 158, 164, 180 steady overall growers 198–9, 201, 202–3, 204, 205, 206, 207 steady sales growers 198–200, 202–3, 204, 205, 206, 207

Stevenson, H.H. 24–6, 31

Storey, D.J. 39, 156, 162, 163

strategic adaptation perspective 47, 48 strategic alliances, small firms 4 strategic management 6, 32–3, 34, 142–3 strategy, in measuring growth study 4, 5, 64 subjectivity, of growth indicators 65–6 success, in studies of small firm growth 41 super absolute growers 197–200, 201, 202–3, 204, 205–6, 207 super relative growers 198–200, 201, 202–3, 205, 206, 207 surveys 40, 41, 72, 133, 146, 152

survival 160, 210

sustainability of entrepreneurial orientation-performance relationship study analysis and results 149–50

discussion 150–52

effect of EO on performance 142–4

hypotheses 143, 144

indicators of performance 144–5

overview 12–13

research design and sample 146–9

theory 142–3

Sweden

arriving at the high-growth firm study see arriving at the high-growth firm study category changes of firms 43, 44 firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs study see firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs study.

high-growth firms’ contribution to employment study see high-growth firms’ contribution to employment study job creation by small and medium-sized enterprises 156 measuring growth study see measuring growth study sustainability of entrepreneurial orientation-performance relationship study see sustainability of entrepreneurial orientation-performance relationship study technological change, and organic growth 30 time in arriving at the high-growth firm study 192–4, 198–9, 201 in dynamic decision making 90 in enactment 90
and entrepreneurship 29
in firm size expectations of nascent entrepreneurs study 90, 91, 94, 95, 96 and first-mover advantage 143–4 heterogeneity in regularity of growth 185–6
in high-growth firms’ contribution to employment study 13–14, 160, 161, 162, 163–7, 174 measurement period and growth models 80, 183
in measuring growth study 8, 69–71, 72–4, 79
in new venture creation 91
in studies of small firm growth 41
in sustainability of entrepreneurial orientation-performance relationship study 143–4, 152 total employment growth 169–71 total growth 57, 169–71 turnover, as growth indicator 65, 66, 67 UK 156
units of analysis and ease-of-use in empirical analysis 50–52, 58 relevance for user groups 49, 58
and research discipline 49–50, 58
and theoretical perspectives 6–7, 45–9, 58 US 156
validity, of satisfaction measures of growth and performance 65–6 Venkataraman, S. 25, 26, 31, 33
Vetter, D.E. 118
wealth creation, in new economic activity 25, 33
Weick, K.E. 89, 90
Weinzierl, L.G. 55, 185–6
White, S.B. 94, 95
Wiklund, Johan 4–5, 6, 9, 10–11, 12, 14, 22, 23, 39, 48, 142
Williamson, P.J. 30
Woo, C.Y. 148
work tasks, and growth motivation 114–15, 117, 121, 124–5, 126, 127, 128–9 workload, and growth motivation 114, 117, 121, 123, 124–5, 126, 127, 128–9 young firms in arriving at the high-growth firm study 206–8
in high-growth firms’ contribution to employment study 163, 169, 170, 172, 173
in measuring growth study 76
organic growth 6, 30, 57, 170, 186–7
survival 160
young industries 161, 169, 172, 186, 206
Zahra, S.A. 143, 144, 148, 150