This manuscript would not have been completed without the assistance and support of a number of people. I am indebted to Kelvin Teo for his assistance in putting Chapter 5 together and for his technical support, to Roshanak Taghavi for her help in background research for Chapter 3 and for developing Chapter 12, and to Noora Arfaa for her assistance in completing a number of tables, putting together the Bibliography and Glossary, and for preparing the manuscript for the publisher. I am especially grateful to Meera Narayan for her dedication to the project and for developing the first drafts of Chapters 6–11.

My admiration, gratitude and debt to Professor Robert Merton Solow, my teacher, role model and friend, have grown continuously since I first met him as an undergraduate student at MIT in 1964; for me it is a thrill that he has yet again graciously written the Foreword to one of my books.

My wife, Anna, besides editing the first draft of this book and getting the manuscript ready for the publisher, gave me her total support and encouragement to put my thoughts on paper.

To all of them I want to express my heartfelt gratitude and thanks. This manuscript, besides any shortcomings that remain, is truly a reflection of their hard work, dedication, support and encouragement.

Finally, I must acknowledge the generosity of Iran for endowing the Iran Chair (originally Arayamehr) at the George Washington University in 1974. I am honored to be the second holder of this Chair.
