

Contents

---

Preface	vi
Acknowledgements	vii
1. A neo-structural legal perspective to economic power analysis	1
1. Introduction: The insufficiency of the antitrust concepts and instruments	1
2. Economic power and its multiple effects on the social and economic spheres: Monopolies and underdevelopment	2
3. The economic history of monopolistic colonial systems and its effect on the development process	9
4. Economic results vs legal values	16
5. An alternative: Legal structuralism and social organization	22
2. Economic power structures: Creation and existence	26
1. Identification of economic power: New paradigms	26
2. Criticism of traditional measurement	27
3. Market power structures	59
4. Legal structures	75
5. Dominance of common pool resources	97
3. Power structures: Dynamics and behavior	109
1. The importance of the structure of relations for the dynamics of power	109
2. Market behavior: Exclusion and collusion	110
3. Legal monopolies and dynamic abuse	200
4. Exploitation of natural resources: The environmental problem	213
4. Conclusion: From a general theory of economic power to a general theory of law?	216
Bibliography	218
Index	227