

Acknowledgements

As editors, on behalf of the IUCN Academy of Environmental Law, we take this opportunity to record our thanks and appreciation to our Brazilian hosts, the Brazilian School of Environmental Law and Policy and the Law for a Green Planet Institute, for their excellent support in the Academy's 2007 colloquium locations of Rio de Janeiro and Parati. Particular thanks are due to Kelen Meregali and her team for their diligent attention to the administrative arrangements that underpin any successful international gathering.

Thanks are also due to the United Nations Environment Programme for the contributions it has made on a continuing basis to facilitate the participation of scholars from developing nations at the Academy's colloquia.

The editors are also grateful to the University of Ottawa for its continuing support of the Academy's endeavours. In addition, Ben Boer acknowledges the infrastructure support of the Sydney Law School, together with that of the Law Department of the European University Institute in Italy, where he was the holder of a Fernand Braudel Senior Fellowship in 2010.

For the production of this book, we owe a debt of gratitude to Joanna Howse in Sydney for her copy editing and conversion of the chapters into camera-ready copy. Her patience and forbearance are very much appreciated.

Finally, we would like to express our appreciation for the support of the team at Edward Elgar in the United Kingdom and in particular for the editorial and practical guidance of Ben Booth, Rebecca Hastie and Laura Seward.

Jamie Benidickson, Antonio Herman Benjamin, Ben Boer and Karen Morrow

