Contributors

Ifedapo Adeleye is a Senior Lecturer in Strategy and Human Resource Management and an Associate of Etisalat Corporate Social Responsibility Centre at Lagos Business School (LBS). He teaches MBA, executive MBA and executive education courses in areas related to human resource management and organizational behaviour. Ifedapo has a keen interest in strategic talent management, which has informed his interest in understanding how organizations can leverage workforce diversity for strategic advantage. For several years, he has led sessions on diversity management on the MBA, Executive MBA, Executive Team Leadership, and other executive education programmes at LBS. His works on diversity management have been presented at practitioner and academic conferences fora, including the Equality, Diversity and Inclusion conference. Ifedapo received his PhD in Business Administration from Manchester Business School, UK, after completing a BSc (Econs) at University of Lagos, Nigeria, and MSc degrees in Economics and in Research Methods/HRM at Cardiff Business School, UK.

Doyin Atewologun is a Lecturer in Organizational Leadership and Learning at Queen Mary University London’s School of Business and Management, Associate Lecturer in Management at Birkbeck, University of London and Visiting Fellow at Cranfield School of Management and Lagos Business School. Doyin obtained her PhD from the International Centre for Women Leaders, Cranfield School of Management. Her thesis examined the impact of inclusive and non-inclusive practices on senior minority ethnic women and men’s identities in the UK. This work won Emerald’s Student Transnational Research Award at the Academy of Management and best paper in Gender in Management at the British Academy of Management (both in 2011). A Chartered and Registered Occupational Psychologist, Doyin is a founding member and Deputy Chair of the British Psychology Society ‘Diversity and Inclusion at Work’ group, a voluntary professional collective of academic and practitioner members committed to implementing evidence-based approaches to maximize positive outcomes in diverse workspaces. Doyin is a trainer, consultant and regular speaker at academic and practitioner conferences. She is also Professional Insights Editor for the Equality, Diversity and Inclusion Journal and a member of the Runnymede Trust 360 network of emerging leaders in race equality in the UK.

Anne-Françoise Bender is Assistant Professor at the Conservatoire National des Arts et Métiers in Paris, France. She teaches Human Resource Management, Organizational Behaviour and Research Methodology and has been during ten years in charge of the Master programme in Human Resource Management. Her research interests centre on Careers (career management, new forms of careers) and on Gender, Equality and Diversity Management. She coordinates, with Annie Cornet and Alain Klarsfeld, the Special Interest Group on Diversity and Gender of the French-speaking Association of Research in Human Resource Management.
Regine Bendl is Associate Professor at the Institute for Gender and Diversity in Organizations at the Vienna University of Economics and Business (WU Vienna) and does research on gender and diversity management, subtexts and queer perspectives in organization theory. An author and editor of numerous books, her writings have been published in Gender, Work & Organization, Journal of Management and Organization, British Journal of Management, Gender in Management: An International Journal, European Journal of International Management and Equality, Diversity and Inclusion: An International Journal. She has received a number of professional awards, including the Käthe Leichter Award for Women’s and Gender Studies 2006, a Best Paper Award EURAM 2007 (’Gender equality and diversity in management’) and an Emerald Highly Recommended Paper Award 2009 and 2014. She edits Equality, Diversity and Inclusion: An International Journal and Diversitas: Zeitschrift für Managing Diversity and Diversity Studies and is an editorial board member of Gender in Management: An International Journal and the British Journal of Management as well as associate editor of Gender, Work & Organization.

Inge Bleijenbergh is Assistant Professor at the Institute for Management Research, Radboud University Nijmegen, the Netherlands. She does research in the field of gender in organizations, participatory research methods, system dynamics and social policy. In 2011 and 2013 she received European Union 7th framework research grants for the project STAGES (Structural Change to Achieve Gender Equality in Science) and EGERA (Effective Gender Effective Gender Equality in Research). She is associate editor of Gender, Work and Organization and has published in Social Politics, European Journal of Industrial Relations, Quality and Quantity, Equality, Diversity and Inclusion, Marriage & Family Review and European Journal of Employment Relations.

Elena Bokovikova is a PhD student at Norwich Business School at the University of East Anglia. Her doctoral research focuses on the intersection of gender diversity and transition economy in male-dominated occupations, specifically within the Russian mining industry. She has presented this research at the Equality, Diversity and Inclusion conference and Doctoral Colloquiums. She is a member of the university Diversity & Equality in Careers and Employment Centre (DECERe) which looks at diversity in employment.

Lize A.E. Booysen is Professor of Organizational Behaviour and Leadership at Antioch University, USA and faculty on the PhD programme in Leadership and Change. She is adjunct faculty at the Center for Creative Leadership (CCL), International Section Editor of The South African Journal of Human Resources, on the editorial board of the Southern African Journal of Labour Relations, and past Chair of the Business Leadership member interest group of the International Leadership Association. She was co-investigator in the CCL’s 12 nation Leadership Across Differences (LAD) research (2003–10) and the GLOBE 65-nations cross-cultural leadership project (1994–2003). Prior to her current positions, Lize was Professor at the School of Business Leadership (SBL), University of South Africa (1992–2008). She does research and consults in the fields of leadership, culture, diversity and inclusion, has won several research-related awards and published numerous book chapters and scholarly articles.
John Burgess is Professor of Human Resource Management, Curtin University, Perth, Australia. He has published extensively with Glenda Strachan in the areas of equal employment opportunity (EEO) in Australia, and women and work. His current research includes human resource (HR) practices of multinational corporations, workplace change in call centres, and public policy and industry cluster development. Recent books include Industrial Relations in Australia (with Richard Sappey, Michael Lyons and Jeremy Buultjens), New Employment Actors: The Case of Australia (with Grant Michelson and Susanne Jamieson), International Perspectives on Temporary Agency Work (with Julia Connell) and Managing Diversity in Australia: Theory and Practice (with Glenda Strachan and Erica French).

Fiona Colgan is a Senior Research Fellow, Director of the Centre for Corporate Responsibility, Diversity and HRM (CRDHRM) and Course Leader for the MA in Human Resource and Employment Management (MA HREM) in the Business School at London Metropolitan University. She has published on a range of topics in the equality, diversity and employment relations field and is currently co-editing a book (with Professor Nick Rumens), Sexual Orientation at Work: International Issues and Perspectives, for the Routledge Studies in Management, Organizations and Society series.

Erica French is Associate Professor, Management, QUT Business School, Queensland University of Technology and currently researches and teaches in the areas Equity and Diversity Management; Organizational Studies and Project Management. Erica has been a consultant in the private and public sectors particularly in the area of equity management. She has also designed and delivered equity management training to management boards and work teams at a variety of organizations in the private, public and non-profit sectors. Erica has published her research on women in management; strategic change and equal employment opportunity both nationally and internationally in academic journals such as the British Journal of Management, Women in Management Review, Equal Opportunity International and Transportation Research Part A: Policy and Practice. Erica has been the President of the Equal Opportunity Practitioners Association Queensland for ten years, a non-profit organization for practitioners where she has been responsible for developing seminar and conference programmes for equity practitioners. She is also a board member and founding member of the Equal Employment Opportunity Network Australasia. She has recently published Managing Diversity in Australia: Theory and Practice with Glenda Strachan and John Burgess.

Rana Haq is Assistant Professor at the School of Commerce and Administration in the Faculty of Management at Laurentian University in Sudbury, Ontario, Canada. She teaches undergraduate and graduate courses in Organizational Behaviour and Human Resources Management (OB/HRM), both on campus and online. She is a Director on two multi-year partnership projects under the North American Mobility in Higher Education programmes funded by Human Resources and Skills Development Canada (HRSDC), US Department of Education’s Funds for the Improvement of Post-Secondary Education (FIPSE) and the Mexican Secretary of Public Education (SEP). She is also an Executive Committee member of the Professions North/Nord (PNN) programme designed for integrating professional Internationally Trained Immigrants (ITI) under a $3.2 million grant from the Ontario Ministry of Citizenship and Immigration (MCI).
Roswitha Hofmann is a researcher, scientific consultant (uebergrenzendenken, literally, to think beyond borders) and Lecturer at the WU Vienna and the University of Applied Sciences Wiener Neustadt (A). Her research focus is on sexual orientations/identities, intersectionality and on organizational learning under diversity perspective. In her lectures, research and publications she connects queer theoretical perspectives with organizational theories and diversity perspectives.

Alain Klarsfeld is Professor at Toulouse Business School (TBS), University of Toulouse. His research interests are the management of competences, equality, diversity, corporate social responsibility, and employment relations. He is the head of the Human Resource Department, as well as the head of a Human Relations and Resource Specialized Masters programme at TBS. He is on the editorial board of the British Journal of Management and a member of the Academy of Management, the International Labour and Employment Relations Association (ILERA) and the Society for Human Resource Management (SHRM), as well as of a number of French associations.

Sofya Kosheleva is Professor of Graduate School of Management at St Petersburg State University. She specializes in psychological aspects of human resource management, focusing on the gender differences in organization behaviour, effectiveness of managerial teams, human resource development (HRD) practices especially in knowledge-intensive firms. She has published in international scholarly journals and research monographs, and realized a consulting and training projects for different Russian and international companies. She is a member of the Editorial Review Board of Scientific Journals International (SJII), a member of the International Association of Economic Psychology (IAREP) and of the Academy of Human Resource Development (AHRD), Expert of Global Commerce Licence certification programme (European Economic Chamber of Commerce, Trade and Industry (EEIG)).

Jacqueline Laufer is a sociologist and Professor Emeritus at HEC-Paris. Her research interests include equal opportunity between men and women within firms and on the labour market, women in management and glass-ceiling issues, and diversity management. She is assistant director of MAGE, an international and multidisciplinary research network on labour market and gender, based in Paris. She is a member of the editorial board of the journal Travail, Genre et Sociétés. Among her recent publications are, in 2009, ‘L’égalité professionnelle entre les femmes et les hommes est-elle soluble dans la diversité?’, Travail, Genre et Société, 21 and, in 2011, ‘Women in management in France’, in M.J. Davidson and R.J. Burke (eds), Women in Management Worldwide, Progress and Prospects, Aldershot: Gower.

Jonna Louvrier is a postdoctoral researcher at the Hanken School of Economics in Helsinki, Finland, where she works in an action research project called NaisUrat (Womens’ Careers). Her PhD dealt with the meanings of diversity, difference and diversity management in Finland and France, and examined the issues from both the managers’ and the minority employees’ perspectives. Her research interests relate to diversity, equality and difference in the sphere of work, as well as to feminist theories, language, poststructuralism and critical management studies. She has previously worked as a researcher for, among others, the French Ministry of Culture, The Center for Creative Leadership and the European Monitoring Centre on Racism and Xenophobia. She teaches courses on gender and leadership at Hanken School of Economics and at the University of Helsinki, as well as giving talks about diversity and equality to organizations through her company, Leva Diversity Consulting.

Vera Mackie is Senior Professor of Asian Studies in the Faculty of Law, Humanities and the Arts at the University of Wollongong. She is co-editor (with Mark McLelland) of the Routledge Handbook of Sexuality Studies in East Asia (2014).

Olusegun Matanmi is a Professor of Human Resources and Industrial Relations and Dean of the Postgraduate School at Lagos State University, Nigeria. He possesses a BSc (Hons), Second Class Upper degree in Sociology from the Ahmadu Bello University, Nigeria, an MA in Industrial Relations from University of Minnesota, and a PhD in Industrial and Organizational Sociology from Michigan State University, USA. He was a Commonwealth Fellow at the Cardiff Business School, UK, in 1995. His core areas of academic and professional competencies as well as preoccupation are diversity management, employment relations, strategic HRM, entrepreneurship and innovation management, as well as organization and management issues involving metrics, measurement and research methodology. In recent times, a major strand of his research has focused on diversity management in the creative industries, and he has chaired a track on this topic at the Equality, Diversity and Inclusion conference.

Aidan McKearney is a Senior Lecturer in Human Resource Management at the Business School in London Metropolitan University and Course Leader for the MA in Human Resource Strategies at Moscow International Higher Business School (MIRBIS). His research interests centre on Equality, Diversity and Inclusion, Employee Engagement and Citizenship. Aidan has co-authored a number of publications on issues concerning sexual orientation in the workplace and is currently Guest Editor of a forthcoming special edition (on Men ‘Doing’ In-Equalities Research) for the international journal, Equality, Diversity and Inclusion.

Annalisa Murgia is Lecturer in Human Resources Management at the Department of Sociology and Social Research of the University of Trento. Her research focuses on work trajectories, especially on knowledge workers, workers with non-standard and precarious jobs, and the social construction of gender in professional careers. She has authored and co-authored several articles and books on these topics.

Eddy Ng is an Associate Professor at Dalhousie University, Canada. His research focuses on diversity and inclusion, including public policy on equal treatment (for example, employment equity and affirmative action), managing diversity for organizational competitiveness, changing work values, and career issues for women, minorities, older workers and the millennial generation. His work has been published in the British Journal of Management, Journal of Vocational Behavior, and Human Resource Management Review. He is an associate editor for Personnel Review and he also serves on the editorial boards of Management Communication Quarterly, Public Personnel Management and Employee Relations.

Stella M. Nkomo is a Professor in the Department of Human Resource Management at the University of Pretoria, Pretoria, South Africa. Her internationally recognized research on race and gender and diversity in organizations has been published in several journals, including Academy of Management (AoM) Review, AoMLearning.

Kaori Okano, PhD, is a Professor in the Asian Studies Program at La Trobe University. She researches education and social inequality, multiculturalism, indigenous education, transitions to adulthood, and the impact of globalization on education. Her recent publications include Minorities and Education in Multicultural Japan: An Interactive Perspective (edited with R. Tsuneyoshi and S. Boocock, 2011, Routledge), Handbook of Asian Education (edited with Y. Zhao et al., 2011, Routledge) and Young Women in Japan: Transitions to Adulthood (Routledge, 2009).

Barbara Poggio is Assistant Professor of Sociology of Organization and coordinator of the Center of Interdisciplinary Gender Studies of the University of Trento. She carried out several studies and researches on the social construction of gender in organizations, with a special focus on methodological issues. Her actual research interests mainly deal with gender policies in organizations and with gender and scientific careers. She published on international journals and with different international publishers.

Judith K. Pringle is Professor of Organization Studies, coordinator of the Gender and Diversity Research Group at AUT University, and also Adjunct Professor at Griffith University. Her research foci are: workplace diversity, women’s workplace experiences, bicultural research, intersections of social identities (gender/ethnicity/sexuality/age), and reframing career theory. She was co-editor of the Sage Handbook for Workplace Diversity (2006) and has published numerous book chapters, and in scholarly journals such as British Journal of Management, Equality, Diversity and Inclusion and International Journal of HRM.

Katherine Ravenswood is a Senior Lecturer in the Department of Management at AUT University. Katherine teaches employment relations, HRM and organizational behaviour. Her current research interests include: employee voice and well-being in aged care; family friendly policy and parental leave; and women and diversity at work.

Ian Roper is Principal Lecturer in the Department of Leadership, Work and Organization at Middlesex University in London. He researches and has written on issues relating to employment policy on work–life balance, the social reporting of global labour standards, the professional status of HRM and the impact of public service reform on public service work. He is on the editorial boards of Work, Employment and Society and Community, Work and Family.

Irene Ryan is Senior Lecturer, Management, Faculty of Business and Law, AUT University, Auckland, New Zealand. Her research interests are in the broad fields of gender, diversity and leadership with a particular interest in the sport context. Her publications reflect this broad research agenda. Irene is a recipient of a prestigious, New Zealand – Fast Start Marsden Award to fund a project exploring the relationship between organizational life, managerial work, leadership cultures and sport.

René Schalk is a faculty member of the Department of Human Resource Studies at Tilburg University and holds a special chair in Policy and Ageing at Tilburg University in the Netherlands. He is Extraordinary Professor at the Faculty of Economic and Management Sciences and the Workwell Research Unit for People, Policy and Performance at the Potchefstroom Campus of North West University in South Africa. His research focuses on organizations and employees, with a special interest for psychological contracts, international differences, policy issues, ageing and diversity.

Glenda Strachan is Professor, Department of Employment Relations and Human Resources, Griffith Business School, Griffith University, Australia. She has developed a body of research on contemporary and historical workplace change, especially issues that relate to equity and diversity and women’s working experiences. She has published extensively with John Burgess and Erica French in the area of equal employment opportunity in journals including the British Journal of Industrial Relations, Labour History, Equal Opportunities International, Women in Management Review and Asia Pacific Journal of Human Resources. In 2010 she published Managing Diversity in Australia: Theory and Practice with Erica French and John Burgess. She is currently Chief Investigator on an Australian Research Council Grant studying gender equity in universities. Prior to becoming an academic she worked with trade unions.

Ahu Tatli is a Senior Lecturer at Queen Mary University of London, UK. Her research explores intersectionality of disadvantage and privilege at work; inequality and discrimination in recruitment and employment; diversity management, agency and change in organizations. She has published widely in edited collections, practitioner and policy outlets and international peer-reviewed journals such as Academy of Management Review, British Journal of Management, Canadian Journal of Administrative Sciences, European Journal of Industrial Relations, Entrepreneurship and Regional Development, International Business Review, Human Relations and International Journal of Management Reviews.

Ashley Terlouw studied law at Utrecht University. Her PhD thesis (Radboud University Nijmegen, 2003) dealt with collaboration between judges. Ashley has worked with several organizations. She started in 1983 as teacher at the University of Utrecht in the International Private Law and Comparison of Law section. Successively she was legal policy adviser of the staff department Strategic Policy of the Dutch Refugee Council, secretary of the Permanent Committee of Experts in Aliens Refugee and Criminal Law, senior policy adviser at the District Court of the Hague, head of the refugee department of Amnesty International, and Assistant Professor of Migration Law at the Centre for Migration Law of the Radboud University Nijmegen. From 2004 to 2008 she was commissioner at the Dutch Equal Treatment Committee and since 2008 she has been full-time Professor of Sociology of Law at the Radboud University Nijmegen responsible for the Institute of Sociology of Law and the Centre for Migration Law.

Diane-Gabrielle Tremblay is Professor of Labour Economics, Innovation and Human Resources Management at the Téléc-umversité of the University of Quebec, Canada. She has been appointed Canada Research Chair on the socio-economic challenges of the knowledge economy in 2002 (www.teluq.uqam.ca/chairecosavoir/) and again in 2009, and director of a Community-University Research Alliance (CURA) on the management of social times and work–life balance in 2009 (www.teluq.uqam.ca/aruc-gats). She has published many books and articles and has been Invited Professor at Université de Paris I, Sorbonne, Université de Lille I, Université d’Angers, Université de Toulouse, Institut d’Administration des Entreprises de Lille I and of Lyon 3, Université de Louvain-la-Neuve, in Belgium, University of Social Sciences of Hanoi (Vietnam) and at the European School of Management.

Annamari Tuori is a PhD student at the Hanken School of Economics in Finland. Her research interests are around identities and social relations in organizations. In her thesis she has been looking at identity work and intersectionality of people working in the information technology (IT) sector in Finland.

Marloes van Engen is Assistant Professor at the Department of Human Resource Studies, Faculty of Social and Behavioural Sciences at Tilburg University where she lectures in Diversity in Organizations. Marloes is also Gender Policy Advisor for Tilburg University. Her research interests are in the area of work–family issues in organizations, gender and leadership, gender in organizations, gender and careers, diversity in teams and organizations, and the management of diversity in organizations. Furthermore, she has a strong interest in methodology, ranging from meta-analysis, multi-level analysis, qualitative research methods and action research methods. She was a visiting academic at Northwestern University (Chicago, USA), the University of Queensland (Brisbane, Australia), Monash University (Melbourne, Australia) and the Indian Institute of Science (Bangalore, India). She has published in journals such as Psychological Bulletin, Leadership Quarterly, Career Development International, Organizational Behavior and

Elena Zavyalova is a Professor and Head of Organization Behaviour and HR Management Department, Graduate School of Management, St Petersburg State University. Her scientific interests include problems of HRM and HRD: peculiarity of HRM/HRD in Russia, HRM/HRD in Brazil, Russia, India and China (BRIC), HRM/HRD and innovative work behaviour. She has published over 80 articles, reports and books, mainly about the problems of HRM and HRD. She has been a consultant with several Russian and international companies. She was awarded the prestigious decoration ‘Honourable Worker of Higher Professional Education of Russia’. She is a member of the editorial 