I would like to thank Professor Rolf H Weber to whom I am greatly indebted for his academic support. A lot of credit goes to him for his time, input and guidance throughout my research activities. A special thank you goes to Professor Frank Partnoy for his precious advice and invaluable suggestions. He has been a significant source of inspiration for this academic work. I acknowledge Professor Kern Alexander for his helpful observations and his involvement in this study.

I am very grateful to the University of Zurich and to the University of San Diego School of Law for making this research possible and, moreover, acknowledge that this academic work would not have been possible without the generous financial support of the Swiss National Science Foundation (Fellowship for Prospective Researchers) and the support of Professor Thomas Gächter in this context.

I am grateful to Professor George Mundstock, Professor Daniel J Mogin, Sean Egan, Dr David Vasella, Aneesh Pande and David Rosario for their insightful comments and stimulating discussions. My particular thanks go to Professor Christine Kaufmann for her encouragement. I also wish to express my very sincere thanks to Dr Alison Wiebalck for her contribution with respect to the language.

I thank Professor Lars Gorton and Professor Jan Kleineman for having me as a speaker at the Stockholm University Conference on Credit Rating Agencies; Professor Laurence Claus for giving me the opportunity to present my results at the University of San Diego School of Law; Professor Stephen K Halpert, Professor Robert E Rosen and Professor Richard L Williamson for allowing me to present my results at the University of Miami School of Law; Professor Jesper Lau Hansen and Anna Simonova for inviting me to give a lecture on my research project at the University of Copenhagen; Nicholas Lerche-Gredal for the opportunity of explaining my academic work at the Danish law firm Gorrissen Federspiel; and Professor Rolf H Weber, Professor Douglas W Arner and Professor Kern Alexander for letting me present my research at the University of Zurich. Their constructive feedback significantly enhanced my study.

All errors remain my sole responsibility.
