Contributors

Tüzin Baycan is Professor in Urban and Regional Planning at the Istanbul Technical University; Fellow of the Academia Europaea; Panel Member of ERC Advanced Grants for Social Science and Humanities: Environment and Society; editorial/advisory board member of International Journal of Sustainable Society, Studies in Regional Science, Romanian Journal of Regional Science and A/Z ITU Journal of Faculty of Architecture and author of many scientific papers and book chapters.

Christiaan Behrens is a PhD candidate at the VU University Amsterdam from November 2008 onwards. He received his MSc in Economics from VU University Amsterdam in 2007 and his second MSc in Urban Planning from the University of Amsterdam in 2008. His main research interest covers the interaction between aviation transport and (high speed) rail. He currently holds a grant for his research titled ‘Airline Network Competition’.

Roberto Camagni is Professor in Urban Economics and Economic Assessment of Urban Transformation at the Politecnico of Milan, Past-President of the European Regional Science Association (ERSA) and Head of the Department for Urban Affairs at the Presidency of the Council of Ministers, Rome, under the first Prodi Government, 1997–98. He is author of many scientific papers and a textbook on Urban Economics published in Italian, French and Spanish.

Roberta Capello is Professor of Regional and Urban Economics at the Politecnico di Milano, Italy, Past-President of the Regional Science Association International (RSAI), Editor-in-chief of the Italian Journal of Regional Science and co-editor of Letters in Spatial and Resource Science (Springer Verlag). She is the author of many scientific papers and a textbook on regional economics, published in Italian (Il Mulino) and English (Routledge).

Francisco Carballo-Cruz is Professor of Economics at the University of Minho where he teaches Public Economics, Regional Economics and Evaluation of Programs and Public Policies and is Director of the Department of Economics, Director of the Master’s in International Business and a member of the Steering Committee of the Master’s in Economics, Markets and Public Policies. His research areas are Transport Economics and Regional Economics and he has written several academic papers on these subjects.

Laura Casi is a PhD student at the University of Milan and junior researcher at ISLA-Bocconi University. Her scientific research focuses on economic geography, foreign direct investment and migration.

João César das Neves is Professor of Economics at Universidade Católica Portuguesa (UCP). He is currently President of the Scientific Council of the Faculdade de Ciências Económicas e Empresariais of UCP. From 1991 to 1995 he was economic advisor to the Portuguese Prime Minister, in 1990 advisor to the Portuguese Minister of Finance and in 1990/1991 and 1995/1997 technician at the Bank of Portugal. He is the author of more than 40 books and several scientific papers, and is a regular commentator for the Portuguese media.

Tomaz Ponce Dentinho is Associate Professor in Regional, Environmental and Agricultural Economics at the University of the Azores, Portugal. He is the Executive Director of the Regional Science Association International (RSAI) and President of the Portuguese Association for Regional Development (APDR). He is the author of several scientific papers and co-editor of a textbook in Methods in Regional Science, published in Portuguese.

Kieran P. Donaghy is Professor and Chairperson of the Department of City and Regional Planning at Cornell University. He is also the Director of Graduate Studies in the field of regional science. His recent research has focused on regional impacts of globalization and climate change and the evolution of commodity flow patterns. Donaghy is a fellow of the Atkinson Center for a Sustainable Future and is the regional science area editor for the journal Networks and Spatial Economics.

Nuno Ornelas Martins has a degree in Economics from the Catholic University of Portugal (Porto) and a PhD in Economics from the University of Cambridge (UK). He is Assistant Professor at the Faculty of Economics, Catholic University of Portugal (Porto). His main areas of professional interest are: Philosophy and Methodology of Economics, History of Economic Thought, Microeconomics and Behaviour and Development Economics.

Américo Mendes is Associate Professor at the Catholic University of Portugal, where he has taught since 1996. He is a Member of the Scientific Advisory Board of the European Forest Institute (network of 131 research organizations from 37 countries). His research and consultancy experience is in Environmental Economics and Natural Resources and Social Economy, and his teaching experience is in Microeconomics, Macroeconomics, Economic Policy, Economics and Politics of the Environment and Natural Resources, Economics and Social Policy, Economics of Information and Uncertainty, Industrial Economics, Game Theory, Public Economics, Economics of Human Resources, Regional Economics, Evaluation Projects and Social Ethics and Social Philosophy.

Bart Neuts is a PhD student in Tourism at the Department of Earth and Environmental Sciences of the Katholieke Universiteit Leuven. He holds a Master’s in Applied Economics and a Master’s in Tourism. He is a researcher at the Flemish Centre for Tourism Policy Studies and author of scientific papers and research papers, published in English or Dutch.

Peter Nijkamp is Professor in Regional Economics at the VU University Amsterdam. He is author of many books and articles in his field, as well as a member of several editorial boards of scientific journals. He has also been Vice-President of the Royal Netherlands Academy of Sciences and President of the Netherlands Organisation for Scientific Research.

José Pedro Pontes is Professor in Microeconomics and Urban Economics at the Technical University of Lisbon. He belongs to Associação Portuguesa para o Desenvolvimento Regional (APDR), the Portuguese branch of RSAI, and to the editorial board of its journal, Revista Portuguesa de Estudos Regionais (RPER). He is the author of a book on spatial and transport economics, the co-author of a book on the introduction to urban economics and author of many scientific papers.

Laura Resmini is Associate Professor in Economic Policy at the Università della Valle d’Aosta-Université de la Vallée d’Aoste. She is treasurer of the European Regional Science Association (ERSA), past Executive Director of the Italian Section of the RSAI and author of many scientific papers in International Economics and Location Theory, with special emphasis on the causes and consequences of foreign direct investment.

Mediha Sahin is a PhD student at the Department of Spatial Economics of VU University Amsterdam. She has a background in Business Administration, specializing in consultancy, and she investigates migrant (or ethnic) entrepreneurship. Sahin’s work on ethnic entrepreneurship focuses on factors that are critical to the success of businesses run by members of non-Western immigrant communities in the Netherlands. Her funding comes from a Mozaïek diversity grant from the Netherlands Organisation for Scientific Research (NWO).
Contributors

Joaquim Ramos Silva is Associate Professor at the School of Economics and Management, Technical University of Lisbon. He is a researcher in the field of international economics, the author of four books, editor or co-editor of another four books, and has published around fifty scholarly papers in journals and collective books; he has published in Portuguese, English, French and Italian.

Alina Todiras received her Bachelor’s Degree in Business Administration specializing in Tourism Management and Economics from the Academy of Economic Studies in Moldova after which she followed a two-year master’s programme at Jonkoping International Business School (Sweden) and has recently received her MSc in Business Administration specializing in Entrepreneurship and Innovation. During her graduate studies, she studied for one semester at the VU University Amsterdam, where she is now working as a Researcher at the Department of Spatial Economics.