Acknowledgments

This book is based on my dissertation written at Department of Economics at UMass Amherst. There are a lot of people who significantly contributed to the completion of this book in different ways. In this sense, I should admit, although all errors and mistakes are mine, this book is more a collective than a personal achievement.

First of all, I wish to thank my dissertation supervisor, Gerald Epstein, for his support and encouragement at every stage of the research. He is also the one who encouraged me to start this project. He has always been the source of inspiration. Without his constant support, this book may not have been possible.

It is an honor for me to thank the members of my dissertation committee, Depankar Basu, James Crotty, James Heintz and Arjun Jayadev. They were deeply involved in all stages of this research. Their thoughtful criticisms and insights helped me to improve the text. I will always be thankful for their patience and friendly support in difficult times.

A few people have a unique place in the process of completing this book: Janelle Cornwell, Josh Mason, Nicole Herdina, Judy Fogg and Duygu Kavak. Without Janelle’s full-hearted friendship and editing support this book would not have been possible. Josh’s sharp, friendly suggestions and help in editing contributed a great deal. Nicole always provided her friendship and editing support whenever I needed it. Similarly Helen Scharber, Emir Benli and Michelle Rosenfield contributed to the last stage of the manuscript with their editing support and insightful critiques. I am very grateful to Judy Fogg from the Political Economy Research Institute (PERI) who was always very helpful during my research days at PERI and gave me wonderful tips about several technical issues. With her emotional support, Duygu Kavak significantly contributed to the completion of this work.

I am indebted to many of my professors in different universities (Eyup Ozveren, Nadir Ocal, Erinc Yeldan, Al Campell, Onur Yildirim, Serap Asik and Elif Akbostanci) for their support and encouragement during my research.

I am also very grateful to Alan Sturmer, Alison Hornbeck and Elizabeth
Clack from Edward Elgar Publishing who have been very considerate and cooperative in this process of completing the manuscript.

Several of my friends also deserve special thanks for their warm support of all kinds throughout this journey: Ian Seda, Elsa Wiehe, Yasser Munif, Davide Bruno, Jooyeoun Suh, Amit Basole, Cem Oyvat, Yasemin Dildar, Raul Aprilli, Klara Zwickl, Harry Konstantinidis, Helen Scharber, Bilge Erten, Martin Rapetti, Cruz Bueno, Swati Birla, Serkan Demirkilic, Emir Benli, Zeynep Inanc, Hyung Woong Park, Jing Hao, Hwok-Aun Lee, Iren Levina, Miheea Tudoreanu, Jennifer Cohen, Lynda Pickbourn, Kerem Ulu, Hasan Tekguc, Huseyin Gencer, Ilker Cakmakkaya, Ceren Ergenç, Engin Ozkan, Seven Agir, Elif Karaçimen, Emre Ozcelik Mustafa Erdem Sakinc, and all the Economic Graduate Student Organization (EGSO) family of the Department of Economics at UMass Amherst. They are the ones, with their friendship and emotional support, who made this book possible.

Finally, I would like to express my gratitude to the three most important women in my life (my mom, my aunt Yeter and my sister Songul) and my dad to whom this book is dedicated. Their love and sacrifices made this book possible.
