Contributors

Magnus Andersson is an assistant professor at the Department of Human Geography, Lund University. He is also affiliated with the Centre for East and South-East Asian Studies. His current research focuses on socio-economic development in emerging markets in East and South-East Asia.

Christoph Dörrenbächer is a professor of organizational design and behaviour in international business at the Berlin School of Economics and Law, Germany. His current research focus is on subsidiary role development, headquarters–subsidiary relationships and careers in multinational corporations.

Jens Gammelgaard is Associate Professor at the Copenhagen Business School in Denmark. His main research interests are the strategic development of subsidiaries, as well as mergers and acquisitions, and strategic alliances. Furthermore he researches the brewery sector.

Mike Geppert is Professor of Comparative International Management and Organization Studies at the Surrey Business School, UK. His research focus is on cross-national comparisons of management and organizations, and on sociopolitical issues in multinational corporations.

Mélanie Gilles is a recent graduate from the MSc programme in International Business, HEC Paris School of Management, France.

Michael W. Hansen is Associate Professor at the Center for Business and Development Studies at the Copenhagen Business School in Denmark. His main research interests are strategies of multinational corporations (MNCs) and developing countries and emerging markets (focus on Asia and India), linkages between MNCs and local firms in developing countries, outward foreign direct investment from developing countries, and foreign direct investment and the environment.

Bersant Hobdari is Associate Professor at the Copenhagen Business School in Denmark. His main research interests are the governance relations between headquarters and subsidiaries, as well as location decisions of multinational enterprises.
Anne K. Hoenen is a PhD candidate at the Institute for International Business at the WU Wien, Vienna University of Economics and Business, Austria. Before joining academia, she gained professional experience in the airline and fast-moving consumer goods industry working in Germany, France, Switzerland, Singapore and Denmark. Her research focuses on the organization and strategy of multinational corporations from an agency theory perspective, internationalization and strategy making processes.

Graham Hollinshead is Reader in International and Comparative Human Resource Management at the Hertfordshire Business School, University of Hertfordshire, UK. His research interests include organizational transition in Central and Eastern Europe, international sourcing of business services, critical international management studies and employment practices in multinational corporations.

Kristian Jakobsen is Assistant Professor at the Copenhagen Business School in Denmark. His main research interests relate to the timing and performance of foreign market entry by multinational enterprises. Furthermore, his research interests encompass mergers and acquisitions, foreign direct investment (FDI) in emerging markets and the brewing industry.

Ari Kokko is a professor of international business at Copenhagen Business School. His current research focuses in particular on the role of trade and foreign direct investment in the development process.

Andres Kuusik (PhD) is Senior Lecturer of Marketing at the University of Tartu, Estonia. His research interests are related to customer loyalty, destination marketing and with psycho physiological measurements in product development.

Jorma Larimo is Professor of International Marketing at the University of Vaasa, Finland. He also holds a part-time Professorship of International Marketing at the University of Tartu, Estonia. His current research interests focus on international acquisition and joint venture strategies, subsidiary survival and divestments and foreign market and marketing strategies by small- to medium-sized enterprises (SMEs).

Lars Lund-Thomsen is Research Librarian at the AU Library, part of business and social sciences at the University of Aarhus, Denmark. He specializes in searches on business information.

Mairi Maclean is Professor of International Management and Organisation Studies at the University of Exeter Business School, UK. Her research interests include international business elites and elite power, storytelling, philanthropy, history and strategy, and comparative organization studies.

Erik S. Madsen is Associate Professor at the Department of Economics at the University of Aarhus, Denmark. Research interests include industrial economics and international economics.

Ana María Munar is Associate Professor at the Department of International Economics and Management, Copenhagen Business School, Denmark. Her research interests are in tourism and information and communication technologies, globalization processes, destination branding and policy and trends in tourism education.

Kurt Pedersen is Associate Professor at the Department of Business Administration at the University of Aarhus, Denmark. Research interests include the history of economic theory and business history.

Nicolai Pogrebnyakov is an assistant professor at Copenhagen Business School, Denmark. His research focuses on international business strategy, cross-border issues in the technology industry and technology strategy.

Caroline Ruhe is an MSc student in finance and banking as well as international management at the University of Cologne in Germany. Her main focus of study and interests are corporate finance, banking and strategic development.

Janne Smith is a recent graduate from the MSc programme in Business Administration and Economics, Norwegian School of Economics (NHH).

Seijiro Takeshita, PhD, is Director of Mizuho International plc in London, UK. His current research interests are transformation of business systems and diverging styles of governance under competing forms of capitalism.

Ian M. Taplin is Professor of Sociology and International Studies in the Department of Sociology, Wake Forest University, North Carolina, USA and Visiting Research Professor at Bordeaux Ecole de Management. His current research focuses upon the wine industry in California and North Carolina, looking specifically at the role of networks in cluster development and knowledge sharing.

Svenja Troll is a recent graduate at Copenhagen Business School in Denmark from the MSc programme in International Marketing and Management. Her main research interests are internationalization and expansion strategies of multinational corporations.

Urmas Varblane is Professor of International Business at the University of Tartu, Estonia. His current research interests focus on the internationalization of firms, spillover effects of foreign direct investments, and innovation behaviour of firms.

Christopher Williams, PhD, is Assistant Professor of International Business and Walter A. Thompson Faculty Fellow at the Richard Ivey School of Business in Canada. His research interests include innovation in multinational enterprises, knowledge creation and transfer, and offshore outsourcing.

Andreas Zaby is a professor at the Berlin School of Economics and Law. His work focuses on international management and entrepreneurial finance topics, particularly in the context of high-technology industries.