

Contributors

Robert C. Beckman is the Director of the Centre for International Law (CIL), a university-wide research centre at the National University of Singapore (NUS) which was established in 2009. In addition to serving as Director of the Centre, he also heads its Ocean Law and Policy programme and the CIL Documents Database Project. Professor Beckman received his JD from the University of Wisconsin and his LLM from Harvard Law School. He is an Associate Professor at the NUS Faculty of Law, where he has taught for more than 30 years. He currently teaches Ocean Law & Policy in Asia, Public International Law and International Regulation of Shipping. He is an expert on the issues of law of the sea in Southeast Asia, including piracy and maritime security. He served for several years as a regional resource person in the workshops on Managing Potential Conflicts in the South China Sea. He has represented Singapore in various CSCAP meetings on maritime security, and has worked for many years on the legal and policy issues relating to the Straits of Malacca and Singapore. Professor Beckman lectures in the summer programme at the Rhodes Academy of Oceans Law & Policy in Rhodes, Greece. He is also an Adjunct Senior Fellow in the Maritime Security Programme at the S Rajaratnam School of International Studies (RSIS), Nanyang Technological University (NTU).

Cheah Wui Ling is an Assistant Professor at the Faculty of Law of the National University of Singapore. Prior to joining academia, she served as a legal officer at Interpol (General Secretariat, Lyon), where she specialized in, among others, cross-border cooperation in criminal matters. She holds an LLM from Harvard Law School. For her Harvard studies, she was the recipient of a National University of Singapore Scholarship and the Kathryn Aguirre Worth Memorial Scholarship. She also holds an LLB and an LLM (by research) from the National University of Singapore. She is currently on study leave, and reading for a doctorate at Oxford.

Karsten von Hoesslin is a Senior Analyst with Risk Intelligence as well as a Visiting Fellow with the Centre for International Law, National University of Singapore (NUS). His research and interests cover both conventional and unconventional maritime security issues in the East and West African region as well as South East Asia with emphasis on syndicated criminal organizations, piracy, and trafficking (arms, drugs, and human) tactics and organizations. Karsten has written extensively on both Somali piracy as well as maritime security issues in South East Asia and has also presented at a number of international conferences on piracy, transnational crime, maritime law, boundary delimitation, and naval issues. Karsten holds a Masters in Strategic Studies and is also currently completing his PhD. Karsten has also served temporary postings at the United Nations International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea (ITLOS) and the International Maritime Organization (IMO), on the Executive Board for the Canadian Consortium on Asia Pacific Security and chaired its Maritime Security Task Group. Currently Karsten is an active member in the Maritime Security Working Group and the Transnational Crime Group with the Council for Security Cooperation in Asia Pacific (CSCAP) and its Canadian Delegation.

Mayla Fermina Alonzo Ibañez holds an LLM in International and Comparative Law from the National University of Singapore, an LLB from Mindanao State University, and a Bachelor of Science degree in Environmental Science from the Ateneo de Manila University. Her research interests include international and comparative law, ASEAN law and practice, and environmental law and policy. Prior to CIL, Mayla worked in policy and project management for the ASEAN Centre for Biodiversity, DOE-UNDP-GEF Philippine Efficient Lighting Market Transformation Project, Sarangani Provincial Government–Environmental Conservation and Protection Center, and the Senate of the Philippines. She is currently working as a Senior Officer (Executive Support) at the Office of the Secretary-General, ASEAN Secretariat.

Dr Marie Jacobsson is Principal Legal Adviser on International Law to the Swedish Ministry for Foreign Affairs and a Member of the United Nations International Law Commission (ILC). She is Associate Professor of International Law at the University of Lund, Sweden. Dr Jacobsson has experience of most of the international law issues dealt with by the Foreign Ministry's Legal Department. These issues include international peace and security, international humanitarian law, human rights law, the law of the sea, space law, polar affairs, environmental law, international criminal law, terrorism and disarmament, as well as more general areas such as treaty law, the law of international organizations, diplomatic protection and immunity.

Dr Jacobsson has a long-standing interest and engagement in the law of the sea and international peace and security. During the first Swedish Presidency of the EU (2001), she took an active part in placing the issue of piracy on the agenda of the EU Working Party on the Law of the Sea (COMAR), which led to the first EU statement on piracy at the United Nations. Dr Jacobsson subsequently participated in the first EU–ASEAN Conference on Maritime Security (Manila 2002) and has since maintained her interest in maritime security and piracy. She regularly participates in Working Group 2 on Legal Issues under the Contact Group on Piracy off the Coast of Somalia (CGPCS). Dr Jacobsson publishes regularly on matters relating to maritime security and is a frequent lecturer at various universities, including the World Maritime University (WMU), which operates under the auspices of the International Maritime Organization (IMO), a specialized agency of the United Nations.

Dr Nikos Passas is Professor of Criminal Justice at Northeastern University. His law degree is from the University of Athens (LLB), his Master's from the University of Paris-Paris II (DEA) and his PhD from the University of Edinburgh, Faculty of Law. He is a member of the Athens Bar (Greece). He specializes in the study of financial/trade flows, informal fund transfers, remittances, white-collar crime, corruption, terrorism, financial regulation, organized crime and international crimes. He has published more than 130 articles, book chapters, reports and books in 12 languages, including Informal Value Transfer Systems (IVTS) and Criminal Activities (2004), Legislative Guide for the Implementation of the UN Convention against Corruption, Legislative Guide for the Implementation of the UN Convention Against Transnational Organized Crime (2003), IVTS and Criminal Organizations (1999). He serves as editor-in-chief of the international journal Crime, Law and Social Change and associate editor of the International Journal of Comparative and Applied Criminal Justice, the Open Criminology Journal, and the European Journal on Criminal Policy and Research.

Dr Passas is currently working on corruption asset recovery, assessment of anti-corruption measures and governance, trade facilitated financial crimes and WMD proliferation, money laundering and terrorist finance, the implementation of the UN conventions against transnational crime and against corruption, and the regulation of remittances. Recent projects focused on the development of a self-assessment tool for the implementation of the UN Convention against Corruption and the UN Convention against Transnational Organized Crime and on research and analytical support for the International Association of Anti-Corruption Authorities (IAACA). He is also Team Leader for a European Union Commission project on the control of proliferation/WMD finance and serves as Advisor to the UN and Brazil's Auditor General on integrity and anti-corruption policies.

Captain J. Ashley Roach, JAGC, US Navy (retired) was attorney adviser in the Office of the Legal Adviser, US Department of State, from 1988 until he retired at the end of January 2009, responsible for law of the sea matters. He has taught, advised and published extensively on national maritime claims and other law of the sea issues, including piracy and armed robbery at sea. He has participated in the negotiation of numerous international agreements involving law of the sea issues. He received his LLM (highest honors in public international law and comparative law) from the George Washington University School of Law in 1971 and his JD from the University of Pennsylvania Law School in 1963.

Dr Termsak Chalermpanupap is Director of Political and Security Cooperation, ASEAN Secretariat. He joined the ASEAN Secretariat in February 1993. In July 1999 he was appointed Special Assistant to the Secretary-General of ASEAN, which he served until April 2009. Since 15 April 2009, he has been appointed to his current post. Dr Termsak assists the Secretary-General of ASEAN and the Deputy Secretary-General (APSC Department) on matters relating to political and security cooperation in ASEAN, the EPG on the ASEAN Charter, the ASEAN Charter, cooperation in East Asia, the ASEAN Standing Committee, the ASEAN Senior Officials Meeting (SOM), the ASEAN Ministerial Meeting (AMM), the ASEAN Defence Ministers Meeting (ADMM), the ASEAN Ministerial Meeting on Transnational Crime (AMMTC), and the ASEAN Summit, and issues arising from the ASEAN Charter, and conducts research on political and security issues of interest to ASEAN and the Secretary-General.

Anamika Twyman-Ghoshal began the PhD program at Northeastern University in Boston, MA in 2005 after completing a Master's degree in International Business Law from Queen Mary College, University of London. In addition she holds a Bachelor's degree in Law from University of Wolverhampton and a Postgraduate Certificate in Education from the University of Warwick. She is currently the Book Review Editor of Crime, Law and Social Change. Prior to joining the program, Anamika worked for the International Maritime Bureau in London investigating international shipping, trade and finance fraud as well as piracy. She is fluent in English, German, Polish, French and conversational Bengali. Her research interests include governance, globalization and how these affect crime, corruption, terrorism and maritime piracy.