

Acknowledgements

We gratefully acknowledge the support of our two funding sponsors. The National Science Foundation funded the case studies in the Americas under Project Resultar, through NSF Grant No. SES 072–6919. Support for the European and African case studies came from the Citizens and Governance in a Knowledge Based Society priority of the European Commission’s Sixth Framework Programme (FP6) through Project ResIST, Researching Inequality through Science and Technology (<http://www.resist-research.net/home.aspx>). All opinions, findings, conclusions and recommendations in the book are those of the authors and do not reflect the views of our sponsors.

We thank our colleagues in the ResIST and Resultar projects for the stimulating dialogue around inequality issues within which this project developed and for regular feedback as our findings and analysis emerged. Peter Healey and Rob Hagendijk provided particularly helpful critique at many stages. Mark Knell, co-leader of the relevant work package of ResIST, was our partner in intellectual engagement throughout the process. We also thank the consultants who contributed inputs to the chapters or reviews and advice: Jeffrey Dellimore (Barbados), Sybille Gaisser (Germany), Lucas Luchilo (Argentina), Jeffrey Orozco (Costa Rica), Jim Ryan (Germany), Tanya Sammut-Bonnici (Malta), Arnoldo Ventura (Jamaica) and Richard Zammit (Malta).

Finally, this book is dedicated to Noel Zarb Adami, our ever-traveling but tireless colleague with experience of multiple cultures, who lost the fight with diabetes while the book was in preparation.

