Index

accessibility to terminals 126–48
  paradox with sustainability 224–5, 227, 240–241 AdT and FS (Amici della Terra’ and ‘Ferrovie dello Stato’) 163, 177 price elasticities 192–6 AHP (Analytic Hierarchy Process) 252, 255–6, 263
air pollutant emissions 180, 192–201 air transport 126–48 access time 139–40
  access time to terminals 133, 140–144 competition with HST 127, 144–7 competitiveness 142–4
  disruption caused by weather 35, 37
  marginal utility of travel time 136–8, 146–7 probability of using 143–6 Ajala, L. 102, 103
Algeciras
  port 72
  hinterland 97
Antwerp
  competitiveness 92
  hinterland 95
  Oosterweel road connection 258, 266
  port 72
Aronietis, R. 14–15, 16, 18–19
Atocha HST station 127, 129, 138–47
Bain, R. 52, 55
Banister, D. 3, 30, 227
Banville, C. 249, 257, 258
Barajas airport 127, 128, 138–46
Barcelona
  hinterland 96
  port 82, 84, 88–90
  see also Madrid-Barcelona corridor barge transport 38, 39, 41, 224 barriers to entry 105–6, 114, 115
Bay Rapid Transit System (BART) 57–8
Beddow, M. 102, 103
Bektas, E. 108, 109
Belgium 75, 81, 93
Ben-Akiva, M. 19, 134
benchmarks 58–9
  stakeholder bias 248–66
Bleimer, M.C.J. 59, 128
Bordi count method 263, 265
Bradley, M.A. 130, 134, 148
Bremerhaven
  hinterland 95
  level of competitiveness 92
  port 72
Bressers, N.E.W. 235, 240
Brundtland Report 29, 225–6 buffer inventories 176 build–operate–transfer projects 55 bus travel effects of weather on 43–4
  Madrid-Barcelona corridor 132, 135–8
  Munich, Germany 185
Button, K.J. 50, 51, 52, 55, 58
Cable, J.R. 105, 109, 112
Campania region
  interporti 161–4
  sea-land intermodal logistics system in 159–60 capacity utilization overprediction of 51
    rail, in Campania region 165, 175 and weather 38–41
car ownership forecast inaccuracies 51, 56 car travel effects of weather 42–3, 44
  Madrid-Barcelona corridor 127–9, 130, 132, 135–8, 140–1, 143, 144–7 car user costs study 180–181, 199–201 methodology 181–3 relationship between car travel demand and air pollutant emissions 192–9 simulation 187–9
catastrophes, climate-related 41–2 CCNI shipping company 101, 117, 120–122, 124–5
  Charleston port 76, 77, 85
  Chen, Y. 187, 192
  Chung, E. 42–3
climate change
  climate and disruptions in transport networks 35–8 climate and travel demand 42–5 impact of catastrophes on 41–2 mitigation and adaptation 29–32 and policy 45–6, 242
  weather and capacity utilization 38–41 cognitive bias 250
  Combes, F. 19, 176
commercial traffic 186–7 commodity categories 76, 78, 79, 85 common ranking method 263, 265 commuter traffic 185–6
competition
  in logistics chains 10, 20–21, 24 modal 126–9, 140–147 between supply chains 13–14
  see also port competition congestion charging 56 container liner shipping industry entry and exit conditions 99–100
    involvement in TOCs 25
    market structure 99
    operators 101
    profitability of 100–103 loops 14
  vertical integration by 22
  see also port hinterland container logistics study containerized trade data data description 72–6
  data source and data preparation 70–72 content analysis 1, 4–7 Coppens, F. 11, 12
  Cornell, J.A. 211–12
  ‘corruption’ in forecasts 61
  COSCO Container L. shipping company 22–3, 25, 101, 102, 103, 110, 112, 117 counting stations 190–192
  CSAV shipping company 23, 101, 103, 117, 120–122, 124–5
  CSCL (China Shg C.L.) shipping company 101, 102, 103, 118, 120–122, 124–5 Cullinane, K. 99, 151
  cycling 3, 42–5
  Daly, A.J. 130, 134, 148
data challenges for forecasters 53–4 Davies, J.E. 99, 116–17
decision making complexity of, in transport sector 228–9, 230, 238 forecasts as technical input into 59 need for good forecasts 49–50, 51–2 transport studies on 3–7 within supply chain 14–15 and uncertainty 61
  see also multi-criteria group decision making (MGDM) dedicated terminals 24, 26 demand side data (Munich) 184–7 Demirel, E. 38, 41
disaggregate discrete mode split model 57–8 discounting procedures 61 discrete choice experiment (DCE) 128–9, 148 dishonesty 251, 252
do-nothing solution 56–7, 66
‘doctoring’ of cases 62
Index

271

Drewry Shipping Consultants 22, 25, 26, 103

dry ports 151, 174
dual interport model 157–8 dynamic social context 242 dynamic view of competitive processes 104

Eads, G.C. 35, 37
EBITDA 100, 108, 117, 120–121 emission modeling tool 182–3 energy conservation study 208–10 illustration 216–19
mixture amount experimental designs 213–16 mixture-amount models 210–212 energy scarcity 29
energy use 29–30
engineering
forecasting methods based on 49, 57, 58, 59 increased flexibility 61, 67 environmental sustainability
air pollutant emissions 196–9
and transport 2–3, 4–7 paradox with accessibility 240–241 retaining principle of 240 see also sustainable mobility, management of Euclidean distance 78, 80
European Logistics Centres (ELCs) 15 European waterborne exports 72–6 experimental design approach 208–10, 213–16 extended gateway 150–153, 173–6 applications of interport model 161–4 sea-land intermodal logistics system 159–60
factor analysis 70
Felixstowe
hinterland 96
port 72
financing, more flexible 61, 67 flooding 31, 41–2
Flyvbjerg, B. 50, 51, 52, 58, 59, 60, 62
Follmer, R. 185, 189

forecasting see transportation forecasting composite functional space 90–91 composition of hinterlands 81–4, 86–7 containerized trade data 70–76
functional space and commodity distribution 85, 89 functional space and traffic with US ports of entry 85, 88 hinterlands of major European 95–8 MDS results and interpretation 81–91 ports 91–3
traffic by commodity type 79
see also port competition
Fos
hinterland 97
fossil fuels 29, 256
France 72, 74–5, 81, 91
freight combining loads 240
flows 72, 75, 76, 91, 151 forwarders 92, 174, 248 impact of weather on transport 35, 42 rates 22, 102–3
shift in transport modes 33, 34 shipment flows 70–71
traffic emissions 194–5 volumes 23

game playing 54–5, 58–9
Ganesh, L.S. 251, 252
Gatrell, A. 68, 80
Geerlings, H. 225, 226, 228, 229, 230, 233, 237, 239
Genoa
hinterland 96
port 81–2, 84, 88–90
Geographical Information System 138 Germany 72, 74–5, 81, 182
see also Munich, Germany
Geroski, P.A. 99, 104–5, 106–7, 108
Gioia Tauro
hinterland 97
port 72
Glen, J. 107, 109
Goddard, J.A. 108, 114
Gothenburg
    hinterland 97
    port 81–2, 84, 88–90

governance, smart integrative action perspective, need for 229–31 traditional approach 228–9 greenhouse gas emissions 29–30, 153 Grin, J. 232, 235

group decision making (GDM) 250 group fragmentation 259

Hajkowicz, S. 249, 252, 263

Hamburg
    hinterland 95
    level of competitiveness 92
    port 16–20, 72

Heaver, T. 24, 99

hinterlands
    and port choice 14–15
    connectivity 16–17, 26
    of European ports 73–4, 80–86, 90–92, 95–8
    operators 22
    and port congestion 27
    transport modes 17–18

HST (high-speed train) networks study accessibility levels to terminals 147–8
    access time to terminals 133, 140–144
    presence of station 127 Spanish 126
    spatial analysis 138–40, 144–7

Hülsmann, F. 181, 183

Hurricane Katrina 41

Iannone, F. 151, 153, 161, 169, 177 incentive structures 61–2, 67 infrastructure damages 41 inland water transport 38, 39, 41, 224 inner-urban traffic 185 innovation 241–2
    interport models 152–3, 156–8, 161–73, 174–7

investment flexibility 61, 67
    impact of poor forecasting on 51–2 port project 16–17, 26

Italy 72, 74–5, 91
    see also Campania region study

Jacquemin, A. 99, 104–5, 107
Jara-Díaz, S.R. 135, 148

Kain, J. 51, 54, 62

KNMI 31, 32

Kruskal, J.B. 76, 78, 80

La Spezia
    hinterland 95
    port 72

Le Havre
    hinterland 95
    port 16–20, 72

Leghorn
    hinterland 96
    port 81–4, 88–90

Lipczyński, J. 104, 105, 113, 115, 117

Lisbon
    hinterland 98
    port 81–4, 88–90

Liverpool
    hinterland 96
    port 81–4, 88–90
    load factors 38–9

logistics chains
    competition 10, 20–21, 24
    port as integral link in 11–13 port hinterland container 150–177

London (port)
    hinterland 98
    port 81–4, 88–91

London roads 51, 56

loss aversion bias 251

Louviere, J.J. 134, 209

M25 London orbital road 51

Macharis, C. 248, 250, 254, 255, 257, 258 machine-learning algorithms 71

Madrid-Barcelona corridor 126
    access times to terminals 140–142
Index

metropolitan area of Madrid 138
modal competitiveness 144–7 nature of travel in 130–133 population and employment distribution in Madrid 138–44, 147 probability of using air transport 142–4 Maersk Line shipping company 101, 102, 103, 110–115, 117, 120–125
MAMCA (Multi-Actor Multi-Criteria Analysis) approach and methodology 253–5, 263, 265–6 stakeholder bias within 255–7 choice of criteria 261–2 choice of criteria weights by actors 262 choice of stakeholders 257–61 as tool for transport evaluation 248–9, 250 Marcianise interport 159–65, 167, 171–5, 177 market intelligence method 71
market structure 1–6, 99
Martín, J.C. 126, 148
MATSim
simulation approach
choice dimensions 187
utility functions 187–8 simulation procedure 188–9 transport simulation 181–2 learning process 206
modal split 189–90
plan evaluation 205–6 plan generation 204
traffic flow simulation 204–5
Matson shipping company 101, 117–18, 120–122, 124–5
Mcfadden, D. 57, 133, 134, 148 MDS (multidimensional scaling) analytical fitting process 78, 80 application to matrices 80 Meersman, H. 6, 10, 12, 20, 21, 22, 68, 69 misrepresentation of facts 251 mixture-amount experiments experimental designs context-dependent mixture-amount model 216 context variables 215–16 mixture components 213
models 210–212
modal competitiveness
and access time to terminals 140–144 effect of car accessibility 129 and levels of service 127 spatial analysis of 144–7 modular split 189–90
Mueller, D.C. 104–5, 107–8, 109, 112, 113, 114 multi-criteria decision analysis (MCDA) 249–50, 253, 255, 263 multi-criteria group decision making (MGDM) 249–50, 252
multinomial logit (MNL) model 134
Munda, G. 250, 257, 258
Munich, Germany 184–201
Naples
in Campania region study 159–77
port 81–4, 88–91
hinterland 97
nested logit (NL) model 134–6 Netherlands 72, 74, 75, 81 changes in temperature and precipitation 31, 32 energy prices 213
flooding problems 41–2
as leading trading country 72–3 policy making 230–231, 235–6 railway network disruptions 35, 36 trip-making and weather 43–5 see also Transumo A15 experiment
New York/New Jersey (port) 74, 76, 77, 85
Nola interport 159–77
Notteboom, T. 68, 151, 177
NYK shipping company 22–3, 25, 101, 103, 117, 120–121, 123–5 Ortúzar, J. de D. 134, 135, 136 out-of-pocket expenses 14, 15–16, 18, 19, 26

People Planet Profit (P3) 1–2, 240 perceptual bias 250
Persistence of Profit (PoP) approach 116, 104–7, 107–9, 115
Pickrell, D.H. 51, 52
Piraeus
hinterland 98
port 81–4, 88–90
policy integration 3, 46, 229–30, 241 policy making 3–4, 56, 229–31, 235–6, 245
pollutants 29, 180, 196–9, 201 port competition concentration movement of terminal operators 24 cooperation between authorities 26 forwarding ports 68–70, 84–5 as heterogeneous structures 12–13 nature of 13–14
capacity interventions assessment 16–17 decision making within supply chain 14–15 hinterland transport modes assessment 17–18 port assessments 15–16 relationship between size and performance 18–20 concept 9–10
extended gateway concept 151–2 port in logistics chain 11–13 optimization of 150 port selection 14–15
port hinterland container logistics 173–7 service providers 11–12
structural evolution within 21 taking initiatives 26
see also container liner shipping industry Port Import Export Reporting Service (PIERS) 71, 91 positive confirmation bias 251 private sector forecasts 55, 60, 67 profitability measures 100 net profit 124–5

operational results 120–121 return on sales 122–3 ROA (return on assets) as 107–8 profitability of container liner shipping industry 100–103 PROMETHEE method 255
public sector forecasts 55, 60, 66–7 Raghavarao, D. 212, 214 railway network
cost advantages of water transport 38
disruption caused by weather 35, 36
as hinterland transport mode 18 investment projects 17
within port hinterlands logistic network 153–8, 160–169, 171–7
and transportation forecasts 51
see also HST (high-speed train) networks study Ramanathan, R. 251, 252
Rand Corporation 61
random utility theory 133–4, 181, 187 RCL shipping company 101, 103, 113, 117–18, 120–121, 123–5 rent seeking behaviour 252 revealed preference (RP) approach 128–9, 130, 133–5, 208–9 Rhine
uncertainty on water discharges 40 water levels and load factors 39 Rietveld, P. 31, 37, 148
ROA (return on assets) 107–8 road transport
access times to terminals 138–9
and air pollution 182–3
cost advantages of water transport 38
disruption caused by weather 35, 37
as hinterland transport mode 18
in Munich 184, 187, 190, 196–200
within port hinterlands logistic network 150, 153–5, 157–8, 160–164, 168–9, 171, 174–5, 177
renting roads 62
in Rotterdam 237–9
and transportation forecasts 51–2, 56
Rodrigue, J.-P. 68, 151
Român, C. 126, 148
Index

ROS (return on sales) 100, 102, 108–9, 122, 123
Rose, J.M. 59, 128
Rotmans, J. 232, 233, 234–5, 236, 238
Rotterdam 16–20, 236–8
  hinterland 95
  level of competitiveness 92
  port 72
  ‘Second Maasvlakte’ 224–5, 237
  Transumo A15 experiment 236–45
RSB 184, 185
safety stock 176
Salerno 159–77
San Francisco International Airport 35, 37 Schumpeter, J. 104
sea-land intermodal logistics system 159–60 sensitivity analyses 59, 201, 258, 263
service providers 11, 25–6
shadow prices 158, 170–173 Shepard plots 80, 81, 85–7 shipping companies and port selection 14–16 as important port clients 21, 26 as port user 11–12
  capacity increase by 23
  involvement in TOCs 25
  overcapacity 22, 27
  vertical integration by 22
simulation see transport simulation Sines
  hinterland 98
  port 81–5, 88–91
Southampton
  hinterland 97
  port 81–4, 88–90
Spain 73–5, 81, 108, 126
  see also Madrid-Barcelona corridor spatial analyses
  car travel and air pollutant emissions 196–9, 200 Madrid area 138–40
  access times to terminals 140–144
  of modal competitiveness 144–7 ‘splitting bias’ 252 stakeholder bias in transport evaluation 248–9, 265–6 group decision processes 250–252 MAMCA approach 253–5
  multi-criteria group decision making (MGDM) 249–50 within MAMCA 255–62
stated preference (SP) approach 19, 59, 129–30, 134–7, 185, 209, 210, 213
Stead, D. 229, 230
Stern, N. 29, 61
  strategic bias 249, 252, 255, 263, 265–6 stress/stress value 78, 80 Structure-Conduct-Performance (SCP) 104 supply chains competition between 13–14
  decision making 14–15
  perspective 258
  successful 25
supply side data (Munich) 184 sustainable mobility, management of 224–5 application of new principles in transport 231–5 application of transition management in transport 235–44 demand for sustainable transport 225–7 governance reflex 228–31 see also environmental sustainability SWOT analysis 55, 66–7
symmetric bias 58
Sys, C. 99, 110, 117
Tennessee–Tombigbee Waterway project 62 terminal operating companies (TOCs) 10, 21, 25 terminals
  access times to and modal competitiveness 140–144, 147–8 differences in access time to 130–133
TEU (Twenty-foot Equivalent Unit) 72–5, 79, 95–8 Thore, S. 153, 161, 169, 177 threat of entry 99, 103–4, 105–7, 117 traffic commercial 186–7
  commuter 185–6
  inner-urban 185
  traffic flows 52, 53, 55, 158, 182–3, 240 transition management in Dutch transport policy making 235–6 concept 231–4
  flexible project architecture 243–4 Transumo A15 experiment in the Rotterdam Port area 236–42 transparency 229–30, 265–6 transport application of new principles 231–5 classification of studies 1–7 climate change adaptation 29–46 demand for sustainable 225–7 transport policy 1–7 transport evaluation see stakeholder bias in transport evaluation transport simulation
  approach
    choice dimensions 187
    utility functions 187–8
    with MATSim 181–2, 204–6 procedure 188–9
transportation forecasting 49–50, 62–3 causes of mis-forecasting implementing forecasts 53–4 technical problems 52–3 using forecasts 54–5 scale of problem and impacts 51–2 SWOT analysis 55, 66–7
  bringing more views into 59 correction factors 58–9
  do-nothing solution 56–7 engaging private sector 60 flexible financing and engineering 61 forecast methodologies improvement 57–8
  improve incentive structures 61–2
Transportation Research Board (TRB)
  226, 227
Transumo A15 experiment 236–45
travel demand and climate 42–5 trips, effects of weather on 43–5 Turcksin, L. 256, 258

UASC shipping company 22–3, 101, 117–18, 120–121, 123–5 uncertainties

  in climate change 31–2, 39–41, 45 and forecasting 59, 61, 66–7 United Kingdom 73–5, 81
urban bus performance 43
US-bound containerized traffic 72–5, 79, 95–8
US ports of entry 76–7, 85

Valencia
  hinterland 96
  port 72
value trees 250, 252
Van de Voorde, E. 3, 6, 7, 9, 10, 11, 20, 21, 22
van Wee, B. 50, 54
Vanelander, T. 6, 9
Veldman, S. 9, 69
Verhoef, J.M. 9, 13 vessel operating common carriers 100 virtual interport nodes 153–6, 157

Wachs, M. 50, 54–5, 56–7, 62
Wan Hai Lines 23, 101, 103, 117, 120–121, 123–5
Waring, G.F. 104, 108
water levels 34, 39
weather and capacity utilization 38–41 disruption to transport networks 35–8 warnings 38
willingness to pay (WTP) measures 128
Willumsen, L.G. 134, 136
Wilson, J.O.S. 108, 114
Wish, M. 76, 78, 80
World Commission on Environment and Development (WCED) 29, 225–6

Yang Ming Line 22–3, 25, 101, 103, 110, 117, 120–121, 123–5 Yurtoglu, B. 107, 108, 109

Zeebrugge, port of 16–20
ZIM shipping company 22–3, 101, 117, 120–121, 123–5