Contributors

Arthur E. Appleton is Partner at Appleton Luff – International Lawyers (Geneva); Adjunct Professor, Johns Hopkins University School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS – Europe); Visiting Faculty and Board Member: World Trade Institute (WTI – University of Bern); Visiting Faculty: International Law and Policy Programme (IELPO – University of Barcelona).

Robert Brauneis is Professor of Law and Co-Director of the Intellectual Property Program at The George Washington University Law School. Professor Brauneis joined the Law School faculty in 1993. After graduating from law school, he served as a law clerk to Judge Stephen G. Breyer of the US Court of Appeals for the First Circuit (now Justice Breyer), and to Justice David H. Souter. Professor Brauneis has also served as an Assistant Corporation Counsel for the city of Chicago. His teaching interests include property, copyright, trademark and intellectual property theory. Professor Brauneis is a member of the Managing Boards of the Munich Intellectual Property Law Center and the Creative and Innovative Economy Center. In 2007–8, he served as President of the Giles S. Rich American Inn of Court.

Leïla Choukroune (LLM, PhD, Paris I Panthéon-Sorbonne, Lawyer Paris Bar) is the Director of the CSH (Centre de Sciences Humaines), the multidisciplinary research centre on South Asia based in New Delhi (India), and Senior Lecturer (Associate Professor) at Maastricht University Law Faculty. She was Deputy Director of the Institute for Globalization and Economic Regulation (IGIR) and Director of Studies of the advanced Masters in International and European Economic Law (IEEL). She is faculty at the World Trade Institute (Bern) and Trade Policy Training Centre in Africa (Arusha).

Leïla teaches international economic law at Maastricht University Law Faculty and Graduate School of Governance, where she coordinates courses on international investment, the WTO and development law.

Her research deals with the interactions between trade, investment and human rights, with a special interest in the emerging world and Asia, China and India in particular. Prior to joining Maastricht, she was Assistant Professor at HEC Paris, Lecturer at Paris Sorbonne Law School and Researcher at the French Centre for Contemporary China Studies (CEFC) in Hong Kong.

David Collins is Reader in International Economic Law at the City Law School of City University London, a Fellow of the Institute for Globalization and International Regulation at Maastricht University, and a Visiting Professor at the Esade Law School in Barcelona, Spain. David holds a PhD from Maastricht University, a BCL from the University of Oxford and a JD from the University of Toronto. He is a Solicitor of England and Wales and is admitted to the Bars of Ontario, Canada and New York State, USA. David has been a consultant for the World Bank, the Commonwealth Secretariat and a UK cross-parliamentary committee on trade and development.

Thomas Cottier is Managing Director of the World Trade Institute (WTI) and the Institute of European and International Economic Law, and a Professor of European and International Economic Law at the University of Bern. He directed the national research programme on trade law and policy (NCCR Trade Regulation: From Fragmentation to Coherence), at the WTI, from 2005 to 2013. He was educated at the University of Bern and University of Michigan Law School, and was a Visiting Fellow at Cambridge University, UK. He has taught at the University of St. Gallen, Neuchatel and the Geneva Graduate Institute in Geneva and also regularly teaches at the Europa Institut Saarbrücken, Germany, Paris I (Sorbonne), Turin University, Italy and Wuhan University, China. He was a member of the Swiss National Research Council from 1997 to 2004 and served on the board of the International Plant Genetic Resources Institute (IPGRI), Rome, during the same period. He served the law firm Baker & McKenzie as Of Counsel from 1998 to 2005. Professor Cottier has a long-standing involvement in GATT/WTO activities. He served on the Swiss negotiating team of the Uruguay Round from 1986 to 1993, first as Chief Negotiator on dispute settlement and subsidies for Switzerland and subsequently as Chief Negotiator on TRIPS. He was the Deputy Director-General of the Swiss Intellectual Property Office and has served as a member or chair of several GATT and WTO panels. Professor Cottier has written and published on a wide range of trade, European law and international law issues. His main research interests are in constitutional theory of multilevel governance and theory of international law, external relations of the EU, intellectual property, innovation and the challenges of climate change in international economic law.

The principle of national treatment in international economic law
Contributors

Lothar Ehring is the Assistant to Mr. Péter Balás, Deputy Director-General at the Directorate-General for Trade of the European Commission, responsible for WTO and legal affairs, trade strategy, trade defence and bilateral trade relations with the rest of Europe, Central Asia and North America. Previously, Lothar served in the Legal Unit of the European Commission’s Directorate-General for Trade. He was the Coordinator for legal issues of multilateral trade, handled WTO disputes and also represented the European Union in the negotiations on the reform of the WTO Dispute Settlement Understanding. Lothar Ehring specializes in horizontal questions of dispute settlement, the law of non-discrimination, transit and export restrictions, and institutional questions of the WTO, topics on which he also lectures at universities and publishes in law reviews.

Prior to his appointment to the European Commission, Lothar briefly worked as Legal Affairs Officer in the Legal Affairs Division and the Appellate Body Secretariat of the World Trade Organization in Geneva, on dispute settlement cases and occasionally training trade officials from member governments. He graduated in law from the University of Passau in Germany, and holds the German qualification for the judicial office and a Master of Public Administration from Harvard University.

James Flett works in the WTO and Trade Policy team of the European Commission Legal Service. He has represented the European Commission in 120 cases before the ECJ, and the EC in 90 proceedings before the WTO. He regularly advises the Commission on WTO law. Mr. Flett has a law degree from the London School of Economics and Political Science, and a Masters in law from the College of Europe, Bruges. He is a qualified solicitor. Before joining the Commission Legal Service in 1995 Mr. Flett spent several years working for the international law firms Clifford Chance and Van Bael & Bellis, in London and Brussels, with a particular emphasis on international trade law (notably anti-dumping).

Christopher Heath studied at the Universities of Konstanz, Edinburgh and the London School of Economics. He lived and worked in Japan for three years, and between 1992 and 2005 headed the Asian Department of the Max Planck Institute for Patent, Copyright and Competition Law in Munich. Christopher, who wrote his PhD thesis on Japanese unfair competition prevention law, is a Member of the Boards of Appeal at the European Patent Office in Munich, co-editor of Intellectual Property and Competition Law (IIC) and editor of the Max Planck Institute’s Asian Intellectual Property Series published by Kluwer Law International.
Anselm Kamperman Sanders is Professor of Intellectual Property Law, Director of the Advanced Masters Intellectual Property Law and Knowledge Management (IPKM LLM/MSc), and Academic Director of the Institute for Globalization and International Regulation (IGIR) at Maastricht University, the Netherlands. He acts as Academic Co-director of the Annual Intellectual Property Law School and IP Seminar of the Institute for European Studies of Macau (IEEM), Macau SAR, China and is Adjunct Professor at Jinan University Law School, Guangzhou, China. Anselm holds a PhD from the Centre for Commercial Law Studies, Queen Mary, University of London, where he worked as a Marie Curie Fellow before joining Maastricht University in 1995. He is a member of the European Commission expert group on development and implications of patent law in the field of biotechnology and genetic engineering.

Denise Prévost is Associate Professor of International Economic Law at Maastricht University. She is also a Visiting Professor at the China Europe School of Law in Beijing and a member of the editorial board of the Netherlands Yearbook of International Law. She regularly engages in consultancy projects, speaks at conferences and gives capacity-building workshops on issues of WTO law, in particular sanitary and phytosanitary regulation as a barrier to trade. Denise holds a PhD from Maastricht University.

Sierd J. Schaafsma is Justice in the Court of Appeal (intellectual property department) in The Hague, the Netherlands, and Professor of Private International Law at Leiden University, the Netherlands.

Lena Schneller was a Research Fellow at the Department of Economic Law of the University of Bern prior to practising law as legal counsel to a hospital in Zurich. She was a PhD candidate at the World Trade Institute, University of Bern, working on a project related to the impact of WTO law on domestic democracy in Member States, supported by the National Centre of Competence in Research (NCCR) Democracy, Swiss National Research Foundations. She obtained her legal education at the University of Zurich.