Contributors

Yannis D. Caloghirou is Professor of Economics of Technology and Industrial Strategy and head of the Innovation and Entrepreneurship Unit at the National Technical University of Athens (NTUA), Greece. He is leading two research groups at the Laboratory of Industrial and Energy Economics, one on ‘Innovation and Entrepreneurship Studies’ and the second on ‘Information Society and the Knowledge-based Economy’. In this capacity he has acted as a scientific coordinator in a number of European research projects in the broader area of socioeconomic research. He has served in top policy-making positions in Greece, among them as Secretary General for Industry and as Secretary for the Information Society. He has also sat in a number of EU high-level expert and policy groups.

Teresa Farinha Fernandes is an assistant researcher at the Research Unit on Complexity and Economics (UECE) of the School of Economics and Management (ISEG), University of Lisbon, Portugal. She has a Master’s degree in Monetary and Financial Economics and a four-year degree in Economics. Her academic interests are in economics of innovation, employment and monetary policy and monitoring and evaluation.

Manuel Mira Godinho is a Full Professor of Economics at the School of Economics and Management (ISEG), University of Lisbon, Portugal, and a member of the Research Unit on Complexity and Economics (UECE). His main research focuses are on intellectual property rights, innovation and economic development and knowledge-based entrepreneurship.

Attila Havas is a Senior Research Fellow at the Institute of Economics, Research Centre for Economic and Regional Studies, Hungarian Academy of Sciences and regional editor of the International Journal of Foresight and Innovation Policy. His academic interests are in economics of innovation, theory and practice of innovation policy, and technology foresight. He has been a member of EU expert groups and advised national governments and international organizations on innovation, science, technology and innovation policies, as well as on foresight and prospective analyses.

Hartmut Hirsch-Kreinsen is Professor of Economic and Industrial Sociology at TU Dortmund University, Germany. He holds academic degrees in Sociology and in Business Administration and Engineering. He is a member of high-ranking national and international advisory councils in the field of innovation policy. His main research focuses are on company strategies and company networks, development of work, and innovation studies.

Glykeria Karagouni is a lecturer at the Technological Educational Institute of Thessaly, Greece, and a PhD candidate at the Laboratory of Industrial and Energy Economics, National Technical University of Athens, Greece. She holds a BSc and an MSc in Mechanical Engineering and an MSc in Modern Industrial Management. Her main research interests focus on entrepreneurship, knowledge-intensive entrepreneurship, strategic management, innovation studies and industrial management, especially in low-tech industries.

Ioanna Kastelli holds a PhD in Economics of Technology, a DEA from Paris X-Nanterre in Industrial Economics and a BSc in Economics from the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens. She is a researcher at the Laboratory of Industrial and Energy Economics and coordinator of the Innovation and Entrepreneurship Unit at the National Technical University of Athens, Greece. She is teaching as adjunct professor at the Hellenic Open University and at the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens. Her research interests include the fields of economics of technology and industrial economics, with emphasis on the dynamics of knowledge creation and diffusion, entrepreneurship and industrial and technology policy.

Ricardo Paes Mamede is Assistant Professor of Political Economy at ISCTE, the Higher Institute of Business and Labour Sciences, Lisbon University Institute, Portugal, and a researcher at Dinâmia’CET. Since 2008 he has also coordinated the Research and Evaluation Department at the NSRF Observatory, the government agency responsible for monitoring the use of EU structural funds in Portugal. He has a PhD in Economics from Bocconi University, Italy and a Master’s in Economics and Management of Science and Technology from ISEG, the School of Economics and Management, Technical University of Lisbon. His research interests are in the fields of innovation and industry dynamics, structural change, European integration, and public policies.

Aimilia Protogerou holds a PhD in Business Strategy and Industrial Policy and is research fellow at the Laboratory of Industrial and Energy Economics, National Technical University of Athens, Greece. Her research interests revolve around strategic management of technology and innovation, technology policy and cooperative research and development, innovation networks and knowledge-intensive entrepreneurship.

Isabel Schwinge, MA, is a research associate, lecturer and PhD candidate at the Chair of Economic and Industrial Sociology of TU Dortmund University, Germany. She studied Sociology, Political Sciences and Ergonomics at Technische Universität Braunschweig. Her main research interests are entrepreneurship and innovation in low-tech industries, as well as inter-organizational processes of innovation along supply chains.

Aggelos Tsakanikas holds a diploma in Chemical Engineering and a PhD in Technology, Economics and Business Strategy from the National Technical University of Athens (NTUA), Greece. He is currently Research Director at the Foundation for Economic and Industrial Research (IOBE) and Assistant Professor at the Laboratory of Industrial and Energy Economics at NTUA in the field of economic analysis of technological systems. His main research interests are in the areas of business and technology strategy, economics of innovation, entrepreneurship and relevant public policies.

Andrei Yudanov is Professor of Economics and Doctor of Economic Science (DSc) at the Department of Microeconomics of the Financial University under the Government of the Russian Federation, Moscow. He is a member of the editorial boards of the Russian Management Journal and ‘The Modern Competition’ journal, Moscow. His current fields of scientific interest are high-growth firms (‘gazelles’), low-tech and medium-low-tech (LMT) innovations, entrepreneurship and theory of competition.