Acknowledgements

The successful completion of this book has relied on the generous advice, support and patience of a number of people. I am indebted to Professor Herwig Hofmann, University of Luxembourg, supervisor of my doctoral thesis on which this book is based, for his support throughout the lengthy writing process and his encouragement in times of doubt, as well as for very useful discussion and for his ongoing support of my professional development. I also warmly thank all the members of my Thesis Committee, Professor Mark Cole, Professor Rusen Ergec and Professor Jörg Gerkrath (all of the University of Luxembourg), Professor Alexander Türk (Kings College, London) and Professor Gerard Rowe (Viadrina European University, Frankfurt (Oder)) for their interest and positive evaluation of work. I am especially grateful to Professor Rowe, who has provided me with constant inspiration, support and guidance since my time as a student at the Viadrina. I thank Blathnáid O’Hannrachain for her considerable contribution in proofreading my work. Dr Derek Averre, Nicolina Bordian, Christian Deprez, Dr Ekaterina Islentyeva, Dr Helene Ragheboom, Dr Jarosław Janczak, Marie Marty, Mariana Peña, Martin Petschko, Carola Rappe, Gavin Robinson, Dharamveer Singh and Willy Tadjudie all helped me through discussion, advice and simple reassurance, whether as colleagues at the University of Luxembourg or at conferences. I thank all of them. To my husband, Maciek, and to my family I owe you a great debt of gratitude for your love, support and kindness, without which I might well not have embarked on the journey of writing this work.