

Contents

List of contributors	vi
1 Introduction: the double dualization of inequality in Europe Martin Heidenreich	1
2 The Europeanization of income inequality before and during the eurozone crisis: inter-, supra- and transnational perspectives Martin Heidenreich	22
3 Determinants of persistent poverty. Do institutional factors matter? Cathrin Ingensiep	48
4 The segmentation of the European labour market – the evolution of short- and long-term unemployment risks during the eurozone crisis Martin Heidenreich	70
5 Women as the relative winners of the eurozone crisis? Female employment opportunities between austerity, inclusion and dualization Martin Heidenreich	107
6 Temporary employment and labour market segmentation in Europe, 2002–2013 Christian Reimann	139
7 The Europeanization of social determinants and health in the Great Recession Sabine Israel	164
8 Does the Europeanization of daily life increase the life satisfaction of Europeans? Franziska Buttler	195
9 The European integration process and the social consequences of the eurozone crisis Jenny Preunkert	220
Index	243