Tables

3.1 Estimates of those who worked at home in the US at least one day a week, and those who worked at home only
3.2 Home workers and change 2005–2010 by selected US cities
3.3 Socio-economic status of home-based workers
3.4 Occupations of all workers and home-based workers
7.1 Indicators of positions accessed by entrepreneurs and differences between 2008 and 2013
8.1 Information on the interviewed entrepreneurs
9.1 Case studies
11.1 Industry composition of businesses by home location, urban/rural classification and gender
11.2 Socio-demographic characteristics of home-based business owners versus non-home-based business owners by urban–rural area
11.3 Type of area in which urban businesses are located by type of business and gender
11.4 Most important reasons for running the business from home by urban–rural location, gender and child in household
11.5 Most relevant major advantages of running the business from home by urban–rural location, gender and child in household
11.6 Most relevant major disadvantages of running the business from home by urban–rural location, gender and child in household
13.1 Forms of capital for entrepreneurship in persons, households and neighbourhoods