I would like to express my deepest thanks and heartfelt gratitude to my teacher, my supervisor, and in many ways my mentor, Professor Andrea K. Bjorklund, for guiding me through this process, from when she introduced me to professional publishing until her invaluable comments on the very last words of this book; for her patience, encouragement and feedback without which this project would not have been feasible; for trusting me and for encouraging me to develop and express my critical thinking by introducing me to new ways of doing things better.

The following pages mark the end of an incredible adventure that I had the honour to enjoy and share in her company and I can only hope that it will be the first of many.
