This edited volume is based on the papers on various aspects of ethnic issues in China presented in a workshop held at the City University of Hong Kong in August 2015 (see http://www.cityu.edu.hk/class/gcs/04-2_recap.aspx). The workshop participants included established scholars and young talents from Australia, Europe, Hong Kong, and the US, who are from different disciplines such as anthropology, economics, education, geography, history, linguistics, political science, and sociology. Participants wrote from the perspective of their discipline and wrote their chapter as a guide for both academics and the general public to gain a quick and reliable understanding of a specific topic on ethnic minorities in China. The participants examined each paper presented in the workshop carefully and gave constructive comments to the author. Michael Clarke was unable to attend the workshop. His paper was discussed and feedback was sent to him to facilitate his revision.

I thank the workshop participants for their contributions to this edited volume. I also thank the Global China Studies programme at City University of Hong Kong for funding and logistic support to the workshop. David Goodman, editor of Handbooks of Research on Contemporary China series by Edward Elgar Publishing, invited me to edit a volume on ethnic minorities in China as part of his Handbook series. I appreciated his editorial guidance, encouragement and support. I thank Alexandra O'Connell, Senior Supervising Editor at Edward Elgar Publishing, for her assistance and support during the course of editing this book.

Colin Mackerras and William Jankowiak, two contributors to the edited volume, have for many years been a major source of intellectual support and inspiration for my academic pursuits. Kim Wong in the College of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences at City University organized logistic support to the activities before the 2015 workshop and followed up contributors dutifully. Kim Wong and Vivian Tang helped editing the manuscript. Finally, this book would not have been written without the support of family, friends and associates. It is to them that this book is dedicated.

Part of Chapter 5 by Hongyi Lai is based on Hongyi Lai, 'Ethnic Autonomous Regions: A Formula for a Unitary Multiethnic State,' pp. 62–85 in China's Local Administration: Traditions and Changes in the Sub-national Hierarchy (eds), Jae Ho Chung and Tao-chiu Lam (London and New York: Routledge, 2010).
