Acknowledgements

In writing this book I have encountered immense generosity among experts in the fields of politics, agriculture and food studies. The encouragement I have received over the years from colleagues, friends and family is by far the most important factor in getting this book published. I would like first to thank my senior doctoral supervisor, Marjorie Griffin Cohen as well as my committee members Stephen McBride and Theodore Cohn, who provided me with unwavering support and mentorship when I first embarked on the research for this book. I am grateful for Peter W.B. Phillips’ advice and enthusiastic encouragement that kept me going even when I felt like just moving on. A special thank you goes to William A. Kerr who has been an invaluable resource throughout the process. I would like to particularly thank Daniel Beland, Kari Doerksen, Erika Dyck, Jill E. Hobbs, Julie Kaye, Cory Jansson, Stella Marinakis, Michele Mastroeni, Sara McPhee-Knowles, Jaime Leonard, Michael Plaxton and, last but not least, Camille D. Ryan for their thoughtful advice and insights. A huge thank you goes out to Natasha D. Patterson, who has always offered important guidance and never stopped believing that I could do this. Much love to my parents Patricia and Ralph Clark who have always supported me. Finally, I would like to thank Neil Hibbert. This book would literally not have been possible without his bottomless well of encouragement and patience, as well as his phenomenal editing skills. This book is what it is because of his amazing ability to help me see the ‘forest through the trees’ when all I could see were trees. To him, I am eternally grateful.
