

Contents

---

|   |      |
|---|------|
| List of figures  | vii  |
| List of tables   | viii |
| List of contributors   | ix   |
| Acknowledgments  | xii  |
| Introduction: the anthropology of corruptionDavide Torsello  | 1    |
| 1 The role of the anti-corruption legislation and of ethical valuesin (re)defining corruption: the case of Monza, ItalyMaria Giulia Pezzi                                      | 23   |
| 2 Culture, organizational change and the “bounded morality” inHungarian public administrationDavide Torsello   | 53   |
| 3 Party corruption in the Bosnia and Herzegovina publicemployment system: public discourse, legal and morallegitimationZaira Tiziana Lofranco                              | 75   |
| 4 Academic dishonesty or corrupt values: the case of RussiaElena Denisova-Schmidt  | 105  |
| 5 The making of citizenship against corruption in Kosovo:protest, lies, and the public goodNita Luci   | 138  |
| 6 Socio-cultural dimensions of corruption in Turkish publicadministrationMuhittin Acar   | 162  |
| 7 Old regime habits die hard: clientelism, patronage and thechallenges to overcoming corruption in post-authoritarianMexicoClaudia Baez Camargo and Rodrigo Megchún Rivera | 186  |

|   |  |     |
|---|--|-----|
| 8 | Between condemnation and resignation: a study on attitudes towards corruption in the public health sector in TanzaniaClaudia Baez Camargo and Richard Faustine Sambaiga | 211 |
|   | ConclusionDavide Torsello   | 235 |
|   | Index   | 253 |