

Contents

---

Preface	vii
Acknowledgements	ix
1. The criminal reconciliation ( xingshi hejie ) system in China: background, pilot projects and debates	1
1.1 Legal reforms in China: from building the rule of law system to establishing a harmonious society	5
1.2 The mediation systems: from the Mao era to criminal reconciliation today	19
1.3 The implementation and development of criminal reconciliation in China	24
1.4 The scholarly debates surrounding criminal reconciliation programmes	41
2. A comparative look at criminal reconciliation: a transplant of restorative justice?	57
2.1 A sketch of restorative justice	60
2.2 Differences between criminal reconciliation and restorative justice	65
2.3 Restorative justice in practice: a glimpse from the author's observations in Brisbane, Australia	69
2.4 Summary	74
3. Criminal reconciliation in practice: evidence from official case files	75
3.1 The motivation for the empirical study	75
3.2 An overview of criminal reconciliation practices in the three fieldwork locations	80
3.3 An analysis of the practice of criminal reconciliation relying on the evidence from official case files	106
4. The process of criminal reconciliation programmes: evidence from interviews	114
4.1 The initiation stage	115
4.2 The criminal reconciliation meeting	128

4.3	Factors affecting official decisions in criminal reconciliation processes	139
4.4	Insights into follow-up programmes	146
4.5	Summary	151
5.	The participants of criminal reconciliation programmes: evidence from interviews	153
5.1	Official involvement in criminal reconciliation programmes	154
5.2	The parties participating in criminal reconciliation programmes	172
5.3	The lawyers as actors (participants) in criminal reconciliation cases	188
5.4	The role of other participants in criminal reconciliation programmes	193
5.5	Summary	196
6.	Understanding wider problems with the Chinese criminal justice system through the lens of criminal reconciliation	199
6.1	Contradictory rules and 'hidden rules' ( qian guize )	200
6.2	Criminal justice through 'correction' ( jiaozheng ) and 'thought reform' ( sixiang gaizao )	219
6.3	The State's failure to enforce victims' claims to compensation through civil litigation	238
7.	Conclusion	243
	Appendix	248
	Bibliography	251
	Index	277