Contents

Preface

PART I LAW AND AUTHORITY IN CYBERSPACE

1. The lawmaking authority of states
   1.1 Framing the question
   1.2 The authority of individual rules of law
   1.3 Legitimating authority and the community of the state
   1.4 Conclusions

2. Non-state rule makers
   2.1 Legal pluralism in cyberspace
   2.2 Transnational legal institutions and authority
   2.3 Technical rule making
   2.4 Non-state rule-systems
     - 2.4.1 ICANN and eBay
     - 2.4.2 Legitimate authority and non-state rule-systems

3. Community, authority and rules of recognition
   3.1 Communities and authority in cyberspace
   3.2 Rules of recognition
     - 3.2.1 Internal and external perspectives
     - 3.2.2 The external perspective of cyberspace actors
     - 3.2.3 Contingent authority
   3.3 Law in cyberspace

PART II CONTROL, COMPETITION AND CONVERSATION

4. Control
   4.1 Law as a system of control
   4.2 Code as a control mechanism
     - 4.2.1 The interplay between the modalities of regulation
     - 4.2.2 The limits of code’s control
   4.3 Beyond control
vi

Rethinking the jurisprudence of cyberspace

5. Normative competition in cyberspace 103
   5.1 Sources of norms 109
      5.1.1 Service provider rules and standards 109
      5.1.2 Norms as an emergent property of user interactions 112
      5.1.3 Shaping of norms by technology 117
   5.2 Legal norms and cyberspace norms 120
      5.2.1 Aligning laws and norms 128
      5.2.2 Legal norms and acceptance 135
   5.3 Conclusions 137

6. Networks and nodes 139
   6.1 Law, regulation and governance 139
   6.2 Law as commands – from Cyberlibertarianism to Cyberpaternalism 144
   6.3 Complexity, networks and (dis)obedience 152
   6.4 Platforms and gatekeepers 159
   6.5 Networks, regulation and law 163

PART III LEGITIMACY AND THE RULE OF LAW

7. Legitimacy and authority 169
   7.1 What is legitimacy? 169
   7.2 Legitimacy as a variable value 175
   7.3 Addressing and communication 177
   7.4 Congruence with the law’s environment 183
   7.5 Fair and just aims 194
   7.6 Conclusions 197

8. Maintaining the rule of law in cyberspace 200
   8.1 A modern definition of the rule of law 200
   8.2 Challenging the rule of law in cyberspace 206
      8.2.1 Law must be set forth in advance (be prospective) 208
      8.2.2 Law must be made public; law must be general; law must be clear 212
      8.2.3 Law must be stable and certain 222
      8.2.4 Law must be applied to everyone according to its terms 224
      8.2.5 Conclusion 225
   8.3 Rethinking the rule of law for cyberspace 226

Afterword 231

Index 237