Contents

Foreword ix
Acknowledgments x
List of abbreviations xi
Table of international Conventions xiv
Table of judgments and decisions of courts xvi

Introduction 1

1. The history of the distinction between international and non-international armed conflicts 10
   1.1 The distinction before the 1949 Geneva Conventions 11
      1.1.1 Before 1648 11
      1.1.2 1648–1800s 14
      1.1.3 1800s–1949 16
   1.2 The distinction after the 1949 Geneva Conventions 23
      1.2.1 Common Article 3 of the 1949 Geneva Conventions 24
         1.2.1.1 The road to Common Article 3 24
         1.2.1.2 The Diplomatic Conference (1949) and the ‘Stockholm Proposal’ 28
      1.2.2 Attempts of the ICRC to internationalise NIAC prior to the draft of the 1977 Additional Protocols 35
      1.2.3 1977 Additional Protocols 37
         1.2.3.1 The status of non-state groups at the Diplomatic Conference on the Reaffirmation and Development of International Humanitarian Law Applicable in Armed Conflicts (1974–1977) 37
         1.2.3.2 The drafting history of Article 1(4) of API 39
         1.2.3.3 Additional Protocol II 43
   1.3 Conclusion 46

2. The distinction between international and non-international armed conflicts 48
   2.1 International armed conflicts 48
      2.1.1 Additional Protocol I 50
Classification of conflicts in international humanitarian law

2.1.2 The threshold of applicability of international armed conflict
2.1.3 The use of force in International Armed Conflicts
2.2 Non-international armed conflicts
2.2.1 Threshold of applicability of CA3
2.2.2 Additional Protocol II
2.3 Ramifications of the distinction between IACs and NIACs
2.3.1 Treaty law
2.3.2 Customary law
2.3.3 The application of international human rights law to IACs and NIACs
2.4 Conclusion

3. Direct foreign military intervention in civil wars
3.1 Military intervention in support of a territorial state
3.1.1 The classification of the armed conflict between the foreign state and the non-state group
3.1.2 One or two NIACs and the threshold of NIACs in foreign interventions
3.1.3 Low-intensity interventions in favour of the territorial states
3.2 Military intervention in support of a non-state group
3.3 Classification of interventions when the territorial state does not have a government
3.4 Internationalisation of armed conflicts in cases of direct military intervention
3.4.1 State practice of internationalisation
3.5 Conclusion

4. Indirect foreign interventions in civil wars
4.1 Indirect intervention as a use of force in IHL
4.2 Acting on behalf of a foreign state and the classification of conflicts under CA2
4.3 Acting on behalf of a foreign state and the internationalisation of civil wars
4.3.1 Alternative tests for internationalisation
4.3.1.1 The ‘overall control’ test as an independent test for internationalisation
4.3.1.2 The use of force as a trigger for internationalisation
4.3.1.3 Weaker links, such as formal recognition or proxy relationships, as triggers for internationalisation

4.3.2 State practice on internationalisation

4.3.3 Article 4A(2) and the internationalisation of an ongoing civil war

4.3.3.1 The requirement of ‘belonging to a party to the conflict’

4.3.3.2 ‘Belonging to a party’ to IAC as the litmus test for internationalisation of ongoing NIAC

4.3.3.3 The meaning of ‘belonging to a party to the conflict’

4.3.3.4 The requirement of non-allegiance to the Detaining Power

4.4 Conclusion

5. Representation of states and reclassification of ongoing armed foreign interventions due to a governmental change

5.1 Representation of states and conflict classification

5.2 Reclassifications of armed conflicts as a result of change of governments

5.2.1 Analysis of ostensible instances of reclassification of armed foreign interventions

5.3 Conclusion

6. International organisations and foreign interventions in civil wars

6.1 Determining the identity of the parties to an armed conflict involving an IO

6.1.1 Operations conducted under the authorisation of the UN

6.1.2 Operations in which the contributing states exercise their joint control through the IO

6.1.3 Operations in which the contributing states do not exercise their joint control through the IO

6.2 Conflict classification and the applicability of IHL to forces acting on behalf of IOs

6.2.1 Armed conflict between IOs and states

6.2.2 Armed conflict between IOs and non-state groups

6.3 Conclusion
viii  Classification of conflicts in international humanitarian law

7.  Case study: the armed conflicts in Yemen (2015–ongoing) 208
    7.1  Factual background 208
    7.2  Classification of the hostilities between Hadi’s forces and Houthi forces 210
    7.3  Who represents Yemen? 211
    7.4  The classification of the foreign intervention 212
    7.5  Conclusion 216

8.  Conclusion 217

Bibliography 219

Index 251