

Contents

---

Preface	viii
1 The history of (pro)creation	1
2 A third dimension: creativity and the individual–State relationship	29
3 A virtual reality? Creativity and the individual: the importance of creative space	57
4 A fourth dimension: the administrative core	84
5 A fourth dimension imperilled by the third? The threatening space between the zone of discourse and the administrative core	111
6 The flow of reproduction: the reproduction of creativity as part of the proprietary discourse	134
7 An augmented reality (1) – identifying the processes of creativity	158
8 An augmented reality (2) – reform: the proposed licensing system	191
9 An augmented reality (3) – the proposed regulatory body	214
10 The future of the creative State	235
Bibliography	248
Index	267