Figures and tables

FIGURES

5.1 A model of China’s multilateral financial involvement 70
7.1 The intellectual lineage of geo-neo-functionalism 108

TABLES

3.1 China’s share of the global high-speed rail market, 2014–30
(estimates) 22
3.2 High-speed rail agreements between China and Southeast Asia and Latin America, 2013–17 23
3.3 The five largest China-built railways in Africa, 2016 28
3.4 China’s high-speed rail exports, September 2016 32
5.1 Global infrastructure investments by China, the EU and the US, 1992–2011 59
5.2 China-led international financial institutions, 2017 60
5.3 The GDPs of the BRICS countries, 2014 61
5.4 AIIB-approved loan projects, 2016 (first year of operation) to 2017 64
5.5 Comparing the AIIB, the ADB and the World Bank, 2016 65
6.1 Balancing powers, balancing interests, or a healthy dose of competition between China and Japan? 81
6.2 A summary of Asian responses to OBOR, mid-2017 90
7.1 Comparing functionalism, neo-functionalism and geo-neo-functionalism 103
7.2 Comparing neoliberalism and geo-developmentalism 105
8.1 The changing shape of global power 113
8.2 The risk assessment of OBOR countries 119
8.3 Going global: contrasting Europe and China 119