PART I URBAN CONNECTIVITY AND INFORMATIONAL ACTIVITIES

1	Introduction	2
	1.1 Book objectives and scope	2
	1.2 Information	3
	1.3 Virtual spatial mobility	5
	1.4 Connectivity	6
	1.5 Conclusion	7
2	Pre-Internet urban connectivity and informational activities	9
	2.1 Historical urban connectivity and informational activity	10
	2.2 Modern urban connectivity and informational activity	12
	2.3 Fixed-line telephone	14
	2.4 Radio	19
	2.5 Television	22
	2.6 Conclusion	24
3	The Internet	26
	3.1 The Internet	26
	3.2 The smartphone	33
	3.3 Digital divides	36
	3.4 The Internet of Things (IoT)	39
	3.5 Conclusion	41

PART II URBAN INTERNET APPLICATIONS

4	The Internet for individual users	44
4.1	Advantages of Internet urban services	45
4.2	Home-based work	46
4.3	Online shopping	48
4.4	E-government	51
4.5	Online banking	53
4.6	Travel online	55
4.7	E-learning	56
4.8	E-health	59
4.9	Social networking	61
4.10	Conclusion	65
5	The dual-space society	69
5.1	Phases in the spatial interpretations of the Internet	69
5.2	The dual-space society	73
5.3	Dual-space spatialities	78
5.3.1	Presence	80
5.3.2	Personal identity	81
5.3.3	Personal status	82
5.3.4	Experience	83
5.3.5	Interaction	84
5.3.6	Social networking	85
5.3.7	Action	86
5.4	Conclusion	86
6	The Internet and companies	88
6.1	Company Internet penetration and uses	89
6.2	Production of Internet technologies	91
6.2.1	Network	93
6.2.2	Connectivity	94
6.2.3	Navigation	94
6.2.4	Application	95
6.3	Conclusion	101

7	The Internet for urban systems	103
	7.1 Smart cities and the Internet	104
	7.2 IoT-based urban electricity and water systems	107
	7.3 IoT and traffic regulation	109
	7.4 Smart homes and IoT	113
	7.5 Conclusion	114
8	Autonomous vehicles (AVs) and the Internet	116
	8.1 IoT and additional technologies for AVs	117
	8.2 Prospects and pitfalls for AV adoption	124
	8.3 Autonomous buses	130
	8.4 Automated and autonomous freight vehicles and drones	132
	8.5 Conclusion	134
PART III IMPLICATIONS OF URBAN INTERNET APPLICATIONS
9	Urban perspectives for the Internet-based city	136
	9.1 The Internet of Everything (IoE)	137
	9.2 Basic operational features for the urban Internet	137
	9.2.1 Connectivity	137
	9.2.2 Movability	138
	9.2.3 Controllability	138
	9.2.4 Continuity	139
	9.3 Spatial concentration or expansion?	140
	9.4 Transitions in urban land-uses	142
	9.5 The visible and invisible autonomously mobile city	145
	9.6 Changes in the cultural significance of the physical city	150
	9.7 Transformations in activities carried out by urbanites	151
	9.8 Urban operation and command via smartphones	152
	9.9 Conclusion	152
10	Conclusion	155
	10.1 Chapter summaries	155

10.2 The Internet as a general-purpose technology (GPT)	165
10.3 Internet applications versus Internet implications	166
