About the authors

Andrew D. Mitchell is Professor and Associate Dean (Research) at the Faculty of Law, Monash University, and a member of the Indicative List of Panelists to hear WTO disputes. He has previously practised law with Allens Arthur Robinson (now Allens Linklaters) and consults for states, international organisations and the private sector. Andrew has taught law in Australia, Canada, Indonesia, Singapore, and the US and is the recipient of five major grants from the Australian Research Council (including a Future Fellowship) and the Australian National Preventive Health Agency. He has published over 140 academic books and journal articles and is a Series Editor of the Oxford University Press International Economic Law Series, an editorial board member of the Journal of International Economic Law and the Journal of International Dispute Settlement. He has law degrees from Melbourne, Harvard and Cambridge, and is a barrister and solicitor of the Supreme Court of Victoria.

Elizabeth Sheargold is a Vice-Chancellor's Postdoctoral Research Fellow at the University of Wollongong. She has previously held a range of academic positions, including as a research fellow with the Global Economic Law Network at Melbourne Law School (University of Melbourne) and as Associate Director of the Center for Climate Change Law at Columbia University, and has taught at the University of Melbourne, Monash University and La Trobe University. She has also practised law in the Melbourne office of Allens Arthur Robinson (now Allens Linklaters) and been a legal adviser to Judge O. Thomas Johnson at the Iran–United States Claims Tribunal in The Hague. She completed her BA/LLB (Hons) and PhD at the University of Melbourne, and her LLM at Columbia University, where she was a James Kent Scholar and recipient of the Edwin Parker Prize for Excellence in International Law.