ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Hugh Sims QC (BSc (Hons)) is a barrister at Guildhall Chambers specialising in commercial and insolvency work. He has a particular interest in and has been involved in a number of cases concerning the professional liabilities of insolvency practitioners. He was appointed as Queen’s Counsel in 2014 and a Deputy High Court Judge in 2019.

Rachel Lai (FCCA, MABRP, MIPA) is an insolvency practitioner at Menzies LLP, specialising in complex and investigatory cases. She has been involved in writing best practice guidance for the insolvency industry and currently writes questions for examinations relating to insolvency and receivership.

Neil Levy (LLB (Exon)) is a barrister at Enterprise Chambers. He specialises in banking and financial matters, having worked as part of Lloyds Bank’s in-house legal team from 1987–92. He is editor of an online case database at www.banknotesuk.com.

Stefan Ramel (LLB, LLM (Cantab)) is an experienced commercial and insolvency barrister at Guildhall Chambers. He writes extensively on insolvency matters, including for Gore-Browne, Tolley’s and LexisNexis.

Holly Doyle (BA (Hons)) is an experienced barrister at Guildhall Chambers and former guest lecturer at UWE. Her practice encompasses the broad span of insolvency and commercial work. She has a particular interest in professional negligence cases, including misfeasance claims against insolvency practitioners.

James Hannant (LLB, BCL) is a member of the insolvency and commercial teams at Guildhall Chambers. Before commencing practice, he was a judicial assistant to Lady Arden (then Lady Justice Arden). Before his career in law, James worked in the oil industry.

Samuel Parsons (BA, LLM (Harv)) is a specialist insolvency barrister, also practising at Guildhall Chambers. He regularly speaks and writes on insolvency matters alongside his practice. He was a senior associate teacher at the University of Bristol in 2018–19. In 2020, he was appointed to the Regional C Panel of Junior Counsel to the Crown.