Contributors

Author and Editor

Dr. Danielle Ireland-Piper
Danielle Ireland-Piper is Associate Professor of International and Constitutional Law at Bond University, Australia. Danielle has an LL.M from the University of Cambridge, where she was a Chevening Scholar, and a Ph.D from the University of Queensland. She is the author of Accountability in Extraterritoriality: A Comparative and International Law Perspective (Edward Elgar, 2017), as well as book chapters and journal articles on various aspects of international and constitutional law. Danielle has received teaching and research excellence awards, including a national citation. Danielle previously served in various government roles and has also practiced law in the private sector.

Contributing Authors

Heetae Bae
Heetae (Andrew) Bae practices law in Australia. Heetae has also worked as a research assistant in the Faculty of Law at Bond University and was selected in a competitive process to assist in community law clinics in Queensland, Australia. During his studies, Heetae received awards of academic excellence. In addition to his legal qualifications, Heetae has a degree in Applied Finance. Heetae also previously served in the Navy of the Republic of Korea, completing his service as Petty Officer Third Class (2015–2017), during which he served as an Interpretation/translation officer.

Dr. Sanzhuang Guo
Dr. Sanzhuang (Sandra) Guo is Lecturer in Law and Socio Legal Studies at Flinders University, Australia. She is a human rights scholar and an international lawyer with a Ph.D from Peking University Law School (China), a J.D. from Melbourne Law School and an LL.M from Northwestern University School of Law (USA). She has been admitted to practise law in three distinct jurisdictions: China, Australia (Victoria and South Australia) and USA (New York). She has been an accredited immigration law specialist in Australia.
since October 2016. Dr. Guo’s research focuses on three areas: (1) history and theory of international law; (2) citizenship (including statelessness) and refugees; and (3) international human rights law. Dr. Guo has published widely, including a book on comparative studies on the effectiveness of national human rights institutions (Beijing: Law Press, 2013), a journal article on ‘Implementation of Human Rights Treaties by Chinese Courts’, a book chapter on advantages and disadvantages of dual citizenship under the research project of The Hague Academy of International Law – The Concept of Citizenship in International Law (Brill, 2018), and a co-authored book chapter on Stateless Rohingyas in Bangladesh (Routledge, 2018).

Dr. Machiko Kanetake
Machiko Kanetake is Assistant Professor of Public International Law at the School of Law, Utrecht University, the Netherlands. She is an Editorial Board member of the Leiden Journal of International Law, and a Board Member of the Utrecht Centre for Regulation and Enforcement in Europe. Dr. Kanetake received her Ph.D. from Kyoto University and LL.M. at the London School of Economics (LSE). She has been appointed as a postdoctoral researcher and lecturer at the University of Amsterdam (2011–2014). She has also been appointed as a Hauser Visiting Doctoral Researcher (2010–2011) of the Global Fellows Program at New York University (NYU) School of Law, a visiting researcher (2012) of the University of Sydney, a visiting fellow (2014–2015) at the Human Rights Program, Harvard Law School, and a visiting fellow (2015) at the Transnational Law Institute, the Dickson Poon School of Law, King’s College London. Her publications include: The UN Security Council and Domestic Actors: Distance in International Law (London, Routledge, 2017); and The Rule of Law at the National and International Levels: Contestations and Deference (Oxford, Hart Publishing, 2016; Paperback 2018).