

Acknowledgments

---

The present book is based on work completed as part of the multidisciplinary ‘Human Rights under Pressure – Ethics, Law, and Politics’ program at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, in cooperation with Freie Universität Berlin. Since this book concerns complicity, it naturally lends itself to an acknowledgment of aid and assistance without which it would never be finalized. Needless to say, all responsibility for errors and mistakes remains mine alone. The opinions expressed in this publication are those of the author, and do not purport to reflect the views of the General Command of the Polish Armed Forces or any other institution with which the author has been affiliated.

This study would not have been completed without the thoughtful guidance and patient mentorship of two distinguished jurists, Professor Moshe Hirsch of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem and Professor Andreas Zimmermann of the University of Potsdam. I am also thankful to those who commented on various chapters and drafts: Professors Yuval Shany, Pierre Klein, Tomer Broude and Dr Daphna Shraga. For their skillful support in shaping the draft into a book I also thank Luke Adams, Fiona Todd and Stephanie Tytherleigh of Edward Elgar Publishing.

I am also exceptionally grateful to the Human Rights under Pressure Joint Interdisciplinary Program and to its staff both in Jerusalem and in Berlin. Their assistance – both institutional and personal – has proved indispensable. My special gratitude goes to Danny Evron and Rebecca Baskin, who welcomed me into the academic community of the Faculty of Law at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, and Professor Helmut Aust and Lena Riemer, without whom my research stay at Freie Universität Berlin would not have been nearly as pleasant and fruitful as it was. I would also like to thank the staff, colleagues and librarians at the Max Planck Institute Luxembourg for Procedural Law for all their support during my visiting fellowship.

I happily acknowledge my debt of appreciation to peers and colleagues of the HR-UP graduate school and beyond, in particular Misha Plagis, Ido Rosenzweig, Agata Joško, Astrid Ponsolle, Shani Bar-Tuvia, Gaelle Mieli, Frederik Schmidinger, Christopher Gosnell, Benjamin Balint, Jamie Brown, Bruck Teshome, and Jakub Muszytowski, each of whom kept me sane at critical junctions throughout the years. Without their companionship and encouragement this process would not have been half as enjoyable and memorable.

Finally, my most profound gratitude is reserved for my parents, who have been unstinting in their love and unyielding in their faith in me. This book is dedicated to them.