

Contributors

Anna Alberini is Assistant Professor in the Department of Agricultural and Resource Economics, University of Maryland, College Park. She is an Associate Editor of the Journal of Environmental Economics and Management. Her publications include: 'Air quality and episodes of acute respiratory illness in Taiwanese cities' (with Alan Krupnick), Journal of Urban Economics (1998), 44(1): 68–92; and 'Estimating an emissions supply function from accelerated vehicle retirement programs' (with Winston Harrington and Virginia McConnell), Review of Economics and Statistics (1996), 78(2): 251–6.

David Austin is Research Fellow in the Quality of Environment Division at Resources for the Future, Washington, DC. His publications include: 'On and off the liability bandwagon: explaining state adoptions of strict liability in hazardous waste programs' (with Anna Alberini), Journal of Regulatory Economics (1999), 15(1): 41–63; and 'An event-study approach to measuring innovative output: the case of biotechnology', American Economic Review (1993), 83(2): 253–8.

James Boyd is a Research Fellow in the Energy and Natural Resources Division at Resources for the Future, Washington, DC. His publications include: 'Should relative safety be a test of product liability?' (with Daniel Ingberman), Journal of Legal Studies (1997), 26(2): 433–73; and 'Non-compensatory damages and potential insolvency' (with Daniel Ingberman), Journal of Legal Studies (1994), 23(2): 895–910.

Marcel Boyer is Jarislowsky Professor of Economics at the University of Montreal and President of CIRANO. His publications include: 'Toward a political theory of the emergence of environmental incentive regulation' (with Jean-Jacques Laffont), RAND Journal of Economics (1999), 30(1): 1427–59; and 'Environmental risks and bank liability' (with Jean-Jacques Laffont), European Economic Review (1997), 41(8): 1427–59.

Richard T. Carson is a Professor of Economics at the University of California, San Diego. He is Director for International Environmental Policy, Institute for Global Conflict and Cooperation, University of California. His publications include: 'The impact of "no opinion" response options on data quality in a CV survey' (with co-authors), Review of Economics and Statistics (1998), 80(1): 335–8; and 'Property rights, protest and the siting of hazardous waste facilities' (with Richard Carson), American Economic Review (1986), 76(2): 285–90.

David J. Chapman is a specialist in the evaluation of natural resource damages at the US National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA). His publications include: Tampa Bay Oil Spill, Damage Assessment and Restoration Plan, Vol. II: Human Use Losses (with others), Silver Springs, MD: NOAA, 1999; and 'The role of natural resource economics in natural resource damage assessments', in Proceedings of the Yosemite Law Institute, Yosemite, CA (1998).

Mark A. Cohen is Associate Professor of Economics and Strategy in the Owen Graduate School of Business, Vanderbilt University, where he is also Director of the Vanderbilt Center for Environmental Management Studies. His publications include: 'Regulating corporate criminal sanctions: federal guidelines and the sentencing of public firms' (with Cindy Alexander and Jennifer Arlen), Journal of Law and Economics (1999), 42(1): 393–422; and 'Information as regulation: the effect of community right to know laws on toxic emissions' (with Shameek Konar), Journal of Environmental Economics and Management (1997), 32(1): 109–24.

Paul K. Freeman is Project Manager of the Natural Catastrophes and Developing Countries Project at the International Institute of Applied Systems Analysis (IIASA) in Laxenberg, Austria. He was founder and Chief Executive of the specialty environmental insurance company, ERIC, and is a member of the Corporate Advisory Board of the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania. His publications include: 'Gambling on global catastrophes', in Investing in Prevention: A Special Report on Disaster Risk Management, Washington, DC: World Bank, 1999; and 'Environmental insurance as a policy enforcement tool in developing countries', Journal of International Economic Law (1997), 18(3): 422–86.

Michael Hanemann is a Professor in the Department of Agricultural and Resource Economics at the University of California, Berkeley. His publications include: 'Valuing the environment through contingent valuation', Journal of Economic Perspectives (1994), 8(4): 19–43; and 'Willingness to pay and willingness to accept: how much can they differ?', American Economic Review (1991), 81(3): 635–47.

Winston Harrington is a Senior Research Fellow in the Quality of the Environment Division at Resources for the Future, Washington, DC. He currently serves on the Editorial Council of the Journal of Environmental Economics and Management. His publications include: 'Fuel economy and motor vehicle emissions', Journal of Environmental Economics and Management (1997), 33(3): 240–52; and 'Determinants of participation in accelerated vehicle retirement programs' (with Anna Alberini and Virginia McConnell), RAND Journal of Economics (1995), 26(1): 93–112.

Anthony Heyes is a Professor of Economics at the Royal Holloway College, London University. His publications include: 'Environmental regulation by private contest', Journal of Public Economics (1997), 63(3): 407–28; and 'Towards an efficiency interpretation of regulatory intervention lags', Journal of Regulatory Economics (1996), 10(2): 81–98.

Terrance M. Hurley is Assistant Professor of Economics at the University of Minnesota. His publications include: 'Effort levels in Cournot Nash contests with asymmetric information' (with Jason Shogren), Journal of Public Economics (1998), 69(2): 195–210; and 'Rent dissipation and efficiency in a contest with asymmetric valuations', Public Choice (1998), 94(3): 289–98.

Daniel Ingberman is a Principal at the Law and Economics Consulting Group (LECG) in Emoryville, California. His publications include: 'Siting noxious facilities: are markets efficient?', Journal of Environmental Economics and Management (1995), 29(3): 20–33; and 'An experimental investigation of multi-defendant bargaining in joint-and-several and proportionate liability regimes' (with co-authors), Journal of Accounting and Economics (1997), 23(2): 189–221.

Robert Innes is a Professor in the Department of Agricultural and Resource Economics at the University of Arizona. His research has won a number of notable awards, including the Hicks–Tinbergen Prize in 1994. His publications include: 'Self-policing and optimal law enforcement', Journal of Political Economy (1999), 107(6): 1305–25; and 'Takings, compensation, and unequal treatment for owners of developed and undeveloped property', Journal of Law and Economics (1997), 40(2): 403–32.

Howard C. Kunreuther is the Cecilia Yen Koo Professor of Decision Sciences and Public Policy, Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania. He is Co-director of the Wharton Risk Management and Decision Processes Center, a Fellow of the US National Bureau of Economic Research (NBER), and is on the editorial boards of the Journal of Regulatory Economics and the Journal of Risk and Uncertainty. His publications include: 'Retroactive liability or the public purse?' (with Jim Boyd), Journal of Regulatory Economics (1997), 11(1): 79–90; and 'Are risk-benefit trade-offs possible in siting hazardous facilities?' (with Douglas Easterling), American Economic Review (1990), 80(2): 252–6.

Tracy R. Lewis is the James Walter Professor of Economics at the University of Florida, Gainesville, where he is also Director of Energy Policy in the Public Utility Research Center, Co-editor of the Journal of Law, Economics and Organisation, and on the editorial board of the American Economic Review. His publications include: 'Protecting the environment when costs and benefits are privately known', RAND Journal of Economics (1996), 27(4): 819–47; and 'Inflexible rules in incentive problems' (with David E.M. Sappington), American Economic Review (1989), 79(1): 69–84.

Robert Cameron Mitchell is Professor of Geography at Clark University, MA. He is an expert on survey methods. His publications include: 'Property rights, protest and the siting of hazardous waste facilities' (with Richard Carson), American Economic Review (1986), 76(2): 285–90; and Using Surveys to Value Public Goods: The Contingent Valuation Method (with Richard Carson), Washington, DC: RFF/Johns Hopkins University Press, 1989.

Carl V. Phillips recently obtained his PhD from Harvard University and is now a visiting fellow at the Center for the Philosophy of Science, University of Minnesota. His publications include: 'Restoring natural resources with destination-driven costs' (with Richard Zeckhauser), Journal of Environmental Economics and Management (1998), 36(3): 225–42; and 'Communicating the health effects of consumer products: the case of moderate alcohol consumption and coronary heart disease', Managerial and Decision Economics (1996), 17(5): 459–70.

Donatella Porrini is Assistant Professor in Political Economy at the Institute of Economic and Statistical Science at the University of Milan. Her publications include: 'Labour market regulation in Italy, employment and welfare' (with Gianandrea Goisis), in Mario Baldassari, Luigi Paganetto and Edmund S. Phelps (eds), Equity, Efficiency and Growth: The Future of the Welfare State, New York: St. Martins Press, 1996, pp. 193–211; and 'Scope economies and the Italian banking system: a theoretical contribution and exploratory empirical analysis' [in Italian], Economia Internazionale (1994), 47(2): 218–37.

Richard A. Posner is Senior Lecturer at the University of Chicago Law School (where he was formerly the Lee and Bren Freeman Professor of Law) and Chief Judge in the US Court of Appeals (7th Circuit). He is widely acknowledged as a founding father in the field of law and economics. He is author of the celebrated Economic Analysis of Law, now in its fifth edition. His journal publications include: 'Social norms and law: an economic approach', American Economic Review (1997), 87(2): 365–9; and 'The law and economics movement', American Economic Review (1987), 77(2): 1–13.

Thomas A. Rhoads is Assistant Professor in the Department of Economics, Towson University. His publications include: 'On Coasean bargaining with transactions costs' (with Jason Shogren), Applied Economics Letters (1999), 6(12): 779–83; and 'Educational contributions, academic quality, and athletic success' (with Shelby Gerking), Contemporary Economic Policy (2000), 18(2): 248–58.

David E.M. Sappington holds the Lanzillotti–McKethan Eminent Scholar Chair in the Department of Economics at the University of Florida, Gainesville, where he is also Director of the Public Policy Research Center. He is on the editorial boards of a number of journals, including the American Economic Review and the Journal of Regulatory Economics. His publications include: 'Information management in incentive problems' (with Tracy Lewis), Journal of Political Economy (1997), 104(4): 796–821; and 'Penalizing success in dynamic incentive contracts: no good deed goes unpunished?', RAND Journal of Economics (1997), 28(2): 346–58.

Chad Settle recently completed his PhD at the University of Wyoming, and is now an Assistant Professor of Economics at Tulsa University. His working papers include: 'Rational valuation in the Yellowstone interactive web experiment' (with Todd Cherry and Jason Shogren) (2000); and 'An integrated model of wildlife at risk from exotic invaders' (with others) (2000).

Jason F. Shogren is Stroock Distinguished Professor of Natural Resource Conservation and Management in the Department of Economics and Finance, University of Wyoming. His publications include: 'Resolving differences in willingness to pay and willingness to accept' (with others), American Economic Review (1994), 84(1): 255–70; and 'Economics of the Endangered Species Act' (with Gardner Brown), Journal of Economic Perspectives (1998), 12(2): 3–20.

Hilary Sigman is Associate Professor of Environmental Economics at Yale University, having previously held faculty positions at Rutgers University and the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA). She is a Faculty Research Fellow at the National Bureau of Economic Research (NBER) and serves on the Editorial Council of the Journal of Environmental Economics and Management. Her publications include: 'Midnight dumping: public policies and illegal disposal of used oil', RAND Journal of Economics (1998), 29(1): 157–78; and 'A comparison of public policies for lead recycling', RAND Journal of Economics (1995), 26(3): 452–78.

R. Todd Smith is an Associate Professor of Economics at the University of Alberta. He is on the Editorial Board of the Canadian Journal of Economics. His publications include: 'Banking competition and macroeconomic performance', Journal of Money, Credit and Banking (1998), 30(4): 793–815; and 'Market risk and asset prices', Journal of Economic Dynamics and Control (1993), 17(4): 555–69.

Henry van Egteren is an Associate Professor of Economics at the University of Alberta. He currently serves on the Editorial Council of the Journal of Environmental Economics and Management. His publications include: 'Regulating an externality-generating public utility: a multi-dimensional screening approach', European Economic Review (1996), 40(9): 1773–97; and 'Marketable permits, market power and cheating' (with Marian Weber), Journal of Environmental Economics and Management (1996), 30(2): 161–73.

Richard J. Zeckhauser is Frank P. Ramsey Professor of Political Economy at the Kennedy School of Government, Harvard University. He is, amongst other things, a Fellow of the Econometric Society and of the National Bureau of Economic Research (NBER). He is Editor or Associate Editor of several journals including the Review of Economics and Statistics and the Journal of Risk and Uncertainty. His publications include: 'Willingness to pay and the distribution of risk and wealth' (with John Pratt), Journal of Political Economy (1996), 104(4): 747–63; and 'Risks to selves, risks to others' (with Christopher Avery and Jody Heymann), American Economic Review (1995), 85(2): 61–6.