Tables

1.1 Freedom ratings of post-communist countries 2002–2003 | 4
2.1 Relevant parties and their main ethnic bases | 21
2.2 The breakdown of democracy | 26
2.3 Socio-economic indicators for Central and Eastern Europe | 39
2.4 Results of the EU accession referenda (2003) | 43
2.5 Ratings of ethnic homogeneity | 48
3.1 The support basis of the main Estonian parties | 65
3.2 How would you vote in a referendum about EU membership? | 78
4.1 The ethnic Latvian and Russophone vote in the 1995 and 1998 elections | 108
5.1 Relevance of cleavages in the Baltic countries | 143
5.2 Evaluation of former and current economic systems by income quartiles | 145
5.3 Evaluation of former and current economic systems by party preference | 146
5.4 GDP share of the agricultural sector in Lithuania, 1994–2001 | 149
5.5 Alternatives to democracy by age | 155
5.6 Alternatives to democracy by education | 155
5.7 Alternatives to democracy by party preference | 155
6.1 Composition of the Sejm in 1989–1991 | 185
6.2 Trust in political parties by education | 203
6.3 Trust in political parties by place of living | 203
6.4 Trust in political parties by age groups | 204
6.5 Structure of support for Self-Defence and LPR | 204
7.1 Satisfaction with development | 227
7.2 Evaluation of the economic transformation in 1993–2001 | 228
7.3 Preferred economic system | 229
7.4 Evaluation of the current situation and the pre-1989 regime | 233
7.5 Left–right self-placement of Czech voters, 1990–1996 | 233
Figures

2.1 The main historical religious cleavage lines in Eastern Europe 15
2.2 Ethnic cleansing and resettlement, 1945–1949 33
2.3 Democratic survival: a classification of European countries in inter-war Europe 44
2.4 Three dimensions of continuity and their impact on the cleavage structure 52
3.1 Three concepts of Estonian politics: a conceptual scheme 69
4.1 Party positions on the national and socio-economic cleavages 98
5.1 Seats and votes of LDDP and Sajuðdis/TS[LR] combined 137
5.2 Distribution of relevant political parties along the value-laden/ideological dimension, 1990–1998 138
5.3 Percentage of votes received by the 4 ‘old’ main parties, 1992–2002 140
5.4 Effective number of legislative parties 141
8.1 Three-level model of cleavages and partial cleavages 258
8.2 Positions of party supporters on key issues during the Čarnogúrsky government (1991–1992) 260
8.3 Positions of party supporters on key issues during the second Meçiár government (1992–1994) 262
8.4 Positions of party supporters on key issues during the Moravčík government (1994) 263
8.5 Positions of party supporters on key issues during the third Meçiár government (1994–1998) 265
8.6 Positions of party supporters on key issues during the first Dzurinda government (1998–2002) 267
8.7 Correlations between party preference and attitudes over time 269
8.8 Correlations between party preference and attitudes over time 270
8.9 Mean position of party supporters on questions of separation and free market over time 274
10.1 Share of votes for clusters of ‘new’ and ‘old’ political parties in Slovenia, 1990–2000 348
10.2 Political cleavages and party competition: party positions on the main axes of party competition 352
11.1 Issue positions of Romanian legislators and party supporters 381
12.1 Attitudes on political confrontation 424
12.2 Attitude to privatization by party affiliation 426
12.3 Attitude to private initiative by party affiliation 427
12.4 Nationalist attitudes by party affiliation 427
12.5 Attitudes towards MRF 428
12.6 Views on Islam as a threat to national security 428
12.7 Attitude towards joining NATO by party affiliation 429
12.8 General public’s attitude towards joining NATO 430
12.9 Main parties’ electorate by age 431
12.10 Affinity with the BSP 432
12.11 Affinity with UDF 432
12.12 What separates the people in Bulgaria more – inequality or political beliefs? 436
12.13 Social stratification 2002 437
13.1 Ethnic and religious determinants of mass attitudes 459
13.2 Party preferences and attitudes 461
13.3 Spatial positions of the Croatian parties according to cleavage lines, 1992–1999 467
14.1 Relationship between age and party preferences over time 508
14.2 Party preferences and urban/rural divide 509
14.3 Urban-rural divide and party support, August 2002 510
14.4 Education and party preferences 511
14.5 Opinion about socialism and vote preferences in 1995 512
15.1 Preferred international orientation by ethnicity 554
15.2 Necessity of reform by ethnicity 555
15.3 Party support in Moldova (January 2001) 569
15.4 Evaluation of conditions and political support 1998–2002 573
16.1 Cleavage typologies and their origins 597