Tables

6.10 Mood’s test on samples’ median values 136
6.11 Relative technological and innovative strength (1990–2000) 137
6.12 Short- and long-run estimation (including eight semesters following acquisition) 138
6.13 Long-run estimation (including only semesters $t + 4$ to $t + 8$) 138
7.1 Privatization programmes in the main European countries (1979–99): public offers versus private sales 144
7.2 The mission of corporate R&D units before and after privatization 162
7.3 The reduction in R&D resources after privatization 164
7.4 Patent productivity before and after privatization 169
8.1 The studies examined in the meta-analysis 190
8.2 Statistics used and computation methods 191
8.3 Observed and corrected slope and variance values by different levels of moderators 194
8.4 Comparison of average corrected slope coefficients 195
9.1 Sample firms (privatized versus matched firms) 208
9.2 Descriptive statistics for privatized and matched firms 209
9.3 Average R&D intensity of privatized and matched firms 212
9.4 Average Tobin’s $q$ of privatized and matched firms 213
9.5 Correlation between R&D intensity and Tobin’s $q$ in privatized and matched firms 213
10.1 Statistics for ‘new stock markets’ around Europe, as at 1 January 2001, and comparison with Nasdaq 230
10.2 Foreign companies listed in the stock markets considered in the analysis, as at 1 January 2001 231
10.3 The sample companies, by business activity and stock market 232
10.4 The sample companies’ age at the listing, by business activity 233
10.5 The companies’ controlling shareholder after the listing, by business activity 233
10.6 Equity capital raised by the IPO companies listed in the three stock markets considered, up to 1 January 2001 234
10.7 The width of the offer price range reported in the IPO prospectuses, by stock market 236
10.8 NM volatility in 2000 (ratio between the maximum and minimum stock price of the companies listed, as at 1 January 2001) 237
10.9 NM investor’s rate of return, as at June 2001 237