Contributors

Joel D. Aberbach is Professor of Political Science and Policy Studies and Director of the Center for American Politics and Public Policy at UCLA. His research focuses on executive and legislative politics in the United States and abroad. His books include Keeping a Watchful Eye: The Politics of Congressional Oversight (Brookings Institution 1990) and (with Bert A. Rockman) In the Web of Politics: Three Decades of the US Federal Executive (Brookings Institution Press 2000).

Peter Barberis is Professor of Politics at Manchester Metropolitan University. He is author of The Elite of the Elite: Permanent Secretaries in the British Higher Civil Service (1996) and, with Timothy May, of Government Industry and Political Economy (1993). In addition he has edited two volumes on the civil service, is the editor and co-author of The Encyclopaedia of Twentieth Century British and Irish Political Organizations and is currently writing a biography of Jo Grimond.

Tony Butcher is Senior Lecturer in Government in the Department of Politics, Goldsmiths College, University of London. He has written widely on the civil service and public sector reform. He is the author of Delivering Welfare (Open University Press, second edition, 2002), and the co-author (with Gavin Drewry) of The Civil Service Today (Blackwell, second edition, 1991).

Amanda Finlay (CBE), is Director, Public and Private Rights in the Lord Chancellor’s Department, and has responsibility for meeting customers’ needs in the family and administrative justice systems. She was previously responsible for the implementation of the Human Rights Act in LCD and was Secretary to Lord Woolf’s Inquiry, ‘Access to Justice’.

Oliver James is Lecturer in Politics, University of Exeter, UK and a researcher of public sector organization and regulation. His publications include The Executive Agency Revolution in Whitehall (Palgrave Macmillan, 2003) and Regulation inside Government (co-authored, Oxford University Press, 1999).
Iris Kirkpatrick is currently Research Manager with Forward Scotland – an organization working to promote and influence policy in the field of sustainable development. She writes in an independent capacity in her particular areas of interest: governance, sustainable development and regeneration.

Andrew Massey is Professor of Government and Associate Dean (Research) at the University of Portsmouth. He has researched and published widely on public administration and public policy issues on Britain, the US and EU.

Richard Parry is Senior Lecturer in the School of Social and Political Studies at the University of Edinburgh. He co-authored The Treasury and Social Policy with Nicholas Deakin (Macmillan 2000). His recent research and publications have been on the UK Treasury, and on the impact of devolution on the civil services of the UK.

Wayne Parsons is Professor of Public Policy and Head of the Department of Politics, Queen Mary College, University of London. He is currently visiting professor in the policy sciences at the University of Vienna. Amongst his publications are The Political Economy of British Regional Policy, The Power of the Financial Press, Keynes and the Quest for a Moral Science, and Public Policy. His research interests cover the politics of economic ideas and the theory and practice of public policy.

Robert Pyper is Professor of Government and Public Management and Director of the Centre for Public Policy and Management at Glasgow Caledonian University. Research interests include policy and management in the British civil service and issues of accountability in public administration and management. His articles have been published in a range of journals, and he is the author or co-author of numerous books on aspects of British government. He is also editor of the journal Public Policy and Administration.

R.A.W. Rhodes is Professor of Political Science and Head of Programme in the Research School of Social Sciences, Australian National University. He is the author or editor of 20 books including Transforming British Government, Volume 1: Changing Institutions, Volume 2, Changing Roles and Relationships (Macmillan, 2000); and (with Mark Bevir) Interpreting British Governance (Routledge, 2003). He has been editor of Public Administration since 1986. He is President of the Political Studies Association of the United Kingdom.

Patrick Weller is Professor of Politics and Public Policy and Deputy Director of the Key Centre for Ethics, Law Justice and Governance at Griffith University in Queensland, Australia. He has written extensively in the areas of cabinet government, ministerial-public service relations and public sector reform.