This book is essentially a collective work. All the contributors hold, or have held, posts of responsibility in various Supreme Audit Institutions in different European countries. They translate into these pages their direct and irreplaceable experience on public expenditure control. But their contribution is also indirectly indebted to the experience and knowledge of a large number of auditors and experts who work in those same institutions.

I must personally express my gratitude to all the professors in the Department of Applied Economics of the University of the Basque Country, particularly to Felipe Serrano, Roberto Velasco, Marisol Esteban and Jaime del Castillo, who encouraged me to use my experience as President of the Spanish Tribunal de Cuentas and of the Tribunal Vasco de Cuentas Públicas as the basis for this book.

I also want to express my gratitude to the team of auditors with which I worked for nearly ten years, and whose opinions have helped me to form my own views on the subject of this book, particularly to Gregorio Cuñado, María Luz Martín, Mercedes Martín and Domingo Fidalgo, without forgetting the decisive and enthusiastic input of the late Gloria Muruaga.

The other members of the Tribunal de Cuentas have also contributed, through heated and mostly friendly discussions in the course of the Full Sessions, to give shape to my personal views. Numerous meetings with representatives from all Spanish regional audit bodies have also proved fruitful.

I also had the opportunity, through the Contact Committee that gathers representatives from European SAIs and the European Court of Auditors, as well as through EUROSAI, to meet my colleagues from other European countries, and to become familiar with the diverse European control institutions that they represent. I want to thank them all for their invaluable contribution.

Finally, I must of course point out that all errors and omissions that may be found in this book are my own responsibility.
