About the Authors

Maarten Arentsen is Managing Director of the Center for Clean Technology and Environmental Policy at the University of Twente. He is involved in research projects on energy policy, energy market reform, and (green) energy innovation. Dr Arentsen has published in national and international books and journals and lectures in undergraduate and postgraduate programmes.

Pedro Conceição is Deputy Director of the Office of Development Studies of the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) in New York. Prior to joining the UNDP, he taught at the Technical University of Lisbon (UTL). Dr Conceição holds an MSc degree from UTL and a PhD from the University of Texas at Austin.

Theo de Bruijn is a Senior Research Associate at the Center for Clean Technology and Environmental Policy at the University of Twente and an Associate Professor at Saxion University of Professional Education. He is interested in processes of industrial transformation and regional sustainability strategies. Dr de Bruijn is also the European Coordinator of the Greening of Industry Network.

Chris Dutilh has been responsible for Unilever's environmental affairs in the Netherlands since 1989, providing him with experience in environmental management and life cycle assessment. He has worked at Unilever since 1976. Dr Dutilh holds a degree in Chemistry and a PhD in Biochemistry and has published various articles on sustainable development.

Daniel Esty is a Professor at the Yale Law School and the Yale School of Forestry and Environmental Studies. He held senior positions at the US Environment Protection Agency. Dr Esty is the author or editor of eight books, including Greening the GATT, as well as numerous articles on environment and trade, global governance, competitiveness, security, and development issues.

Nicole Gerard is a Writer and Programme Coordinator at Miami Dade College and a Law and Policy Consultant to FERN, the EU forest campaign.

She used to work as a Consultant to Greenpeace International. Dr Gerard, a French national, holds a PhD in Environmental Law from Edinburgh University and an MSc in International Affairs from Columbia University.

Eric Harkink is a PhD Candidate at Twente University, studying R&D performance management in networked organisations. He worked as a Junior Researcher at Tilburg University. Mr Harkink obtained an MSc degree in International Business from Tilburg University in 2002. His thesis dealt with sustainable development in the oil and gas industry.

Niek Hazendonk is a Policy Advisor at the Dutch Reference Centre for Agriculture and Nature and has been involved in all national policy plans on landscape and physical planning. He worked as a Landscape Researcher and as a Landscape Architect, in Spain and the Netherlands. Mr Hazendonk studied Landscape Architecture at Wageningen University.

Jan Hol is Executive Vice-President for Communication with the Nuon energy company, a Lecturer at communication courses, and author of several books. He was Vice-President of Public Relations with Royal Ahold, Director of Internal Communications with KLM, and Director of New Media for the NCRV broadcasting company. Mr Hol studied Political Sciences, Mass Communication, and Educational Sciences.

John Hontelez has been Secretary General of the European Environmental Bureau since 1996. He used to be Chairman of Friends of the Earth International. Mr Hontelez has been an active environmentalist since 1970, first nationally and, from 1986 on, at the European and global levels, supporting the environmental movement in Central and Eastern Europe.

Maria Ivanova is Director of the Global Environmental Governance Project at the Yale Center for Environmental Law and Policy. She worked at the OECD in Paris and the Swedish Environmental Protection Agency in Stockholm. Ms Ivanova, a Bulgarian national, holds degrees from Mount Holyoke College and Yale University, where she is completing her doctorate.

Marion Jansen is a Counsellor in the WTO's Economic Research and Statistics Division. She was an Advisor to the British Government and the European Commission. Dr Jansen studied Economics in Konstanz and Toulouse and holds a PhD in Economics from the Universitat Pompeu Fabra. She published on development, government regulation, international finance, and labour markets.

Tom Jones is Head of Global and Structural Policies at the Environment Directorate of the OECD in Paris, focusing on interrelations of economic and environmental issues. Previous OECD responsibilities were related to globalisation and the environment, natural resource management, and transport issues. Prior to joining the OECD in 1989, he was a Senior Water Economist with Environment Canada.

Inge Kaul is Director of the Office of Development Studies of the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) in New York. She was Director of the Human Development Report Office and held other senior positions at the UNDP. Dr Kaul was also a UN Policy Analyst and an Assistant Professor at Konstanz University, where she obtained her PhD.

Alexander Keck is an Economist in the WTO's Economic Research and Statistics Division. He worked at the German Federal Ministry for the Environment, the Office of the Director-General of the United Nations Industrial Development Organization, and the European Parliament. He holds advanced degrees in Economics, Environment & Development, and Finance from the Universities of Heidelberg, Cambridge, and New York.

René Kemp is a Senior Research Fellow at the Maastricht Economic Research Institute on Innovation and Technology and Senior Advisor for TNO-STB. Together with Jan Rotmans, he developed the approach to transition management that has been adopted by the Dutch national government. He has published widely on the topic of innovation for the environment and environmental policy.

Alkuin Kölliker is a Research Associate at the University of Bielefeld, focusing on multi-speed integration in Europe and the theory of collective goods. He was a Research Fellow at the Max Planck Institute. Dr Kölliker holds a degree in Economics from the University of Bern and a PhD in Political Science from the European University Institute in Florence.

Ludwig Krämer is Head of the Unit for Legal Affairs and Governance of the Directorate-General Environment of the European Commission. He is an Honorary Professor at Bremen University, a Visiting Professor at University College London, and a Lecturer at the College of Europe. Dr Krämer wrote some 15 books and 150 articles on EC environmental law.

Duncan Liefferink is a Lecturer in Political Science of the Environment at the University of Nijmegen. His main research interests are in European and comparative environmental politics. Dr Liefferink holds a PhD from Wageningen University and is the author of Environment and the Nation State (1997) and The Europeanisation of National Environmental Policy (2004).

Susan Martens is a Researcher at the Environmental Policy Group at Wageningen University. Her main research interests are environmental sociology and policy, sustainable consumption, sustainable building and dwelling, public participation, civil-society development, non-governmental organisations, and China. Ms Martens studied Environmental Policy at the University of Nijmegen.

Claude Martin has been Director General of WWF International since 1993 and an Advisor to the governments of China, Ghana, and Switzerland. He has worked for WWF since the early 1970s: as a researcher in India, a Director in Ghana, and Chief Executive of WWF Switzerland. Dr Martin holds an MSc in Biology and a PhD in Wildlife Biology.

Henk Massink has been a Senior Policy Advisor at the Department of International Affairs of the Ministry of Agriculture, Nature and Food Quality since 2000. He deals with strategic matters in national and international agricultural policy, such as the relation between sustainability and trade development. Mr Massink studied Theology in Leiden and Philosophy in Amsterdam.

Hans Opschoor is Rector of the Institute of Social Studies in The Hague and Professor of Environmental Economics at the Free University in Amsterdam. He was Review Editor of the IPCC and a member of international scientific committees and national delegations. Dr Opschoor studied economics in Rotterdam and holds a PhD from the Free University in Amsterdam.

Saskia Ozinga is Director of FERN, the EU forest campaign that she created in 1995. She is also Coordinator of the Northern Support Office of the World Rainforest Movement and Coordinator of Forest Movement Europe. She worked for Friends of the Earth Netherlands. Ms Ozinga holds MSc degrees in Biology and Healthcare from Utrecht University.

Jan Pieters is a Senior Economic Advisor at the Directorate of Strategy and Administration of the Directorate-General for Environment of the Dutch Ministry of Housing, Spatial Planning and the Environment. Former positions with the Ministry include Representative at the OECD in Paris (1995-1999) and Head of the Department of Economic Affairs of the Directorate Administrative Affairs (1989-1995).

Diahanna Post is a Doctoral Candidate in Political Science at the University of California at Berkeley. Her thesis deals with the influence of international food safety standards on domestic and regulatory policies. Ms Post has published on environmental standards in Eastern Europe and genetically modified foods in Europe and the US.

Britta Rendlen is Manager for Member Relations at the World Business Council for Sustainable Development. Her background is in arts management and corporate and private philanthropy. Ms Rendlen holds an MBA from the Kellogg School of Management at Northwestern University, a BA in Performing Arts Management, and an associate degree in Social Sciences.

Luc Soete is Professor of International Economics at Maastricht University and Director of the Maastricht Economic Research Institute on Innovation and Technology. Dr Soete has degrees in Economics (1972, summa cum laude) and Development Economics (1973, summa cum laude) from the University of Ghent and a DPhil from the University of Sussex (1978).

Gert Spaargaren is a Senior Researcher and Professor of Environmental Policy for Sustainable Lifestyles and Consumption at Wageningen University. His main research interests and publications are in the field of environmental sociology, sustainable consumption and behaviour, and the globalisation of environmental reform. Dr Spaargaren studied Sociology and holds a PhD from Wageningen University.

Björn Stigson has been President of the World Business Council for Sustainable Development since 1995. He worked as a Financial Analyst with the Swedish Kockums Group, was President and CEO of the Swedish Fläkt Group, and Vice-President and a Member of ABB Asea Brown Boveri's Executive Management Group. Mr Stigson has served on several boards and advisory councils.

Charlotte Streck is a Counsel for International and Environmental Law at the World Bank in Washington DC and an Adjunct Lecturer at the University of Potsdam. She worked for the Global Public Policy Project and (co-) authored several books and articles. Dr Streck was educated in Law and Biology at the Universities of Berlin, Regensburg, Freiburg, and Córdoba.

Michael Toffel is a Doctoral Candidate at the Haas School of Business at the University of California at Berkeley, studying corporate environmental strategy and evaluating environmental policy. He worked as an Industrial Manager in Environment, Health, and Safety. Mr Toffel's articles have been published in California Management Review, Journal of Industrial Ecology, and Corporate Environmental Strategy.

Gerard van Dijk is affiliated with the Reference Centre of the Dutch Ministry of Agriculture, Nature and Food Quality. He worked at a regional office of the Ministry (1975-1991), at the Ministry's International Nature Conservation Affairs Division, and was seconded to UNEP (2000-2002). Mr Van Dijk studied at Wageningen University.

Joost van Kasteren has been a freelance Science Writer since 1984. He worked as a Science Writer at Delft Technical University and was Editor of a Dutch technology magazine. Mr Van Kasteren holds a degree in Molecular Science and has written books and articles on food, agriculture, and sustainable development.

Jan van Vliet is a Senior Advisor to and Programme Manager at the Reference Centre of the Dutch Ministry of Agriculture, Nature and Food Quality. He worked in several (executive) functions at the Ministry (1979-1995) and at a regional department of the Ministry (1995-1998). Mr Van Vliet studied at Wageningen University.

Sietske Veenman is a Researcher at the Nijmegen School of Management, University of Nijmegen. Her research interests focus on European environmental politics; she is currently engaged in a major comparative research project on the impact of international institutions and trade on the convergence of national environmental policies. Ms Veenman studied environmental policy at the University of Nijmegen.

Rob Visser has been Head of the Environment, Health, and Safety Division of the OECD since 1998. He was Principal Administrator in the OECD Chemicals Division, a Toxicologist in hospitals, with TNO, and at the Dutch Ministry of Health and the Ministry of Spatial Planning, Housing and the Environment. Dr Visser holds a PhD from Leiden University.

David Vogel is a Professor at the Haas School of Business and at the Department of Political Science at the University of California at Berkeley and a Visiting Professor at INSEAD. He has published extensively on government regulation, trade and environment, and comparative business-government relations. Dr Vogel's books include Trading Up and National Styles of Regulation.

Konrad von Moltke is Adjunct Professor of Environmental Studies at Dartmouth College and a Visiting Professor at the Free University in Amsterdam. He taught at the State University of New York and published extensively on medieval history, comparative education, and international environmental policy. Dr von Moltke studied Mathematics at Dartmouth and Medieval History in Munich and Göttingen.

Rifka Weehuizen is a Researcher at the Maastricht Economic Research Institute on Innovation and Technology. She worked at the Dutch Ministry of Education, Culture and Science at the Foresight Institute (STT) in The Hague. Ms Weehuizen obtained a degree in History and Business Administration from the University of Groningen in 1996.

Frank Wijen is an Assistant Professor of Strategic Management at Erasmus University, Rotterdam, with research interests in organisation theory and the practice of private and public environmental management. He worked as a Senior Researcher, a Marketing Manager, and an Entrepreneur. Dr Wijen holds a PhD in Management from Tilburg University and an MSc in International Management from Maastricht University.

Pieter Winsemius is a Member of the Netherlands Scientific Council for Government Policy and a Professor at Tilburg University. He worked at McKinsey & Company, was Dutch Minister for Spatial Planning, Housing, and the Environment, and wrote several books. Dr Winsemius studied Physics at Leiden University and obtained PhD and MBA degrees (the latter from Stanford University).

Kees Zoeteman is Professor of Sustainable Development and Globalisation at Tilburg University. He served as Deputy Director General at the Dutch Ministry of the Environment, chaired the Board of the European Environment Agency, and was a Member of the China Council on Environment and Development. Dr Zoeteman has had a lifelong interest in reconciling economy and nature.