

Figures

3.1	Institutions, organizations and strategic choices	48
6.1	Various organizational types in China, 2001	101
6.2	Changing numbers of employees by sector, 1978–2001	101
6.3	Percentages of firms in Shanghai institutionalizing formal labour reforms, 1995	110
7.1	Understanding Asian consumers: a conceptual framework	139
10.1	The customer–salesman dyad	183
15.1	An integrated institutional framework	301
16.1	The growth and development of Taiwan, 1951–2000	309
16.2	Manufacturing as the engine of growth in Taiwan	311
16.3	Electronics industry as the engine of manufacturing in Taiwan	313
16.4a	Developing regions: world market shares of medium- and high-tech manufacturing value-added, 1980–2000	314
16.4b	Taiwan electronics production, 1986–98	314
16.5	Revealed comparative advantage (RCA) in Taiwan’s electronics trade, 1976–2002	316
16.6	East Asian exports of electronics: flying geese patterns	317
16.7	Imports of CTVs into the US market, 1971–81	318
16.8	National systems of economic learning in East Asia	326
17.1	The development ladder	338
17.2	The stages of the product cycle process	338
22.1	Regional distribution of Chinese outward FDI in value terms	448
22.2	Motivations of outward FDI from survey of China’s ‘Top 50 industry leading firms’	449