Preface and acknowledgements

This book is the fruit of three years work supported by a Major Research Fellowship from the Leverhulme Trust (Award no. F07004R). The award provided for 80 per cent alleviation of my teaching load at the London School of Economics between 2003 and 2006, and financial contributions towards fieldwork in my three case study countries – The Gambia, the Philippines and Costa Rica I am grateful to the Trust for providing me with this unique opportunity, as well as to my colleagues and students for tolerating long stretches of absence overseas.

In respect of the fieldwork in The Gambia, thanks go to Baba Njie for his help with focus group collaboration and translation, as well as to Tracey Martin of Voluntary Service Overseas, and Kebba Barrow of the Association of Non-Governmental Organisations for their particularly dedicated efforts to facilitate contacts. Suelle Nachif, Dodou Faal, Maebou Njie and Dodou Ceesay also deserve special mention for their fascinating insights on Gambian culture, and on the Wolof language, which I am still struggling to master! In the Philippines, I am grateful to Tessie Sato, Jose Chan and Fe Largado of the Office of Population Studies, University of San Carlos, Cebu for energetic field assistance, and to their colleagues Delia Carbo, Jojo Avila and Tita Lorna Perez for ancillary help. The efforts of Jaime Glomar and Nica Bertulfo of the NORFIL Foundation, Gwen Ngolaban and Sheila Capaban of FORGE (Fellowship for Organising Endeavours Inc.), and Tessie Fernandez of Lihok Pilipina, Cebu for help in organising and/or facilitating focus group discussions in Metro Cebu are also much appreciated, as are those of Emmeline Verzosa, Executive Director of the National Council on the Role of Filipino Women in (re-)opening so many doors for me in Metro Manila after more than a decade away. In Costa Rica, heartfelt gratitude goes to my expert field team – Enid Jaén Hernández, Luis Castellón Zelaya, and Roberto Rojas of the Universidad de Costa Rica, Sede Regional de Guanacaste – for focus group facilitation and transcription and for assistance with individual interviews in Liberia, Santa Cruz, Villareal, Filadelfia and Nicoya. Thanks are also owed for their huge support, academically and otherwise, to Polly De Fraene, Wagner Moreno, Eugenia Rodríguez, Carolyn Hall and Ana María Trejos.

In the UK, my gratitude extends to several people for their diverse and enriching inputs into this volume, ranging from practical, technical and statistical assistance, to translation, to discussion and feedback on findings and ideas. In strictly alphabetical order these are: Nicola Anyamene, Sarah Bradshaw, Javier Fernández Peña, Susana Franco, John Fyson, Ros Gill, Mercedes González de la Rocha, Edward Hart, Michaela Hendricks, Katya Jassey, Hazel Johnstone, Gareth Jones, Ralph Kinnear, Stephan Klasen, Cathy McIlwaine, Mina Moshkeri, Maxine Molyneux, Eric Neumayer, Jane Parpart, Diane Perrons and Silvia Posocco.

Thanks are also due to the dedicated and highly professional efforts of the team at Edward Elgar – Caroline Cornish, Alexandra O’Connell, Catherine Elgar and Felicity Plester – for making this publishing experience so seamless and enjoyable.

Last but not least, I would like to thank my husband Chris Mogridge for his willingness to visit me on the bulk of my trips, for joining in with some of the fieldwork, and for helping me out in other ways too numerous to mention.
