Contributors

Pia Arenius, PhD, is Assistant Professor of Technology Management at Ecole des Hautes Etudes Commerciales (HEC), University of Lausanne in Switzerland. Her research interests include entrepreneurship, social capital and innovation management.

Mary Barrett, PhD, is Professor and Director of the Graduate School of Business and Professional Development, and Sydney Business School, both located within the University of Wollongong, Australia. Her research focuses on gender issues in workplace communication; women business owners; and family business, including the role of women in family business.

Candida G. Brush, DBA, is Chair of the Entrepreneurship Division at Babson College, Wellesley, Massachusetts and holder of the President’s Chair in Entrepreneurship. Her research investigates resource acquisition strategies in emerging organizations, the influence of gender in business start-up and growth strategies of women-led ventures.

Nancy M. Carter, PhD, is the Vice President of Research at Catalyst, in New York City, NY. In this role she leads Catalyst research teams in developing groundbreaking research and consulting on issues relating to building inclusive environments and women’s advancement in the workplace. Dr Carter also holds the Richard M. Schulze Chair in Entrepreneurship at the University of St. Thomas, Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Sara Carter is Professor of Entrepreneurship in the Department of Management and Organization, University of Strathclyde, Scotland. Her research interests include gender, rurality and multiple business ownership. Her chapter was written when she was Professor of Entrepreneurship at the University of Strathclyde, Scotland.

Michelle Provorny Cash is an organizational consultant, editor and writer based in Edmonton, Alberta, Canada. Her research interests include social entrepreneurship, women’s entrepreneurship, micro-finance and community economic development. She currently serves as Managing Editor for Social Enterprise Reporter, a monthly publication about social enterprise.
Anne de Bruin, PhD, is Professor of Economics in the Department of Commerce, Massey University at Albany, Auckland. Her research interests include entrepreneurship, career theory, labour market dynamics, non-standard work and pathways to sustainable employment.

Cristina Díaz is a lecturer in the Department of Business Administration at the University of Castilla-La Mancha (Spain). Her research interests are related to entrepreneurship, in particular with the resource mobilization and outcomes obtained by female entrepreneurs in comparison with their male counterparts.

Susan Flint-Hartle is Senior Lecturer in the Department of Finance, Banking and Property, Massey University at Albany, Auckland. Her research interests include franchising in the real estate agency sector, entrepreneurship and organizational learning.

Lene Foss, PhD, is Associate Professor in Entrepreneurship and Organizational Development at the University of Tromsø, Norwegian College of Fishery Science in Norway. She holds an Associate Professor II position at the Department of Industrial Economics and Technology Management at The Norwegian University of Science and Technology in Trondheim, Norway. Her research interests include women entrepreneurship and leadership, emerging industries and entrepreneurial networks.

Elizabeth J. Gatewood, PhD, is director of the University Office of Entrepreneurship and Liberal Arts at Wake Forest University, Winston-Salem, North Carolina. Her research interests include the factors influencing the success of women entrepreneurs, including access to resources for growing ventures, and entrepreneurial cognition.

Patricia G. Greene, PhD, is Dean of the Undergraduate School at Babson College, Wellesley, Massachusetts, where she holds the President’s Chair in Entrepreneurship. Her research interests are the identification, acquisition and combination of entrepreneurial resources, particularly by women and minority entrepreneurs.

Angela Hamouda, MBS, is a research coordinator with the Centre for Entrepreneurship Research at Dundalk Institute of Technology, Ireland. Her research interests include female entrepreneurship, in particular financial and networking supports for female entrepreneurs.

Richard T. Harrison is Dixons Chair of Entrepreneurship and Innovation, and Director of Research, at University of Edinburgh Management School. His primary research interests include entrepreneurial finance (business angels, early stage venture capital), entrepreneurial learning and entrepreneurship and public policy.
Contributors

Myra M. Hart, Professor of Management Practice in Entrepreneurship at Harvard Business School, Boston, Massachusetts, conducts research on entrepreneurship, venture capital and women business owners. Her experience as a founder of a large-scale public company informs her teaching in MBA, executive education and alumni programmes.

Colette Henry, PhD, is Head of Department of Business Studies and Director of the Centre for Entrepreneurship Research at Dundalk Institute of Technology, Ireland. Her research interests include entrepreneurship education and training – programme design and evaluation; female entrepreneurship and entrepreneurs in the creative industries.

Frances Hill is a senior lecturer in the School of Management and Economics, Queen’s University Belfast. Her research interests include organizational change and innovation especially in relation to industry incumbents; the behavioural and interpersonal dimensions of technology transfer; inter- and intra-organizational learning; the education and training of aspiring/nascent entrepreneurs; issues surrounding the financing of new and growing business ventures; social entrepreneurship.

Jennifer E. Jennings, PhD (formerly Jennifer Cliff), is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Strategic Management and Organization at the University of Alberta. Her research interests include the differential experiences and outcomes of male and female entrepreneurs, the determinants and consequences of imitative versus innovative entrepreneurship, and issues at the nexus of entrepreneurship and family.

Juan J. Jiménez, PhD, is Academic Director of the Vicerectorate of Albacete and Entrepreneurial Projects at the University of Castilla-La Mancha (Spain) where he holds a Chair in Business Administration. His research interests are entrepreneurship, SMEs and the promotion of an entrepreneurial culture.

Kate Johnston, PhD, is a Senior Researcher with the Centre for Entrepreneurship Research at Dundalk Institute of Technology, Ireland. Her research interests include entrepreneurship growth and funding strategies, applied financial economics and corporate governance.

John I. Kjeldsen holds an MSc in Economics and Business Administration and a Graduate Diploma in Business Administration and Marketing. He is Associate Professor at the Department of Marketing, Informatics and Statistics, Director of Study (Open University) and coordinator of the Diploma in Business Administration and Marketing at the Aarhus School of Business, Denmark. His research areas include Industrial Marketing Management, Buyer Initiative, Purchasing and Strategic Supplier Development, Entrepreneurship and Development of Small and Medium-sized Enterprises.
Contributors

Anne Kovalainen, PhD, is Professor of Entrepreneurship at two Finnish Universities, at the Department of Management and Organization, Turku School of Economics and Business Administration, Turku, Finland and at the Swedish School of Economics and Business Administration, Helsinki, Finland. Her research interests range from entrepreneurship theory and economic sociology including non-standard work, self-employment, entrepreneurship and labour market restructuring to feminist theory and research methodology in social sciences.

Wing Lam, PhD, is Research Fellow in the School of Business and Management at the University of Glasgow, UK. Her research interests include new venture creation, family business, Chinese entrepreneurship, network and cross-cultural entrepreneurship.

Claire M. Leitch is a Senior Lecturer at Queen’s University, Belfast. Her research interests include the company development process in the learning company; the application of action learning and other client-centred learning approaches, within entrepreneurial education; the dynamics of leadership in the process of organizational transformation; entrepreneurial learning, business development; and the technology transfer process.

Elisabet Ljunggren, PhD, is senior researcher and research manager at Nordland Research Institute, Bodø, Norway. Her research interests include gender aspects of entrepreneurship, the entrepreneurial process, the household dimensions in entrepreneurship and policy initiatives to enhance entrepreneurship and innovation.

Ann Mahuka is a Master of Finance student in Accounting and Finance at The University of Western Australia.

Tatiana S. Manolova is Assistant Professor of Management at Bentley University, Boston, MA. Her current research interests include competitive strategies for new and small companies, international entrepreneurship and organizational formation and transformation in transitional economies.

Helle Neergaard, MSc, PhD, currently holds an Associate Professorship in Entrepreneurship at the Department of Management and International Business, the Aarhus School of Business, Denmark. Her research interests include strategic and managerial aspects of entrepreneurship, female entrepreneurs, internationalization as well as qualitative methods.

Rick Newby is a Lecturer in Accounting and Finance at The University of Western Australia. His research interests include survey methodology and the relationship between SME owner goals and firm performance.
Contributors

Kent T. Nielsen, PhD, is Associate Professor at the Department of Marketing, Information and Statistics at the Aarhus School of Business, Denmark. His research interests are within e-business, industrial policy and regional development, networking, internationalization of small and medium-sized enterprises and entrepreneurship.

Miroslav Rebernik, PhD, is Professor of Entrepreneurship and Business Economics at the University of Maribor, Slovenia. He holds the Entrepreneurship and Business Economics Chair, and is a Director of the Institute for Entrepreneurship and Small Business Management at the Faculty of Economics and Business. He is leading research teams for the Slovenian Entrepreneurship Observatory and for GEM Slovenia.

Eleanor Shaw, PhD, is Senior Lecturer in the Department of Marketing at Strathclyde Business School. Her research interests include the diversity of entrepreneurship, entrepreneurship under difficult conditions and the relationship between networks and small business development.

Polona Tominc, PhD, is an Associated Professor in the Department of Quantitative Economic Analysis at the Faculty of Economics and Business, University of Maribor, Slovenia. Her research is focused on statistical methods in economics, especially in the field of entrepreneurship and gender differences.

John Watson, PhD, is an Associate Professor in Accounting and Finance at The University of Western Australia. His research interests include SME performance, measurement and evaluation.

Friederike Welter is Professor for Management of SMEs and entrepreneurship at the University of Siegen, Germany, and holds the TeliaSonera Professorship for Entrepreneurship at the Stockholm School of Economics, Riga. Her research interests include entrepreneurship processes in various environments and media discourse about entrepreneurship.

Fiona Wilson is Professor of Organizational Behaviour in the School of Business and Management at the University of Glasgow in Scotland. She is currently researching banks’ views on male and female business owners and their views on banks with Sara Carter, Eleanor Shaw and Wing Lam. The research is funded by the ESRC. Her research is mainly on gender relations at work.