
Figures

1.1	Schematic representation of affective space	18
1.2	Empirical representations of the valence/arousal model	20
1.3	Empirical representations of the NA/PA model	24
2.1	Negative affect–escalation relationships as a function of personal responsibility derived from coping (a), depressive realism (b), and cognitive dissonance (c) perspectives	51
2.2	The negative affect–escalation relationships as a function of personal responsibility revealed in Studies 1, 2, and 3	52
8.1	A conceptual model of affect, satisfaction, and performance	137
11.1	A simplified model of emotional traits, emotions and CWB	186
14.1	Theory of action and job performance: best fit	230
14.2	Levels within the personality structure	232
14.3	Percentage improvement of emotional and social intelligence competencies from behavioral measurement of different groups of MBA graduates taking LEAD	240
16.1	Emotion scripts: a multi-level model	264
18.1	A model of emotional labour and its outcomes	302
19.1	Negative feedback loops for prescriptive and contextual emotional display rules	322
19.2	The circumplex model of emotions with proposed expression management strategies for contextual display rules	327
23.1	The EASI model	397
26.1	Dimensions of group emotional competence and GEC norms	446
31.1	A proposed model for future research	507
32.1	Interactive, process model of leader and follower emotional interaction	514
33.1	Positive emotional climates and transformative cooperation	538
36.1	Conceptualization of a healthy emotional culture	580
36.2	The emotional learning cycle	582